Five City Teenagers Killed As Car Plunges Into River

YOUTH CRASH TOLL SOARS

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians aged 16-23 died in traffic accidents in one six-week period last year at a rate that, if continued throughout the year, would empty one entire university classroom every week.

A survey of newspaper reports on traffic fatalities across Canada from Oct. 20 to Nov. 29, 1966, showed there were 234 fatalities in 191 accidents.

Band Members Going to Dance

By TERRY IZZARD

Five Victoria teenagers died Friday night when their car plunged into the swollen Salmon River at Sayward on northern Vancouver Island.

Their deaths brought to 10 the number of city teen-agers killed on the Island highway in the past week.

Three of those killed Friday were members of a city rock 'n' roll group, the two girls in the car were identified as girl friends.

Dead are:

Carole Anne Baker, 19, of 4057 Gordon Head Rd.

Gwyneth Riley Thomas, 18, of 1226 Hampshire.

Elkrid Cinar, 16, of 599 Sedger Road.

Charles Barry De Muelle, 16, of 816 Intervale.

Alexander (Randy) Reid, 19, of 816 Intervale.

Police recovered the bodies when the death car was dragged from the river.

The accident happened at 8:30 p.m.

All apparently drowned.

The youngsters were on their way to play at a dance in Sayward, 52 miles north of Campbell River, when the accident occurred.

They were only a mile from their destination when the car apparently went out of control while crossing a bridge.

It smashed into a pole and flipped over the safety barrier.

Police believe the youngsters had no chance to escape.

The water at the point where the car entered was six feet deep—swollen by recent heavy rains.

The five bodies were still inside the water-filled car when it was dragged to the surface shortly afterwards.

One of the first to learn of the accident was Charles' brother, Arthur, 21.

A draftsman at Kelsey Bay, he was waiting for them in Sayward.

Arthur was leader of the band called the EXL's, which was well-known in teenage circles.

He had sung with the other three since they arrived in Victoria from Churchill, Man., eight months ago.

•

One of the dead girls, attractive Gwyneth Thomas, had been on her way to see Arthur. The two had been going steady for some time.

The other girl, Carol, was Randy Reid's girl friend. She worked for the B.C. Medical Plan.

Elkrid Cinar, the group's drummer, had arrived from the prairies just before Christmas. He was attending Colquitz Junior High.

Charles, the bass player, was a pupil at Esquimalt Junior High.

Although Randy was not working, his girl friend was employed by Victoria Real Estate Board.

Said a friend of the group: "They were a real good bunch. They didn't smoke or drink and usually one of the parents accompanied them on their band dates."

Arthur De Muelle broke the news to his mother, Lucille this morning. Randy Reid had been staying with the family until he found work.

It was only a week ago today that three teen-agers were killed when their car plunged off the Malahat. A fourth died on Monday.

On Sunday, a 19-year-old city youth died when the sports car in which he was a passenger crashed on the Trans-Canada Highway at Portage Inlet.

SHOUTS, SHOVE

Force Probe Gets Violent

OTTAWA (CP) — Two unscheduled bouts—one shouting, one shoving—broke out at the end of an uproarious meeting of the Commons defence committee Friday.

RAYNER

HELLYER
. . . innuendo?

In one corner, Defence Minister Hellyer and retired Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner, now administrator of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa, raised their voices to one another.

In the opposite corner, Jack McIntosh (PC — Swift Current-Maple Creek) gave Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) a shove which sent Mr. Winch stumbling back against a chair.

Mr. McIntosh had been needling the committee's witness and Mr. Winch had been needling Mr. McIntosh throughout the sitting.

"He hit me," Mr. Winch said later. "And me a cripple."

Mr. Winch has been on crutches or cane recently with a bad knee.

The row was touched off by a brief—flowery in its praise of armed forces unification plans—presented by Kenneth Patrick, Montreal businessman and wartime RCAF group captain.

The brief referred at one point to an April, 1964, order purportedly issued by Admiral Rayner, then chief of naval staff, saying in part: ". . . the end objective of a single service is firm."

ACCOSTS MINISTER

His face crimson with anger, the usually mild-mannered Admiral Rayner approached Mr. Hellyer when the meeting ended and accused him of issuing "innuendo" and "propaganda."

He said Mr. Hellyer and his staff had tried to give the impression that the admiral himself had issued the order.

"I made no such statement," Admiral Rayner snapped — as Mr. McIntosh angrily strode out of the room after his encounter with Mr. Winch.

Mr. Hellyer said: "I know, it was my statement."

William Lee, executive assistant to Mr. Hellyer, told Admiral Rayner that nobody had ever said he had made the statement.

"You sent out the signal," Mr. Lee said.

Admiral Rayner retorted: "I was asked by the minister to send it. I had no option."

Mr. Hellyer suggested that Admiral Rayner appear before the committee.

The admiral said he would be glad to do so.

QUOTES SIGNAL

Mr. Patrick's testimony on the point said:

"Admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of the naval staff, on April 3, 1964, published a four - page statement from which I quote:

" 'The third and final step will be the unification of the three services. It is reasonable to expect that it will be three

RUSSIA SAYS:

Mao Loses Inner Mongolia

TOKYO (AP)—Radio Moscow said today that after a series of bloody clashes opponents of Mao Tse - tung have seized "nearly full control" of Inner Mongolia.

The Japanese-language broadcast said leaders loyal to Mao had ordered three divisions of the Peoples Liberation Army from Peking to support Maoist revolutionary rebels.

The broadcast added that Maoist Red Guards had failed in efforts to take control in Shantung and Szechwan provinces and said a tense situation still persists in the Dairen-Port Arthur area on the Liaotung peninsula. In these areas, the broadcast said, peasants have joined anti-Maoist army soldiers.

Other reports told of continued opposition to Mao's "great cultural revolution" in Tibet and Fukien province opposite Formosa.

In Inner Mongolia, the broadcast said, Maoists encountered strong counter - attacks from anti-Maoists and bloody clashes occurred.

HELLYER WILL CHECK ON U.S. STUDENTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Friday he has no knowledge that American students at Canadian universities do undercover assignments for the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

But he promised Eric Winkler (PC—Grey—Bruce) he would ask his colleagues in the government if they were aware of such activities.

Mr. Winkler said there were Washington reports that the CIA uses students for undercover work at domestic as well as foreign universities.

He asked for an investigation to insure the RCMP does not use students at universities in this country to gather police intelligence.

FOREIGN ACTIVITIES

CIA Cash Linked To News Union

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says the American Newspaper Guild has received nearly $1,000,000 in foundation grants since 1960 to help finance its South American and other overseas activities.

"All of the money in the last two years has come from three foundations that refuse to disclose their sources of income or their contributions to other organizations," The Times says in a dispatch from Washington.

Charles A. Perlik Jr., national secretary-treasurer of the guild, when asked whether any of the money came originally from the Central Intelligence Agency, said that as far as he knew the money was obtained from "private sources," The Times reported.

The newspaper identifies the three foundations as the Warden Trust of Cleveland, the Chesapeake Foundation of Baltimore and the Broad-High Foundation of Columbus, Ohio.

DOESN'T KNOW ORIGIN

The Philadelphia Inquirer quotes William J. Farson, executive vice-president of the guild, as saying that he was aware of contributions made by the foundations, but that he knew nothing of their backgrounds.

Asked if the money might have been intended to influence foreign journalists to pro-American points of view, Farson told The Inquirer that was a possibility.

"I can tell you this, if any foundation ever tried to influence our work, we would not accept contributions from them," he added. "In any case, these reports make it practically impossible for us to continue our international work. Anything we proposed now would be suspect. The only thing left for us to do is to pull out."

The Times says "the guild did receive a large contribution in 1964, between $85,000 and $100,000, according to Perlik, from the Andrew Hamilton Fund."

FINANCED SEMINARS

"Mr. Perlik," The Times account continues, "said that the newspaper guild had obtained a total of roughly $650,000 from the Warden Trust, the Chesapeake Foundation and the Broad-High Foundation since sometime in 1965 to finance such activities as conferences on newspaper union organization work and journalism seminars overseas.

"Mr. Perlik said the guild also received between $100,000 and $150,000 during the years 1960 through 1963 from the Granary Fund of Boston."

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—RCMP officers, wearing bullet-proof vests and assisted by a police dog, captured a 22-year-old man in a bush area in nearby Surrey today about four hours after a shooting spree.

The chase started after a shotgun blast crashed through the window of a Surrey home.

No one was injured but at one stage shots were fired at police. Pellets from a shotgun blast struck a police car.

Quebec Labor Crisis Hits Peak Monday

(See also page 38.)

QUEBEC (CP)—The biggest labor crisis in years faced Quebec today as a new law forcing 12,000 striking teachers back to work neared the enforcement stage.

The key man in the situation —Raymond Laliberte, president of the 50,000-member Corporation des Instituteurs Catholiques —turned a deaf ear to questions about whether he intended to order a second mass study session by provincial teachers.

With the help of 6,200 members of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, the CIC closed nearly every public classroom in Quebec Friday and teachers spent the day studying the much-debated legislation.

Enacted into law at 1:45 p.m. Friday, Bill 25 orders teachers back into their classrooms Monday morning and extends their expired collective agreements until June, 1968.

In Montreal, news of the bill's passage was quickly followed by the announcement that officials of Quebec's two most powerful labor groups—the 300,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor and 200,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions—had called a joint meeting for Monday.

CALLS IT 'THREAT'

The CNTU issued a statement calling the bill "a threat not only against the teachers but against all society" and promised establishment of 108 "political action committees."

But a spokesman would not say what exactly was planned—

Logger, 20, Dies as Car Slams Tree

COURTENAY — A young logger died and two others were seriously injured when an old model car smashed into a tree east of here Friday night.

Police had to use crowbars to free the trio from the wreckage.

Robert Arthur Neidrauer, 20, of Lake Trail Road, Courtenay, was already dead.

Brian Perrin and Brian Peterson, both 19, of Cumberland were rushed to hospital with multiple fractures.

They are in fair condition.

The accident happened just outside city limits shortly before 9 p.m.

The three youths were heading towards Courtenay when they sideswiped a car driven by William Warnes of Cumberland.

Neidrauer was killed instantly.

Mr. Warnes and his wife escaped uninjured.

Cong Talk Truce With Ky

TOKYO (AP) — The Viet Cong said today they made contacts with South Vietnamese officers during the Lunar New Year truce and that the contacts proved the Vietnamese can settle their own affairs.

This assertion was made by the spokesman for the Viet Cong's National Front for Liberation and broadcast by Hanoi radio.

It was the first disclosure that there had been such contacts.

"The contacts between a number of officers and men of the puppet army and the people and cadres of the NFL proved that the Vietnamese people are fully able to settle themselves all internal affairs provided the U.S. stop its aggression against South Vietnam and withdraws its troops from there."

LONDON (AP) — The Communist Morning Star says a North Vietnamese foreign ministry spokesman in Hanoi has confirmed that talks can commence if the Americans stop the bombing of North Vietnam.

In an undated dispatch, Freda Cook, its correspondent in Hanoi, quotes the spokesman as saying:

"This is not a new line but a new approach to the question of talks. The United States has protested often enough that it wants to talk as soon as there is the slightest indication that Hanoi is willing.

"Very well, let the bombing of the North stop definitely and talks could commence."

AUSSIES AVOID TRAP IN S. VIET BATTLE

SAIGON (AP) — Australian troops bypassed an enemy ambush and killed 70 Viet Cong guerrillas in a six-hour battle Friday, a spokesman for the 1st Australian Task Force announced today.

It was the fourth straight day allied units—South Vietnamese, Koreans, Americans and Australians—have clashed with guerrillas or North Vietnamese regulars. They have claimed an over-all enemy death toll exceeding 1,000.

'Deny Strike Right To Civil Servants'

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs Friday cited recent strikes in public service industries as they urged the government in the Commons to abandon its plan to extend the right to strike to most federal employees.

The Public Service Staff Relations Act, a 116-clause bill, gives some 200,000 civil servants the right to opt for strikes or compulsory arbitration as the final method of dispute settlement.

The Commons began clause-by-clause study of the bill providing a system of collective bargaining for the public service. It is already approved in principle, and the Commons was to return to the measure Monday.

The government was served early warning that MPs planned to seek amendments. Richard A. Bell (PC — Carleton) tried two and had them go down by votes of 41 to 23 and 34 to 17.

But the heat came when the House reached the strike option clause.

Opposition MPs cited recent strikes in the postal service, airlines, railways and the current Quebec teachers' strike as reasons to beware granting civil servants the strike option.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings):

"Frankly I am against giving the right through legislation to public servants to strike. Compulsory arbitration is one matter but the right to strike is an unfortunate blazing of a new trail which with I cannot agree."

GROAN AT PROSPECT

Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke):

"I am sure the people of Canada listening to the debate this afternoon must groan at the thought of extending the rights to strike at this time to the civil service, in the light of the unhappy experience we have had this past year."

Jack Horner (PC—Acadia):

"It is all very well for the minister (Revenue Minister Benson) to say that most of the bargaining agents will decide on arbitration, but if he really believes that why do we need this clause at all?

"Why should there be an alternative? One need only consider the Province of Quebec to understood how the government can get into serious difficulty when essential services are tied up."

Mr. Benson said the government had been trying to get the bargaining legislation into operation for 3½ years. "I believe it is time we presented the legislation to Parliament and had it passed."

The government assumed the great majority of employees would opt for arbitration. Employees in essential services would not be allowed to strike under the legislation and if others chose to, Parliament could take action in the public interest to prevent such strikes.

The armed forces and RCMP are not covered in the bill.

Mr. Horner said it was time Canadians "realized that strikes are outdated, particularly when innocent parties are affected and our whole economy is tied up."

BENSON

NOWLAN

. . . unfortunate

NEED NO UNIONS

Jack Biggs (PC—Athabasca) said he could not understand "why people in the public service require unionizing of any kind."

Gerard Pelletier (L—Hochelaga) was in "total disagreement" with Mr. Nowlan. The Commons should not be influenced by labor disputes in Quebec or elsewhere. He felt it was "absolutely normal" that civil servants have the strike option and Parliament the power to stop any strike in an essential service.

Mr. Bell's first proposed amendment would have allowed conscientious objectors to be exempted from ever having to pay dues to a civil service union. He had received representations from persons who, because of religious beliefs, objected to being compelled to join unions or to pay dues.

The bill does not provide a so-called closed-shop clause whereby all employees must join unions and pay dues. But the topic is left open to negotiations and could be won in future bargaining. The House defeated the amendment.

Mr. Bell's other lost motion concerned the powers proposed for the public service staff relations board, which will administer the system of collective bargaining.

He felt it should not have the power to rescind or change any order or decision without first giving notice to the parties affected. Mr. Benson said this would cause undue delays.

Licence Lost For Gas Theft

A youth caught stealing gas from a truck was ordered to surrender his driver's licence for six months when he appeared Friday for sentence.

Magistrate Ostler told Norman Williams, 18, of 1065 McTavish Road, Sidney, it was obvious he could not afford to drive. The youth was also ordered to sign a $250 good behavior bond covering the same period.

Williams was caught siphoning gas from a truck at Ocean Cement Ltd., 2324 Government, on Feb. 7.

or four years before it will be possible to take this action. However, the end objective of a single service is firm.' "

Robert Andras (L — Port Arthur) put the same quotation on the record earlier in the week to make the argument that the military knew about unification plans from 1964.

Admiral Rayner, who, like Mr. Hellyer, has attended nearly all the committee meetings in the last two weeks, indicated his anger when Mr. Andras used the quotation.

But he said the second time in a week was too much. He repeated to reporters he had been directed by Mr. Hellyer to send the order.

Mr. McIntosh and Gordon Churchill, a former Conservative defence minister, had given Mr. Patrick a rough time.

Mr. Churchill said Mr. Patrick had insulted the committee and that he regretted he had been called as a witness.

Mr. McIntosh asked Mr. Patrick whether he pays Canadian income tax and whether any of his firms do business with the government.

Mr. Patrick said he certainly does pay Canadian income tax and that none of his present firms do business with the government.

He added that his former firm—Canadian Aviation Electronics of Montreal, which he founded in 1950—had sold products to both the Conservative and Liberal governments.

Mr. Patrick had barely launched into his brief when Mr. McIntosh interjected: "You sound like a salesman looking for a contract."

As Mr. Patrick left the room to catch a train, Mr. Winch called out after him: "Don't be disturbed by the insulting comment."

"If you refer to me, you'd better stow it,' Mr. McIntosh barked.

A few seconds later, the committee adjourned until Monday when Lt.-Gen. Robert Moncel, 49, vice-chief of defence staff retired last summer six years before normal retirement age, is scheduled to testify.

Mr. McIntosh went out of his way to approach Mr. Winch and pushed against him. Mr. Winch stumbled backward momentarily but did not fall.

The charged atmosphere built up a full head of steam during Mr. Patrick's reading of his brief.

Mr. Patrick said the 1964 armed forces integration bill was passed without a dissenting vote.

Mr. Churchill said this was not so. There had been no formal vote but Conservatives had registered their opposition with the traditional call of "on division."

"Have you repeated this across Canada?" Mr. Churchill demanded. "Is this part of your propaganda effort?"

Mr. Patrick, who kept his temper in rein throughout, made no audible reply.

When Mr. McIntosh was asking about sales of products to the government by Mr. Patrick's firm in 1950-59, Mr. Winch interjected:

"Be honest in your questions."

Mr. McIntosh said this was insulting.

Mr. Winch said later Mr. McIntosh repeated this when he accosted him after the meeting.

Mr. McIntosh said he had nothing to add.

Mr. Patrick said in his brief that integration of the services' trade structure was "nothing less than a masterpiece of personnel management."

His other claims were in the same vein.

He got Conservative members hopping mad when he said: "First of all, we do not have a Canadian uniform, just as we did not have a Canadian flag. Many of the same kind of people who raised such a fuss about getting a new flag now do so over the uniform and for the same reasons."

"Insulting," Mr. Churchill cried.

"I don't feel insulted," said Gerard Loiselle (L — Montreal St. Ann).

Celibacy Change Touchy Issue

By BENNETT M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pressure was said today to be increasing inside the Vatican for a major review of the Roman Catholic Church's clerical celibacy rule, as more priests abandon their vows for marriage.

"It can hardly be avoided," said one expert here who foresaw such a study in commenting on the latest case from England—the decision Friday by Rev. Arnold McMahon, 27, to marry.

Some sources cautioned, however, that any Vatican-ordered review is likely to change only the way young seminarians are introduced to the prospect of lifetime celibacy and not bring about a relaxation off the church's celibate tradition.

They said celibacy is rapidly matching birth control as the touchiest problem throughout the church in need of an answer.

Far more is involved in the Vatican's increasing concern over "defecting priests," it was explained, than the recent English cases.

PLANS MARRIAGE

Father McMahon, a member of the Divine Word Religious Order who was disciplined three years ago for publicly favoring contraception for married Catholics, said in London that he is marrying an American Catholic girl.

In Los Angeles a Malaysian woman, Elizabeth John, who came to the U.S. seven years ago, said she received Father McMahon's proposal last month by airmail.

After he advocated the use of birth contraceptives for Catholics two years ago, he was called to Rome and ordered to Ghana, West Africa, as a missionary.

Rev. Charles Davis, 46-year-old British diocesan priest, left the church last December and married soon after. He said he rejected the church as an institution but remained a Christian.

Another English priest, Rev. Wilfrid Stibbs, director of a British Roman Catholic association, gave up Roman Catholicism for Anglicanism without expressing any intention to marry.

The Vatican weekly l'Osservatore Della Domenica, commenting on surveys showing that many priests favor doing away with celibacy, expressed worry two weeks ago over "signs of disquiet" among the clergy on the issue.

About 1,000 priests a year are reported to request the Vatican to release them from their vows. Various reasons are cited in the petitions but celibacy problems are most frequently mentioned, those in the Vatican who handle such files report.

only that "You will find out when it happens."

A QFL affiliate, the Montreal Labor Council, invited unions representing its 150,000 members to organize special conferences and study sessions—a form of protest action for workers who do not have the legal right to go on strike or do not wish to strike.

By late Friday, only one large group among the striking Roman Catholic teachers had made it clear it intended to defy the back-to-work law by calling a meeting for 9 a.m. Monday.

"As far as we are concerned we are still on strike," said Robert Dobe, general chairman of the 1,500-member Federation of English - speaking Catholic Teachers of Montreal.

The rest of Montreal's 9,000 striking teachers, members of l'Alliance des professeurs catholiques, have called a meeting for Sunday to decide what they will do.

The Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers issued a statement saying all teachers must "stand united be they French or English, Catholic or Protestant." But association officials were uncertain what action would be taken until it could be determined if Protestant teachers are affected by the bill.

Premier Johnson said Friday that the 6,200 Protestant teachers, who have individual agreements with their school boards, do not come within the scope of the new law unless they try to sign collective agreements.

Late Friday, association President Ann MacLeish set out for Quebec City from Montreal, intending to find out if 3,000 members in Montreal who are certified as a bargaining group will be affected.

Meanwhile the premier expressed confidence that the teachers are professionals who will "show respect for the law."

And Opposition Leader Jean Lesage said he hoped all teachers would return to work Monday since "even this unjust law must be obeyed."

Under the labor code, individual strikers who commit a breach of contract are liable to fines varying between $10 and $100 a day while unions are liable to amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000 a day.

Early Friday the Federation of Quebec School Boards had warned that all teachers taking part in the study session would be docked a day's pay.

Just how many would be losing was unclear. The CIC issued figures announcing 90 per cent of its 50,000 members had joined the walkout Friday while the federation estimated absenteeism at 80 per cent.

Most of the remaining 3,000 teachers actually on strike will vote on whether to obey the bill Sunday night. They include 500 teachers from the Montreal suburbs of Pointe Claire and Beaconsfield and teachers in the areas of Trois-Rivieres, Shawinigan, Chambly and Granby.

that the subsidies to the American Newapaper Guild "were made by four private foundations that do not file public tax records."

"At least one of them, the Andrew Hamilton Fund of Philadelphia," The Post says, "was identified Friday by government officials as a CIA front."

Perlik was quoted by The Post as saying he was unaware that CIA funds were involved.

The newspaper guild has locals in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico. The guild is affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

The Post says the guild's international activities are channelled through the International Federation of Journalists, with headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, and the Inter-American Federation of Working Newspapermen's Organizations in Panama.

In Victoria, the president of the Guild's Local 223 said a membership meeting will be called to discuss the development.

Duncan Macphail said he is sending a telegram to ANG today for its side of the story so it can be presented at a meeting here.

"Until more information is available, I couldn't really make a statement," he said.

The issue will be "thrashed out" at the meeting, he added.

MUSICIANS WANTED BY POLICE

Wanted by the police: young musicians.

City police said today there is room for more boys and girls in their youth band.

Especially wanted are young musicians who play the trumpet, trombone, clarinet, tuba, French horn, flute or percussion instruments.

The band, organized two years ago, played several concerts for various organizations last year and hopes to attend the Portland Rose Festival Parade in June.

Boys and girls between 14 and 21 interested in joining the band are asked to turn out any Tuesday evening at 7 at the Jubilee Hall, 527 Fraser St. in Esquimalt, or phone 384-3495 for more information.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A ridge of high pressure building across the B.C. coast gave sunny skies with cloudy intervals to most regions today. Showers were confined to the outer coast with a few snowflurries in the eastern and central interior. A weak Pacific weather system will bring showers to the north coast on Sunday. Most other areas will continue sunny with a few cloudy intervals as the ridge of high pressure remains over southern sections of the province.

'CHILDREN SCREAM IN JUNGLES OF HAIPHONG'

Poem Irks Defence Heads

BARBARA . . . magazine suppressed.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A 13-year-old girl's poem criticizing the use of napalm in Vietnam caused the United States defence department to cancel 13,000 subscriptions to a Presbyterian magazine, a church board has reported.

The poem was written by Barbara Beidler of Vero Beach, Fla., and printed in the February issue of "Venture," which is published by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education (PBCE) here. It is an agency of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S., the nation's largest Presbyterian denomination with 3,298,000 members.

The defence department said the magazine had been dropped from the list of publications recommended for distribution in the armed forces, but denied subscriptions had been cancelled. Chaplains could still order the magazine, a spokesman said.

A PBCE spokesman, however, said the subscriptions were cancelled and they represented 10 per cent of the magazine's circulation.

The poem was titled "afterthoughts on napalm-drop on jungle villages near Haiphong."

Barbara said at her home in Florida that it seemed everyone was "making a mountain out of a molehill. All this is entirely unnecessary."

She said she did not understand how the defence department or anybody could object to "one small poem in one small magazine.

"How could it embarrass the United States?" she asked.

Barbara said she had wanted to write a protest against the war for some time.

"A few months ago I sat down and wrote this poem. I wanted to see if I could possibly convey to people my own age my feelings on Vietnam."

Her poem described napalm bombs setting a jungle village on fire and the killing of innocent victims including children, "Their screams dying as their faces seared . . . little animals with fur aflame."

The last stanza of the free-verse poem read:

"Listen, Americans,
"Listen clear and long.
"The children are screaming
"In the jungles of Haiphong."

Pilot's Actions After JFK Death Under Probe

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Orleans parish district attorney Jim Garrison Friday refused to confirm or deny reports his office is conducting a major investigation into circumstances surrounding the assassination of President Kennedy.

Garrison brushed aside a question with the statement: "It's very possible that such an investigation is being conducted."

Earlier, two aides confirmed that such an investigation was under way. The New Orleans State-Item reported Friday that Garrison's office had spent more than $8,000 on the probe since late November.

It appeared to be largely a second look into the doings of a local pilot who was detained here four days after the assassination.

The flyer, identified in the Warren report as David Ferry, but who reportedly spells his last name Ferrie, is a former commercial airline pilot.

Other individuals around the city who knew assassin Lee Harvey Oswald during his stays here said they had been questioned by Garrison's investigators.

In Dallas, District Attorney Henry Wade, who considers the case closed, dismissed the New Orleans investigation: "Maybe we ought to move it down there (New Orleans) and turn it over to him (Garrison).

Germans Drop Support For U.K. NATO Forces

LONDON (AP) — The West German government has withdrawn a six-month-old offer to help pay for the upkeep of Britain's Rhine army, diplomatic sources disclosed Friday.

The unannounced move by Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's coalition government threatens a major crisis for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with big British and American force cuts seemingly inevitable.

The U.S. also has been warned that West Germany has no funds to ease the foreign exchange burden of American forces in West Germany, at least until 1969.

This would mean no more West German arms orders to the United States after June 30, when a two-year program of purchases totalling $1,350,000,000 comes to an end.

CHANGES VIEW

Envoys of the three countries will discuss all the issues here Feb. 27-28. But authorities here are forecasting a collapse of the negotiations unless West Germany shifts position.

The Bonn government's withdrawal of an $88,000,000 offer of arms purchases was conveyed informally to the British last week. So far it has been kept secret. The move seems certain seriously to embarrass Prime Minister Wilson's government. This is because the British, beset by balance-of-payments woes, have demanded repeatedly in public and private full West German coverage for the $250,000,000 worth of foreign exchange that the Rhine army costs each year.

Unless this is paid, Wilson and Defence Secretary Denis Healey have warned, Britain will be compelled, after consultation, to scale down her 51,000-man Rhine army.

President Johnson is under stiff pressure to scale down U.S. forces in West Germany unless the West Germans provide more support.

ENGAGEMENT RING FOUND

Items turned into area police this week for which owners have not been located:

Esquimalt Police — A diamond engagement ring, found Thursday night on Juno Street.

Oak Bay Police — An eight-foot skiff with racing hull, light purple in color, found at Loon Bay.

Saanich contractor Stanley Jewkes was fined $10 in central court Friday for an infraction of the municipality's zoning bylaw.

He had pleaded guilty last week after a building inspector produced pictures in court of building materials and equipment stored on a property at 3300 Kingsley.

Sentence was delayed a week while Mr. Jewkes cleaned the property up.

Blasts Rock Plant

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Chain explosions at a paper plant here caused a brief but spectacular fire Friday. Fifteen firemen were injured, mostly from an undetermined cause, at the waterfront plant of the St. Regis Paper Co.

Westbank Chief Quits, Price Stiff

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sinclair Stevens, Toronto financier, Friday relinquished his position as chairman of the board of the Bank of Western Canada and directors gave him until March 3 to pay more than $1,000,000 due on his group's subscription for shares.

Mr. Stevens said his group, British International Finance Canada Ltd., will make available for sale, preferably to western Canadians, stock that would reduce BIF's holding in the bank to about 30 per cent from its present 51 per cent.

In an interview, after the meeting of 13 of the bank's 17 directors, Mr. Stevens put a stiff price on his withdrawal from the position of majority shareholder.

He said although he was willing to sell $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 worth of shares, he expected to be paid the subscription price of $15 a share. The current market price is about $11 to $12 a share.

If the stock is purchased by western interests, BIF would be left holding "30 per cent of the total bank stock at the most," Mr. Stevens said.

GIVES REASON

He said he resigned to indicate his group's desire that the bank be "truly western" and the same feeling motivated the stock sale offer.

Mr. Stevens will remain a director, leaving James E. Coyne of Winnipeg firmly in control of bank policy as president and chief executive officer.

Unconfirmed reports said bank directors John Shanski, Winnipeg businessman, and W. T. Brown, a Vancouver investment banker, were given the task of securing enough western capital to buy the shares offered by Mr. Stevens.

Payment of the $1,450,000 subscription due was requested in a news release issued by the directors following the meeting but there was no indication how this point ultimately would be resolved.

The unpaid stock was subscribed for by BIF, whose officers have said they will withhold payment until they are satisfied as to the future management policies of the bank.

A source close to Mr. Stevens said Friday that should the 40-year-old financier meet the March deadline he would control, through BIF, $6,500,000 of the slightly less than $13,000,000 in stock the bank has issued.

This would provide Mr. Stevens voting majority at a shareholders meeting that could be called by four directors.

Such a majority, the source said, could be used to reduce the capitalization of the bank and in this way Mr. Stevens could withdraw completely from the bank, taking all his money with him.

Capitalization of the bank could legally be reduced under existing federal legislation to $500,000, he said.

Mr. Stevens declined comment when asked at a news conference after the directors' meeting if there was any discussion of Mr. Coyne resigning and he said there was "no particular problem" in Mr. Coyne carrying on as president "for the time being."

STEVENS
. . . still director

A battle for control of bank policy erupted two weeks ago when Mr. Coyne, 56, issued a statement accusing BIF of attempting to establish a line of credit to the bank for its group and negotiating the sale of 10 per cent of the bank's stock to American interests.

Just before Friday's meeting, Mr. Stevens said Mr. Coyne had been advised by "various authorities" in government not to take the course he did publicly in attacking the BIF group but had ignored the advice.

The charges were denied by Mr. Stevens and, after both he and Mr. Coyne testified before the Commons finance committee, Finance Minister Sharp said he saw no evidence of wrong doing and would not recommend any parliamentary action.

There was no immediate indication who would succeed Mr. Stevens as chairman.

Mr. Coyne was understood to feel an agreement reached among the directors not to comment on the board's statement made it impossible to hold a news conference after the meeting although he earlier indicated he would.

It was believed, following Mr. Stevens news conference, that Mr. Coyne would call a news conference early next week.

Injustices By the Thousands

MONTREAL (CP)—Le Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale has launched a "full-scale campaign" to sell thousands of rubber stamps marked "100 ans d'injustice" (100 years of injustice), a spokesman for the separatist party said Friday.

The stamps are offered for sale at $2 each in an advertisement in L'Indpendance, an RIN publication.

"What are your centennial projects?" the advertisement asks. "Put an official seal on your correspondence. Guaranteed for one year."

Another advertisement invited the public to purchase "centennial plaques." A drawing showed a plaque which also says "100 ans d'injustice" attached to the bottom of a Quebec licence plate underneath the words "1867 Confederation 1967".

The plaques cost 50 cents each.

Careless Drivers

Denis Roy Sparrow of HMCS Yukon was fined $100 for driving while prohibited when he appeared in traffic court Friday.

Fined for careless driving:

Joyce Harvey, 2975 Oakdowne Road, $40; Kenneth Hill, 461 Dupplin, $35; Dennis Praud, 3856 Douglas, $40 and Robert Torrie, 3740 Cadboro Bay Road, $40.

CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING LSD

Actor Arrested as Fugitive

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — United States customs agents arrested a Canadian actor who was a passenger on a Paris-Mexico Air France flight after asking the airline to make an unscheduled refuelling stop here, it was disclosed Friday.

First disclosure of the arrest of David Henry Britton, 24, whom authorities said at some time lived in Toronto, was made shortly before he was arraigned in federal court as a fugitive from charges of smuggling and trafficking in the hallucination-causing drug LSD.

He was held on $7,500 bail for further proceedings Monday.

Federal authorities said agents asked Air France to order its Paris-Mexico flight to land at Kennedy Airport Thursday night, as company planes sometimes do for refuelling. The plane, in this case, would have passed over New York.

The agents arrested Britton, also known as David Sniderman, as a bail jumper. He was indicted Oct. 14, 1965, but became a fugitive a week later and a bench warrant was issued. Bail of $5,000 was ordered forfeited.

The indictment, which could bring a maximum penalty upon conviction of 13 years in prison and $35,000 fines under a new federal law for control of LSD, contains five counts alleging smuggling and importing, selling and concealing LSD.

Britton had been living in New York's Greenwich Village, associating with an "LSD group," said Paul L. Perito, assistant U.S. attorney.

Britton originally was arrested July 8, 1965, on the charge and a U.S. commissioner released him in $5,000 bail.

IT'S A FIVE-LETTER WORD . . .
. . . AND THERE, WE'VE SAID IT

Even the New Standard Unabridged Dictionary handles the word Bidet carefully.

Which is strange because the Bidet has been around for a long, long time and is standard equipment in many parts of Europe.

No one denies that it is more useful, more hygienic than its archaic North American counterpart, but apart from Mechanical Contractors and their Journeymen Mechanics, few people like to talk about the Bidet.

Said one bathroom design consultant: "The Bidet is a little like sex. You know about it, but you don't want to talk about it openly."

But it should be talked about because eventually that famous French bathroom fixture will be part and parcel of every bathroom in the land.

You can be one of those people who wait for the neighbors to make the first move, or you can be a trend setter. That's a choice we all have.

But don't be shy about talking the matter over with your favorite plumbing firm. They certaily won't be shy in answering your questions and they do have the skilled technicians just waiting to put you five years ahead of your neighbors.

Mr. Bennett's Wild Talk

THE INTERVIEW WITH PREmier Bennett which is published on page five of the Times today is a significant follow-up to the alarming anti-Canadian sentiments which have been expressed in recent days by cabinet members of British Columbia's Social Credit government.

The interview is the last of a series of ten conducted with Canada's provincial premiers by an outstanding journalist and author, Mr. Peter Newman. Mr. Bennett's schizophrenic vacillation between chest-thumping protestations of sincere Canadianism and an apparent obsession—alarming in a public figure — with federal discrimination "based on ill-will . . . misinformation . . . and jealousy," sent Mr. Newman away awed by what he calls Mr. Bennett's "forthright evasiveness."

The Premier, like some of his cabinet colleagues, veers between extravagant boasts of British Columbia's vast material prosperity under Social Credit direction, and complaints of the hardships inflicted on the province by a federal government which unscrupulously draws riches from the Pacific coast to lavish on other parts of Canada.

Mr. Bennett's error is a fundamental one. It seems that he cannot recognize Canada as an entity complete in itself, populated by Canadians. He apparently sees the country only as a loose agglomeration of sovereign territories, each out only for its own interests and expecting a dollar returned from the central government for every dollar exported.

* * *

There could be no nationhood on such a basis, of course; merely an association of competing states that might break up at any moment. Fortunately, Mr. Bennett's apparent concept does not exist outside of his imagination, and principally because the people living in Canada are Canadians first and not merely citizens of separate provinces. Mr. Bennett and his colleagues seem determined to ignore this fact. He loses no opportunity to try to incite anti-federal feelings in the people: to make them share his ostensible belief that British Columbia is being cheated and harmed by some inimical power away out there in Canada and that we must fight it to preserve our lives.

When Mr. Bennett raised this sort of cry in earlier days it could be dismissed as merely a political ploy to bolster claims for a more advantageous financial arrangement with the federal government. But the obsession has gone much farther of late and it is impossible to overlook the serious turn it has taken. For now there are repeated references to the possible need for British Columbia to go it alone.

We are told that the province could do this easily—that, in fact, Confederation is holding us back economically. We hear references to the fine future we could enjoy as part of a customs union with the adjacent American states. We are treated repeatedly to the picture of Canada as a malicious force which seeks to rob us of our natural resources, our offshore rights, our money.

On the subject of this province's contribution to less prosperous parts of Canada, Mr. Bennett says, "we say it's unfair, and we won't stand for it. They better wake up before it's too late. Because some day . . . we'll say we don't need Ottawa, or Canada either."

* * *

Who can that "we" be—the same "we" that Mr. Kiernan used in a similar context? If these grandiose, fiery declamations purport to speak for the people of British Columbia they are a gross libel on nearly two million Canadians whose contribution to their nation in war and peace has never faltered and never been begrudged.

Mr. Bennett and his cabinet spokesmen cannot hide the perfidy and falseness of such statements by quickly tacking on sentimental declarations of loyalty to Confederation. What will stick longer in the public mind are such destructive assertions as: "If Quebec goes out of Confederation I'd try to hold B.C. in, but I don't know if I could."

Such a remark should cause concern throughout this province, and in more than political circles. It betrays a frame of mind that does not reflect reality and such talk is gaining British Columbia an undeserved reputation in other parts of Canada. Such publicity, for instance, led the newspaper, Le Nouvelliste of Trois-Rivieres, Quebec, to say editorially that: "British Columbia is re-examining the problem of its relations with the central government, or rather . . . with Confederation."

It is time the people of British Columbia reminded Mr. Bennett that he does not speak for the Canadians of this province when he denigrates our loyalty to Canada.

Competing for Debtors

STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENTS of two of the country's largest finance companies that Canadians are more interested in dollar charges for credit than in annual interest rates prompts a question. How can they be so sure when there has never been a choice?

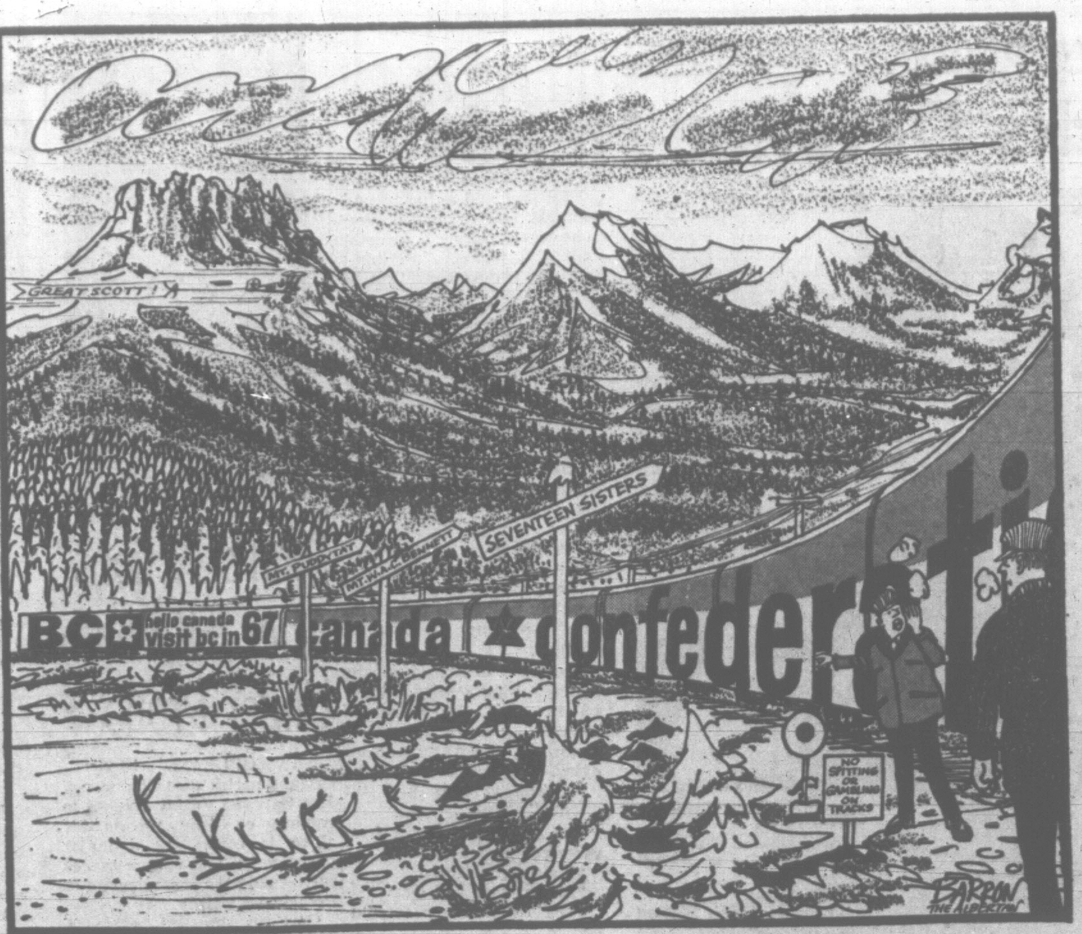
A case can be made for stating credit charges in dollars—for a particular transaction. A credit applicant can easily find out that a certain item which costs X dollars will cost X plus Y dollars when financed over a stated period. The amount paid for the credit is Y dollars, and the finance company people believe this is the only meaningful way to state finance charges.

But there is another side to the picture. What about the people who want to shop around for the best credit deal, and there will be more who do as consumers become more sophisticated about the uses of credit? They are placed in the position of having to visit a number of stores, or finance companies, or auto dealers and work out on the basis of dollar charges where they can get the best financing deal. In cases where the merchandise is not identical, or where the selling prices vary, this would be an almost impossible task.

The real effect of the Senate-Commons consumer credit committee report, which urges that credit terms be stated in true annual interest rates, is that it would force an element of competition in the credit granting business which does not now exist.

It isn't difficult to believe that many firms would be unhappy with the introduction of this type of competition, particularly in the situations where annual interest rates are extremely high. Many potential customers might pause before committing themselves if they realized how high interest charges are in many transactions. Some merchants, who find it quite enough to compete on the basis of price and quality, might quail at the thought of having to compete on financing charges as well.

But if competition really is the lifeblood of business, as the economic textbooks say, then it should follow all the way down the line. People today don't just buy goods or services; they buy goods and services plus financing, and they are entitled to know who is selling what at the best price.



". . . no wonder we can't get up this hill . . . someone's added a couple of cars on the back . . ."

Letters

Housing and Health

Victoria certainly has provided facilities for the older person that are imaginative and practical, such as the Silver Threads Centre and the beautiful square and gardens with ample seating space. The B.C. government has shown concern and has wisely introduced podiatry foot care into the province's health plan. This will assist in keeping the elderly walking and active.

However there are two vital areas in which we are lagging—adequate housing and chronic hospital bed care.

It seems to me one practical plan might be a scheme similar to the one in Sweden, of building prefabricated two-room bungalows in terrace design, thus easing the desperate housing shortage; and to make more funds available to the visiting nurses order so that they may further expand their domicillary nursing service.—A. Edward Cole, PRSH.

Needed Warning

Your commendable editorial condemning the anti-Canadian statements in recent remarks of some B.C. cabinet ministers has given a much-needed warning to the ministers concerned that they have no mandate from the people for such private or public utterances. It is the people of British Columbia who would decide if B.C. was to remain in Confederation or otherwise. I am sure 99 per cent of the people know there is no such issue and never will be, so I say to these ministers, stop making such irresponsible statements and get on with the job you are paid to do.—A. G. F. Sutton, 1671 St. Francis.

CBC—'The Untouchables' Extend Their Immunity

IN a preview of the new broadcasting legislation Miss LaMarsh disclosed this week that the CBC is to have the five-year budget for which Mr. Ouimet has been lobbying so long. Members were also advised that in future the BBG will have over-all responsibility for the CBC and will report to Parliament on its behalf. These tidings will be received with elation by those who, more or less, rule the corporation from their offices in the stately palace on Bronson Avenue. There is no obvious reason why they should arouse the same enthusiasm among already disgruntled tax-payers.

Western

Even with the present minimal restraints, Parliament regularly finds it necessary to cover CBC deficits. If the corporation, in order to further its forward planning, is now to have the benefit of a five years supply, we may be reasonably confident that it will be back at the end of three reporting through the BBG that, for all sorts of plausible reasons, the cupboard is bare. Will it then pass into bankruptcy, like a private institution? Such a question can be merely rhetorical. It is axiomatic on Parliament Hill that the CBC is necessary to our national unity. It will, therefore, get its money.

Possible Limits

Parliament may choose perhaps to impose some limits on the amount which the corporation may spend in any given year. This may somewhat interfere with the planning but would no doubt be accepted reluctantly by the Bronson Avenue empire-builders. For even with this limitation they would have achieved a major objective, which is to escape from the nightmare of parliamentary control. What this means to harried CBC executives Mr. Ouimet has explained in innumerable eloquent and anguished speeches.

The idea of reporting through the BBG is particularly brilliant. Until now the CBC has been an "arms length" corporation. This meant in practice that an MP asked Miss LaMarsh for information concerning its latest achievement and she in turn had to pass on the request to CBC headquarters. As the arm was long (although the distance from Parliament Hill to Bronson is not great), this process was time-consuming. The insertion of the BBG into the relay system should mean that the answer will be forthcoming only when the question has been forgotten.

How the system currently works is very well illustrated by the case of the 107 color television receivers, a "housekeeping" matter involving some $80,250 and thus of legitimate interest to Parliament. Mr. McIntosh of Swift Current asked about this on December 5 and obtained an answer on January 16 — which is about par for the course.

The difficulty was that Mr. Ouimet's experienced operators managed deftly to steer around some of the questions which had excited the curiosity of Mr. McIntosh. Thus one of them read: "What are the titles and locations of CBC officials who received TV color sets purchased by the CBC in 1966?" The answer was "Receivers are assigned to those officials whose duties require program viewing at home or in offices where production monitors are not available. Set assignments are made to management officials across the country plus selected department heads."

This, as anyone may see, is pure camouflage. What management officials? What selected department heads? How can anyone hope to form a judgment on this basis as to whether all this homework is necessary or not? By such answers to Parliament, the CBC merely casts suspicion on itself.

Mr. Diefenbaker, accordingly, placed a second question on the order paper. It was "starred," which means that an early answer is required. (In Britain, the period is three days.)

Part one read: "What are the names and addresses of the chosen officials and/or employees of the CBC who are to be the recipients of and have free use of the colored TV sets recently purchased by the CBC?"

Having failed in 20 days to obtain an answer to this ticklish query, Mr. Diefenbaker threatened on Monday that unless one was immediately forthcoming, he would have more to say on the matter. This nudge produced an effect. Miss LaMarsh was informed by a reticent CBC that: "color television receivers are assigned according to requirements of senior positions in the event of the departure of present incumbents. They are used by those whose duties require program viewing."

It seems to me that this comes perilously close to contempt of Parliament. The CBC overlords can read, presumably; they know what names and addresses are as they knew earlier what titles and locations were. If they resented the barb in Mr. Diefenbaker's question, it can only be said that they invited it. Instead of information, they have offered a defence against a charge which was never formulated. Even this has had to be extracted through pressure.

No one ever imagined that the CBC was handing out free color sets which officials might take with them when they left the service. Of course they go with positions. But what positions? Who is required to watch color television in his own home? Is he paid overtime while he performs these functions in line of duty?

Why this coyness when those who represent the taxpayers ask questions in Parliament?

No-Answer Answers

If Mr. Diefenbaker had been a private member, it seems probable that he would have been rebuffed (as Mr. Frank Howard was in another CBC quest extending over some months) with the explanation that he was prying into an "internal matter" or possibly into a concern of management. But this would scarcely do for the leader of the opposition, who is known to be formidable in wrath. So Parliament, representing the people who pay the shot, is fobbed off with an answer which answers nothing.

It may be said that the matter, although one of housekeeping, is indirectly related to programming. One assumes, however, that everything in the CBC — even the Kublai Khan palace on Bronson Avenue—is in some way related to programs. Is it all to be concealed behind Mr. Ouimet's paper curtain?

But better days are coming for CBC executives.

Life now is filled with these embarrassments. Soon, however, the CBC will be removed by a second arms length and a five-year budget from the nagging of elected representatives who are always getting above themselves. When that time comes and the corporation goes into orbit, Mr. Ouimet may well envy his fortunate successor. No one will envy the minister of finance.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

With some warm sunny days after the rains there is a great change taking place along the right-of-way out on the panhandle of Thetis Park.

Since the trees of the deep forest were cleared and burned, many plants and animals have moved into this area.

On the sunny rock bluffs the bittercress is in full bloom, as well as the little chickweed. You can find in bud the shooting star, blue-eyed Mary, rusty saxifrage, and some of the miner's lettuce.

Along the "cat" and jeep roads there is a tiny clover with fine leaves that has made a dark green carpet.

In a number of places, where clearing fires were made, there are masses of reddish moss that is called the fire moss. It only appears where a fire has been. It is very shallow rooted and has many spore caps.

The seedlings of the red alder are in abundance everywhere as well as a sprinkling of Douglas fir seedlings which are competing for the sunlight. For a while the alders will predominate, then the conifers will take over.

The ocean spray is coming back strongly, and as it is in the strong sunlight it takes on a more sprawling growth. In many instances the new leaves have appeared, though they have taken on an almost bright red hue. This is a protection against the strong rays of the sun.

A large number of black-cap vines are now growing along the way. These will provide good feeding for many birds during the summer.

The creeping blackberry is sprawling over logs, stumps and rocks competing with the twinflower for a place in the sun.

Fireweed and groundsel are showing, and will ensure good feeding for many kinds of bees and many birds, which do not live in the thick forest.

There appears to be a number of grasses that have established themselves now the country is open. Here one can see the struggle for survival by the plants in an environment changed by man.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

The Explosive Potential Among the World's Hungry

THE United Nations is waging one of history's most momentous wars, with the lives of tens of millions at stake. It is a 10-year war on hunger, poverty, ignorance and disease. But this war is not being won. Every day, more than 8-000 persons die of starvation and nutritional diseases. More than 3,000,000 die of these causes every year. Half of the world's 3,400,000,000 people go to bed hungry every night.

Frye

Two out of every three people in the world — well over 2,000,000,000 people — earn less than $2 a week, or $100 a year.

And although some of the poor countries are making gains in the battle, others are falling behind. In parts of Asia and Latin America, population is increasing so fast that despite increased production, there is less food per person today than there was in 1960, when the UN's 10-year war — the so-called Decade of Development — began.

It is a grim struggle for survival.

The net rate of growth in the gross national product of the world's 100 poor countries and territories, after allowing for population increases, is only 1 per cent — enough to increase a man's income from $100 a year to $101.

Nearly all close students of the problem say this is a state of affairs with immensely explosive potential.

People are not going to die quietly, and see their children die, without rioting in the streets, demanding extreme political solutions, and perhaps attempting to seize their neighbors' food.

Kerala, one of the hungriest parts of India, is one of the few places in the world where Communists win free elections.

Nor will poverty-ridden people indefinitely sit by and see the richer third of the world, with a gross national product of $1.4 trillion, or more than $1,000 a year per capita, continue getting richer at an average rate of roughly 3 per cent —three times as fast as they are.

It is not a matter of superior intelligence or enterprise. In most cases, the poorer peoples yearn for an opportunity to help themselves. But they need assistance in breaking the barriers of ignorance, superstition, overpopulation and lack of tools.

Somewhere, somehow the slums of the world are going to get through to the consciences of the well-fed suburbanites with a paraphrase of the Biblical query, "Am I my brother's keeper?" So far, it is beoming harder, not easier, to persuade the suburbanite to acknowledge the responsibility and do something about it.

The richer countries of the world are currently devoting about one-half of 1 per cent—$1 out of every $200—of their gross national product to what is loosely called foreign aid, but which includes $1 of profitable investment and interest-bearing loans for every $1 of grants and "soft" loans.

Below Target

Thus the real total of "aid," strictly defined, is only about one-quarter of 1 per cent of the GNP. In 1960, when the Decade of Development was launched, nearly everyone agreed that 1 per cent would be a reasonable target.

The United States' GNP in 1966 was $739.5 billion. President Johnson has asked Congress for $3.1 billion in foreign aid for the upcoming fiscal year — less than half of 1 per cent.

A very little aid often goes a very long way, if the recipient is willing to help himself. Paul G. Hoffman, the UN's principal foreign-aid dispenser, reports that 28 of his major programs, costing $35.7 million (of which the recipient countries put up more than half), have led to more than $1.4 billion in profitable investments in recent years. In other words, every $100 of the UN "seed money" is opening up opportunities for nearly $4,000 in investment — a 40-to-1 ratio.

If current "soft" loans (amounting to $1.8 billion) could be increased to $2.8 billion, and present "seed money" ($500 million) could be increased to $1 billion, this alone could trigger a doubling of the net capital flow from rich to poor countries, Hoffman estimates. The net flow from all sources is now $6.5 billion. It could be $12 or $14 billion, he says.

This kind of money might give the world an outside chance of achieving the UN's goal in its 10-year development program: a 5 per cent growth rate for poorer countries.

Without it, there will be massive starvation, grinding poverty, and "North-South" tension (the poor countries being largely in the southern hemisphere) which will dwarf the East-West cold war in explosive potential.

B.C. Is Only Province That Could Go It Alone; Ottawa Had Better Wake Up, Bennett Declares

When the noted Ottawa commentator Peter Newman visited Victoria this week to interview the British Columbia premier for his "New Fathers of Confederation" series, he found Mr. Bennett obsessed with the wrongs he feels successive federal governments have committed against this province. "They think of us as a goblet to be drained," the premier complained.

But He's Canada's Number One Patriot

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Interviewing the Honourable William Andrew Cecil Bennett, for 15 years premier of British Columbia, is an experience unique in Canadian politics.

You sit there, in his legislative office, adorned with its photograph of John F. Kennedy and bust of Sir John A. Macdonald, and as he talks about his dreams for British Columbia and his despairs with Ottawa, the scene becomes a sort of 1984 reorientation box, illuminated by the premier's dazzling 1,000-watt smile.

W. A. C. Bennett — Power Keeps Boom Rolling

The words bounce out and envelop you in breezy optimism, and no matter how cynical or how well-briefed you've been about his government's shortcomings, you come away charged by the man's vitality, full of admiration for his political gifts, and awed by his forthright evasiveness.

Newman

It's only afterwards, far away from the glittering grin, when you're trying to reconstruct what actually was said, that you begin to feel a little like a man who's just bought a used car entirely on the salesman's say-so and is starting to wonder whether he's done the right thing.

Although the main thrust of the Bennett government has been its spectacularly successful policy of developing the province's rich natural resources, Bennett himself seems to be obsessed with the wrongs he feels federal governments — both Liberal and Conservative — have committed against his province.

"British Columbia was never a willing bride in Canada," he told me. "Ottawa talks with a forked tongue. They don't think of us as part of Canada. They just say: 'We'll come out and see you sometime' — as though this were Darkest Africa. They think of us as a goblet to be drained."

B.C. has so many specific grievances against Ottawa that Bennett can't even list them all. Every year he sends Ottawa bills for the money his province didn't get as a federal share for the cost of extending the PGE railroad, and other items, but Ottawa doesn't answer his mail any more, and he's getting wilder by the minute.

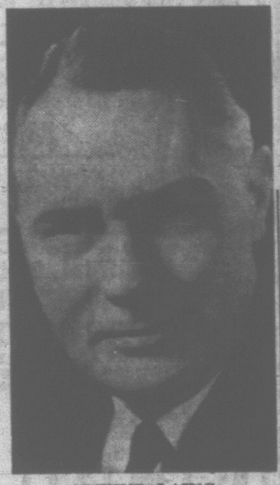
"What does Ottawa own?" he asks. "Nothing but the power to tax us. It's our money that goes into the subsidies paid to the other provinces. We say it's unfair, and we won't stand for it. They better wake up before it's too late. Because someday, British Columbians are going to take Ottawa at its word.

"If the federal government keeps saying, 'B.C.'s so rich it doesn't need fair treatment,' we'll say we don't need Ottawa — or Canada either. Now, that's what I'm trying to forestall."

Bennett's theories of federal-provincial relations are simple.

The federal government should look after defence, external affairs, inter-provincial commerce and currency distribution; the provinces should control everything else, including 100 per cent revenue of direct taxation.

Right now, he's most concerned about maintaining provincial jurisdiction over undersea resources: "Ottawa's trying to steal our offshore minerals, but they never will, because that would shake this country as nothing has shaken it before."



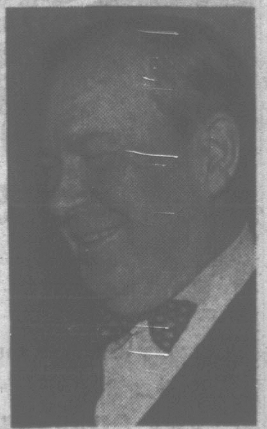
ARTHUR LAING

. . . the arch-enemy

Bennett blames most of his troubles on the federal cabinet, particularly Arthur Laing, B.C.'s senior representative.

"I have it on good authority," Bennett confided. "That the Pearson cabinet is divided. Half want to be fair to B.C.; the other half, led by Laing, say 'Don't give Bennett anything out there, he's too strong now,' It's an attitude partly based on ill will, partly on misinformation, and about 75 per cent on jealousy of B.C. The present Liberal party is the real enemy of Confederation."

Having set up Ottawa as the nation's cheif villain, and himself as its chief victim, Bennett switches masks to become Canada's No. 1 patriot.



LESTER PEARSON

. . . jumps for French

"Even though it doesn't pay us," he says, "we're great Canadians. The dollar sign isn't everything. We believe in the Canadian dream. Ocean to Ocean. Greater than the men who first dreamed it. When I land in Canada after coming back from Europe, I feel something different. It does something to you."

A large part of Bennett's sentimental attachment to Canada is rooted in his deep loyalty to the monarchy and the British fact.

"I give thanks daily that we're part of the Commonwealth," he told me, "and if we ever did separate from Canada, we would become the Dominion of British Columbia and stay in the Commonwealth."

He's passionatley opposed to the way he claims the Pearson government is whittling away at the British connection.

This is most apparent, he seems to believe, in Ottawa's attitude to Quebec.

"They just breathe, and Pearson jumps," he says. "We think French-Canadians should have an equal opportunity, but they shouldn't have any special privileges in Confederation. If Ottawa gives Quebec a special status, that will be the start of the break-up of Canada."

"I myself like Frenchmen," he insists. "The first partner in my hardware business was a French-Canadian, and we got along wonderfully, all because we didn't argue either politics or religion."

At the same time, Bennett showed me a letter he'd received that morning from Mitchell Sharp, which had a newly-designed, bilingual department of finance letterhead.

"I never had a letter like this," he complained. "Stationery like this has always been in English before."

The B.C. premier opposed the biculturalism idea, and at a political meeting a few years ago, is reported to have said: "We've got more Chinese in B.C. than French-Canadians, Maybe we should pay our civil servants more if they learn to speak Chinese."

B.C. Demands Fair Treatment

"If Quebec goes out of Confederation, I'd try to hold B.C. in, but I don't know if I could," he says. "We're the only part of Canada that really could go it alone. We have year-round, ice-free ports, favorable balances in world trade, and the necessary resources. If we had our own banks, you'd see a standard of living here higher than in California. But that isn't the main thing in life. We still want the Canadian ideal. All B.C. demands is fair treatment."

Despite the irritations gnawing at its premier, B.C. seems to the visitor like a rich and happy, if over-materialistic society. A breath-taking $1.3 billions will be spent in the next five years by the provincial government, to develop the Columbia and Peace River power sources. Provincial power consumption is doubling every eight years and the additions of the new hydro power could keep the B.C. boom going in perpetuity.

The Bennett government has been so preoccupied with its resources policies, that social welfare initiatives and expenditures have been lagging behind. Dr. Pat McGeer, a leading member of the Liberal opposition, points out that recent provincial grants for hospital construction are actually lower than they were in 1952, when the Socreds took over.

Bennett presides over the Legislative Assembly with an iron fist. Procedures haven't been changed since 1930. There's no oral question period, no Hansard is printed, and all-night sittings promote legislation by exhaustion.

Bennett claims that he subscribes to Social Credit doctrine, but describes the secret of his success in one phrase: "We make policies for the hour."

As our interview wound to its climax, Bennett thumped a maple leaf pin he was wearing in his lapel and declared: "I'm an optimist for the future of Canada. I believe Quebec is going to stay in. We could be a major power by the end of this century. The only thing that's stopping us are the foolish policies from Ottawa.

"The federal government must realize that most things are better done by the regions. I'm a father and a grandfather, and I know this: If you try to hold your family too tight, you lose it."

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

For one brief hour Monday it appeared a break was imminent in the Vietnam deadlock.

The short-lived excitement began with a dispatch that President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam had sent a message to Pope Paul appealing to him to use his office to help end the war.

All other signs at the moment seemed propitious.

Although ground fighting had resumed in the South at the expiry of the four-day lunar new year ceasefire, the U.S. had extended the truce on bombing in the North.

In London Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin had just left for home after a week-long visit and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson issued a statement saying his talks with the Russian leader convinced him a solution "could now be reached."

As hopes began to soar an announcement from the Pentagon quickly crushed them. The bombing had resumed.

Washington's subsequent explanation for the extra 48-hour pause was that it was ordered to allow Mr. Kosygin to be on his way so that Wilson's position in their talks would not be compromised.

World opinion was quick to condemn the U.S. for resuming the raids when it appeared a breakthrough might be near, but it seemed both sides could be blamed for the failure.

In exchange for the bombing pause, the U.S. had urged the North Vietnamese to take some step that would indicate a willingness to de-escalate the fighting.

Reports from London said Kosygin had tried to get Hanoi to compromise but was rebuffed.

●

President Johnson declared the U.S. had "no alternative" but to start bombing again because the Communists had used the ceasefire to move a record amount of supplies to the South.

However a state department official admitted the U.S. had also taken advantage of the truce to ferry more than the usual number of troops and supplies. Asked to explain the difference he said one side was acting for purposes of "aggression", the other to "defend against aggression".

Later in the week Defence Secretary Robert McNamara admitted the bombing had only a limited value and would not result in Hanoi's surrender.

One of its main objectives, McNamara said, is to raise the morale, of the South Vietnamese, which he claimed it had succeeded in doing.

Meanwhile the diplomats went despairingly back to the task of trying to end it all.

Harold Wilson declared there is a plan in existence "which could bring peace tomorrow." All it would take, he said, is "a very small move to activate all the complicated machinery."

As the week ended that "small move" appeared as far away as ever.

●

Wilson went off to Bonn after the Kosygin visit to seek more support for Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

Next to France, the West Germans are the least enthusiastic about the move and Wilson was further embarrassed by one of his cabinet ministers. Douglas Jay, president of the government board of trade, told a closed meeting of Labor MPs if Britain joined the trading bloc it would set off a series of economic crises, including a sharp increase in the U.K. cost of living and a loss in her balance of payments.

George Hees formally put himself in the contest for the Conservative leadership after the party had further rebuffed John Diefenbaker by choosing Toronto as the site for a September convention.

Rolling Out the Barrels For a Gorge Ceremonial

By ART STOTT

When picturesque Bill Nye died and his odd craft disappeared from the Inner Harbor—it looked to be a wooden cask split in half lengthwise, about bathtub size, though Bill was no soap advertisement — Victoria lost an authentic touch of local color and virtually all contact with a barrel as a means of marine transportation.

Stott

Now the boys in Esquimalt are challenging all-comers to a barrel race early next summer under the Gorge Bridge. This, presumably, is a publicity stunt to draw attention to the new span currently under construction by Esquimalt and Saanich.

I have no desire to compete. I don't know how to paddle a barrel and it's years since we used to swim-drift with the racing tide under the bridge. That was a small and foolish practice of boyhood—a sort of trial by ordeal to prove our valor. From it we used to emerge bleeding from cuts inflicted by the knife-sharp barnacles that grew on the downstream rock centring the gorge and just inches under the surface when the tide was low.

If I remember correctly, the top was blown off the rock in more recent years, with warnings of dire consequences from an old Indian curse against the powder men who removed the traditional pinnacle.

Maybe, if we had been in barrels, we wouldn't have lost so much skin and blood in our juvenile derring-do.

Rather than a race in tubs, I'd like to see some of the public men in Esquimalt and Saanich revert to the traditional at the bridge. They could compete in a diving contest, emulating Billie Muir, Buck Calder and "Bunny" Bidlake, who in an earlier age, used to stage flights of swan dives from the railing, facing upstream, of course.

They might even repeat an interesting demonstration by V. J. "Dick" Dunn, at one time the local mentor of diving in the territory. "Dick" was walking toward the old street car turn-around with friends from the V.A.S.C. whose clubhouse was on the Gorge at the foot of Inez Drive. Somebody suggested to "Dick" that while he ran the diving shows, nobody had seen him dive. The implied challenge occurred as they were crossing the bridge. "Dick" mounted the parapet, fully clothed, and did a not-very-good back somersault into the water below.

He proved a point of some sort in the performance, but his cream flannel trousers always fitted a bit snugly after they'd dried out.

Or if the Esquimalt boys want to introduce a political element into a contest there in June they could move upstream from the old towpath under the bridge and re-enact some of the mudfights that were general practice for the more robust crowd from the old "Free". More mud has been slung in that area than in any election campaign in British Columbia's history—but good, honest, sticky blue-clay mud.

Then the contestants could reconcile their differences, climb into boats at low tide and move up to the shell-covered shallows a stone's throw from the arch, and lift, as we used to lift, small oysters from the bed—provided the standard of water in the Gorge during recent years has permitted survival of the shellfish. I'm told the bivalves taken from the bar there were as tasty as any on the continent. You paddled your canoe to the area, dipped down, took the oysters from the water, opened them with a penknife and slurped them down. Not me, though. I don't like oysters.

There wouldn't be much hope, I suppose, of going back over the years to recreate for the event replicas of the old Jap Tea Gardens, which produced the best poached eggs on toast and the largest mosquitoes in Western Canada. Nor would there be any roller-coaster available for the entertainment of the children. But it might be possible to put up a temporary shell, if ground is available, for a revival of the old outdoor pierrot snow.

But a barrel race? I dunno. The out-running tidal fall isn't the kind you ride in barrels, though in my time I've seen some pretty haphazard canoeists trying to buck the race only because they seemed to have a barrel-full inside.

THE GALLUP POLL

Public Indecision High On Unification of Forces

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

A substantial majority of Canadians are fully aware of the controversy in Parliament over whether or not the armed forces should be unified.

Nearly seven in ten (66%) say they have heard or read about Defence Minister Paul Hellyer's plan to unite the army, navy and air force. Just more than three in ten (34%) are unaware of unification.

But Mr. Hellyer has not yet persuaded a majority of those who know about the unification plans to his way of thinking. Less than half of them (48%) approve and a third (33%) express unqualified disapproval. The rest are undecided.

Only in the 30 to 39 age group do a majority (53%) approve of uniting the army, navy and air force. Fewer in their 20s and 40s are in favor of unification.

Interviewers asked all the people who had heard of unification whether they approved or not and these were the results:

	TOTAL	21-29 Years	30-39 Years	40-49 Years	50 and Over

Can't Take It With You Slightly Off Target

By GLEN ALLEN

You remember.

"You Can't Take It With You" is the lovely old dear of a comedy about a time when people wore nickel lunch ties for serious and thought Fred Astaire was great stuff.

"You Can't Take It With You" is an affectionate, hopeful and genuinely funny account of people who somehow anticipate the desperate, moronic years the world has ahead of it.

It is a story (even though everyone now secretly knows you can take it with you) that has outwitted time itself.

Unfortunately, except for an explosively funny second act and bright performances by many individual players, this Moss Hart-George Kaufman classic has also outfoxed the Bastion Theatre Players.

TOO LATE

The Eugene Gallant production which opened at the McPherson Playhouse Friday is perhaps only marginally successful because Mr. Gallant, the actors, and the audience are directing, acting and watching about 30 years too late.

But it is Mr. Gallant who has taken on the job—and his production seems a capricious and off-target version of what might have been.

The Sycamore family, their attendants, "men who came to dinner" and all, are made to seem too much for comfort like one of those incurably daffy families on American television.

Characters are transparently ciphers for the situations they represent. They are made to use in too generous measure the old cliches of stage business—double-take means surprise, finger-to-head for a good idea—and they queer several of the ripest moments with an outrageously erratic tempo.

REAL FAILURE

The real failure is that the play ought really to somehow exceed its comic intention—not that it has a message, but it should offer more than the over-energetic and guileless caricatures it does now.

There is hope. Not only is "You Can't Take It With You" an irreducibly good, if not great, play, there is a kind of saving counterpoint throughout the production.

The producer has his moments—good ones. And several of the players are congenitally droll.

Sylvia Hosie handles Essie Carmichael very well indeed, Don McManus plays the rodomontade of a very Russian Russian expatriate without a misstep, Gay Wellington is the best lady drunk you will ever see, and Gertrude Ball, who very nearly rescues some of the comedy's paler moments is as brilliant as she was in Bastion's production of Bell, Book and Candle.

The set is pedestrian and a little cluttered. Costumes are fine and lighting except for one notable fluff does the job.

The play looks like improving over its two-week life. It's still worth seeing.

Huge Airlift Returns QORs To Home Base

The last contingent of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, returned to Victoria today from winter training at Fort Wainwright, Alta.

The 400 men and more than 350 tons of equipment were airlifted to Pat Bay in a round-the-clock operation by four Hercules transports.

The giant planes flew 30 nonstop sorties to complete the transfer.

"How will we cool our gambling blood if there's no racing this year at Sandown?" asked the man from Colwood as our Maitre d' Leslie paused at his table.

Les shrugged.

"Perhaps they'll let us run a lottery instead. We could offer odds that Victoria will get another hospital before it gets a convention centre.

"Or we could race a new vocational school against a bridge over Inner Harbor. Or how about district swimming pools pitted against dredging and purifying of the Gorge?"

"I'll bet you your steak is the best in town," smiled Leslie. He always goes for a sure thing.

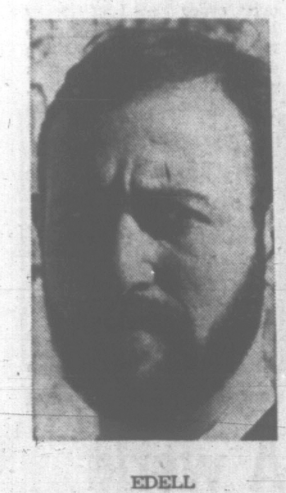
The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Japanese influences were at work, possibly subconsciously, in the mind of its author, speculates Frederick Edell concerning Samuel Beckett's Endgame, which he is directing for a University of Victoria Phoenix Theatre presentation next week.



EDELL
... wide experience

He describes the play as being spare and economical in its structure, suggestive of the Japanese No plays or the highly distilled and precise form of the 17-syllable Japanese haiku.

A fallen petal
Rises to its shaken bough
Ah, a butterfly.

The thought is expressed without embellishment but with extraordinary perception and governed by an extreme discipline.

So in Endgame, says Mr. Edell, Beckett, using much the same theme as he did in Waiting for Godot, has treated it with greater discipline and achieved a refinement of structure that avoids the tangents of the earlier play.

The Campus Players production which begins Tuesday at the Phoenix and continues through Feb. 25 (except Sunday and Monday) will be Mr. Edell's first presentation here.

He will follow it up a few weeks later with a production of Waiting for Godot, for which he has developed some fresh and stimulating ideas.

Off Broadway and on to Sweden

Fred Edell came to Uvic as assistant director in the Theatre Division from a professional staff position with the Omaha Playhouse.

Previous to that he had been with the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis, had directed a number of off-Broadway plays and sojourned in Sweden as assistant director of the Swedish National Theatre and director of community theatre.

He stopped acting professionally about four years ago. Earlier he had run his own stock company in New England in which he both acted and directed.

At one time he was drama critic for the famed Greenwich Village publication, Village Voice.

In directing Endgame, he has responded to the Japanese implication through the shape of the stage and the players' relationship to one another.

He has also used the more obvious affinity with a chess game in character motivations and movement.

The play is in one act. It does not conform to usual theatrical processes or devices but is, as Mr. Edell says, "anti-drama." Or to quote a member of the cast, it is "a play of un-creation."

The youthful-appearing director, who has had opportunity to observe the theatrical scene so closely on both sides of the Atlantic, says that the only real future for an actor is to become a member of a good rep company.

An actor in a long-run play is stuck in a rut, he points out. He has no chance to expand and all kinds of good things slide past him while he is imprisoned within the limitations of a single character.

Thousands of Actors, Few Jobs

Mr. Edell gives you some startling figures. In the United States 94 per cent of the actors are unemployed.

"There are 14,000 registered with Equity," he explains, "and while many of these merely retain their Equity cards out of sentiment, there are still probably between four and five thousand actors looking for jobs."

Contrast with this the fact that there are possibly 25 or 30 rep companies in the States, maintaining somewhere between 10 and 35 actors, and you begin to understand the problem.

Mr. Edell differentiates between "commercial" and "good theatre," the two being, according to him, completely incompatible.

"It is not artistically viable for good theatre to exist without a partial subsidy at least," he maintains.

If Canada desires to create a really fine theatre, he says, she can do no better than to take a leaf out of British and European books.

In Sweden's National Theatre, for example, where some of the world's finest designers, directors and actors work, the highest priced ticket for the most magnificent production costs no more than $2.

And any student can sit in the best seats in the house for 15 cents.

In effect the government picks up the tab at the rate of as much as $12 per ticket in some instances because it believes that every citizen has a right to experience theatre at its most superb.

There is a similar attitude in Britain.

Subsidies should come from a variety of sources aside from the government, such as industrial and private endowments.

Such a situation creates a highly favorable climate for the development of rich indigenous talents.

"The best group of young actors in the world today come from Britain," says Mr. Edell, while stressing that there is still a larger number of good actors in Europe.

State supported national theatres and repertory companies in these countries are able to maintain top quality from every point of view, to present the greatest material, to challenge and excite their audiences.

The contrast between this and the condition of the American theatre where rep companies struggle to ape the inconsequential slickness of Broadway in an effort to make the box office pay the toll, is a distressing one in Fred Edell's view.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Canada's only weekly music publication, R.P.M. Music Weekly, recently announced its annual Canadian awards for 1966.

Leading the country as the top vocal instrumental group was Ottawa's Staccatos, whose single, Let's Run Away was voted the best produced single of 1966.

Following close behind them in the line-up of Canadian talent was the Guess Who group and The Ugly Ducklings.

Other awards named Barry Allen as top male vocalist, Catherine McKinnon as top female vocalist, 3's A Crowd as the best folk group and Gordon Lightfoot as Canada's top folksinger.

The poll was taken among readers of R.P.M. which includes, besides the general public, record companies, advertising agencies, radio stations, record producers, artists and musicians, and record retailers from coast to coast.

TONIGHT

The Music Hall hosts Sonny Terry and Brownie McShee—3 shows 9 p.m., 10:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. In the basement of the Century Inn.

Good Response To Recitals From Students

Meeting with a good response from students, is a series of Tuesday noon recitals in the Education-Arts auditorium at University of Victoria.

The recitals, sponsored by the School of Fine Arts and the Music Committee, have featured to date, harpsichordist Hugh McLean of Vancouver, pianist Robin Wood, and the Amity Singers with Robin Wood and Winifred Scott.

Next Tuesday at 12:30, Vancouver violinist Jack Kessler will present a program with Mr. McLean at the harpsichord.

DISGUISED as her twin brother, Viola (Ann Firbank) woos Lady Olivia (Roberta Maxwell) on behalf of Duke Orsino in a scene from Twelfth Night, to be performed at the Royal Theatre Wednesday by Stratford Festival Company. The company performs the comedy Government Inspector on Tuesday. The play has been made into a movie The Inspector eGneral.

Touring Stratford Players Draw Exceptional Opening Reviews

With opportunities of seeing good professional theatre at zero in Victoria for the past few years, the coming of one of the world's great repertory companies to the Royal Theatre next week, is causing a flurry at the box office.

Advance sale is excellent, reports theatre manager Martin Cave, presaging good houses for the Tuesday and Wednesday performances.

The Stratford Festival Company drew exceptional reviews, even for them, from Eastern Canadian critics gathered at Calgary this week for opening of the first Western tour in its 14-year history.

Productions of Twelfth Night and The Government Inspector were hailed as "glistening," "fresh," "vivid," and in the case of Twelfth Night, even better in the proscenium stage adaptation than in the 1966 thrust stage presentation.

Gogol's The Government Inspector (or as it is better known, The Inspector General) will be performed here on Tuesday, Shakespeare's Twelfth Night on Wednesday.

Trouble with the two-night two-play stand is that Victorians who have the habit of waiting for reviews or word-of-mouth before purchasing tickets, are likely to cheat themselves of a rare delight, particularly if they miss the Gogol comedy.

Anyone who has seen this priceless spoof on the mores and connivings of petty officialdom, knows that it is one of the most brilliant farce-comedies in the theatrical repertoire.

Wise theatre buffs will beak the piggybank and treat themselves to both performances.

Directed by Michael Langham, Stratford's distinguished artistic director for the past 12 years, The Government Inspector will form part of this season's festival program.

BUSY ACTOR

One of Canada's most widely noted and busiest actors, William Hutt plays the central role of the inspector. England and the United States for major engagements.

In New York he appeared with Sir John Gielgud and Irene Worth in Albee's Tiny Alice. With the Bristol Old Vic Company he played James Tyrone in Long Day's Journey into Night, and in London's West End, he appeared in Noel Coward's Waiting in the Wings.

Among the polished company one of the most attractive and gifted is Ann Firbank, who is making her first Stratford Festival appearance as Viola in Twelfth Night, to be seen Wednesday.

She is an actress whose professional credits read like a theatrical who's-who and what's-what.

Miss Firbank trained at the Old Vic Theatre School and then at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London.

After graduation she joined a provincial repertory company and followed this up with an engagement at Stratford-upon-Avon where she understudied Viven Leigh in Sir Laurence Olivier's production of Titus Andronicus.

Appearances in the West End followed and there she took over the leading role in The Reluctant Debutante from Anna Massey.

Since then she has played leading roles in many West End successes. Three seasons ago she toured Canada and the United States with the Royal Shakespeare Company presentation of The Hollow Crown.

At the Royal Court Theatre in London last summer, she played in Their Very Own and and Golden City (a new play by Arnold Wesker) and The Voysey Inheritance.

Miss Firbank's numerous film appearances include Darfilm soon to be released,

The Festival Canada tour is being sponsored in Victoria by the British Columbia Centennial Committee.

VOICE FROM THE GALLERY

Good Dealer Must Have A Great Love for Art

By TONY EMERY

When I was much younger and even more foolish than I am today I used to think of art dealers as bloodthirsty parasites battening on the poor starving artist.

Emery

It was only when I began to haunt the galleries of London and came to know the dealers well that I got an insight into some of their problems, particularly in the days when rents were high and sales were few and far between. In the present era of astronomical art prices it is odd to recall, for instance, a show of Paul Klee's watercolors at the Mayor Gallery in which only four or five were sold out of 30. The prices — I have the catalogue by me — are a uniform one hundred pounds apiece: say $500. Just 20 years ago.

•

I remember gratefully many an afternoon when I have had the old St. George's Gallery to myself and its venerable proprietor, Mrs. Jaray, as cicerone and tutor while we worked through her large stock of unsaleable paintings and drawings.

I wish I could have recorded her running commentary delivered in an accent heavily redolent of her native Vienna (to this day I am inclined to say "Eggsbrezhionismus" although I usually remember to write "Expressionism") as she extolled the merits of artists whose work she couldn't give away: Beckmann, Nolde, Pechstein, Kokoschka, Schiele, Klimt among them.

I came to realize then that a good dealer has to have a great love for his merchandise; that he must cultivate a keen eye for budding promise; and that he must be of impeccable tact and discretion, since artists are by no means the easiest of clients to keep happy.

In addition he must be a capable businessman and an outstanding salesman, able to educate, mesmerise, flatter and satisfy a wide variety of possible purchasers, some of whom may occasionally prove to be extremely knowledgeable.

One of these rare master-dealers is Robert Carpenter, who runs the Collector's Gallery in a large shopping centre at Bellevue, Washington. He took a gamble in locating so far from the centre of Seattle, but the combination of easy accessibility by freeway, unlimited parking space and the attraction of his well-selected shows has produced results to vindicate his judgment; and five minutes in his ebullient company will convince you of his ability to infect his clients with his own enthusiasm for the works he dispenses.

•

The show at present in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is composed of works by artists in Bob Carpenter's "stable." A score of sculptues in bronze by Marvin Herard complements a mixed show of 30 or so paintings and two or three prints and a big tapestry, from the hands of 16 or 17 artists, most of whom are represented by a couple of works.

The first thing that strikes you on a preliminary canter round the centennial wing is the large number of more or less figurative paintings, which comes as something of a surprise these days.

The second surprise is that the non-figurative painting is mainly in one mode or another of Abstract Expressionism: bold (Darlene Patha), meditative (Stephen Bayless) and messy-pretentions (Al Everett). Two paintings announce the arrival of the 1960s in the Seattle area: Philip McCracken (surprise No. 3, since he is a sculptor), Healed-up Sky which shows a Magritte-like wit, and Richard Kirsten's The Yin-Yang Ride.

I would single out Danny Pierce's lithograph and Nell Scott's very handsome Gold Plains, woven of handspun wool and dyed with laborious decoctions of her own gathering; Art Hansen's two big essays in black and white; Ginevra Sloan's De Kooning-esque The Couple; and Jim McGrath's Feather Eyes, a poetic little metaphor of bird-flight, birdtracks and airy plummage. For sheer seductive, sensuous charm, if you will pardon such an oldfashioned expression, the prize must go to William Hixson's still life To This Time, and Ivars Hirss shows two silkscreen prints which reveal an allegiance divided between the Pop-Hard Edge Camp and the earlier New York scene of the 1950s.

Although it is undenialby a little dated, so swift is now the leap from one kind of visual preoccupation to another, it may very well be the show which persuades you that there is something to be said for Rothko and Still and Newman, Gottlieb and Hofmann and Pollock. Marvin Herard's interesting bronzes deserve a piece all to themselves in due course.

MANILA-BORN STAR SINGS HERE SUNDAY

Eleanor Calbes, the charming Manila-born soprano who sings the principal role of Norina in the comic opera, Don Pasquale, will celebrate her 26th birthday in Victoria on Monday.

The vivacious singer, who has also won dancing and acting awards appears with the Canadian Opera Company and Victoria Symphony Orchestra at the Royal Theatre Sunday at 3 and Monday at 8:30 p.m.

Otto-Werner Mueller will conduct the performance.

LOVERS, PARROTS, FAME

THE BERNHARDT BIOGRAPHY

Sarah Believed She Was the World's Best Actress

Cornelia Otis Skinner, MADAME SARAH. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin Co., 1967. $6.95. Reviewed by Ann Saddlemyer.

Even the circumstances of her conception challenged the conventions: she was the illegitimate daughter of a middle-class milliner-turned courtesan and a young law student from Le Havre.

Of Dutch ancestry and proudly Jewish, she became the greatest ambassador France ever boasted. Too thin to be beautiful, with an unruly tangle of reddish-blonde hair, and a frightening tendency to bleed at the mouth, she captivated every man she met—except the one who briefly became her husband.

Addicted to so many lovers no one has been able to keep track or tally, she had only one son (Maurice), by a Belgian aristocrat, and her marriage at 38 to a Greek diplomat-turned-actor was disastrous.

On less private occasions she preferred animals to people, and over the years (though fortunately not at one time) her guests were startled by a menagerie containing two gold-encrusted turtles, four pumas, a cheetah, parrots, innumerable dogs, seven chameleons, a Louisiana alligator, a monkey (named Darwin), a baby tigress, an American wildcat, a lynx, a sleeping boa constrictor ("to rest my feet on after meals") and a caged lion.

Lavish with her affections, she had an equally undisciplined temper and bursts of violent anger would be followed by extravagant acts of contrition. At the height of her fame she dictated both contract and salary, yet was frequently bankrupt and constantly in debt. Queen of Racine, Sardou, Rostand, and Victor Hugo, she believed herself the greatest actress in the world (and was), but at the beginning of her career was dismissed by the Comedie Francaise and all her life suffered from such miserable stage-fright she would have to be pushed on for her cue. Mistress over death both on and off stage (her coffin was prepared for early occupancy when she was just 16; she slept in it for relaxation), life was a constant passion to be indulged and squandered but never wasted or begrudged. The theatre thrilled to the way she died (her most famous death scene were in La Dame aus Camelias, Phedre, and Hernani); The public was fascinated by the life she lived. "La Divine," "The Bernhardt," or simply, "Sarah," for over 60 years she reigned the Eighth Wonder of the World, providing eloquent matter for both press and pulpit. She is more legendary than real, less human than divine. Even her art, described by Max Beerbohm as "Lurid supernaturalness," escapes definition. "Like the author of Le Misanthrope," declared one playwright, "Sarah is beyond all classification."

There have been other books about Sarah Bernhardt, most of them succumbing too easily to partisanship, swayed by mystiques or malice. Bernhardt's own memoirs are characteristically even more unreliable. Cornelia Otis Skinner's full-scale biography is the first in English in 20 years, and surpasses all others in range, research and readability. Daughter of an accomplished actor, herself an actress and monologuist who has delighted Victoria audiences, witty author of many books including the ever-fresh Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, Miss Skinner brings both insight and sympathy to her study of France's tempestuous Sarah.

Hers was an age of exciting showwomen and exquisite actresses. Italy paid homage to Eleanora Duse, England to Ellen Terry and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Ireland thrilled to Maud Gonne's appeals to patriotism.

But the fascination of Sarah Bernhardt outlives them all, even as her throbbing, leonine style for a time engulfed the poetic sumplicity of Duse's acting. Duse rose to stardom through the productions of her playwright lover Gabriel D'Annunzio; the delightful Ellen Terry required the partnership of Henry Irving; Mrs. Pat played her best under Bernard Shaw's stormy direction; Maud Gonne lives now only in Yeats' love poetry. Bernhardt's magic was hers alone—in the panther-like grace of her movements, the sculptured extravagance of her gestures, the superb sense of timing, and, above all, in the magnificent Voice in which, wrote Lytton Strachey, "there was more than gold, there was thunder and lightning, there was heaven and hell."

We learn of the young girl's lonely, moody, unhealthy childhood, unloved and often ignored by her mother, shunted from the rough peasant cottage of her Breton nurse to an equally careless demi-monde aunt, finally to boarding school and eventually to a convent, where the young enthusiast gave way to her first passion, for the Holy Ghost.

But shortly after she left school, persuaded by two of her mother's fashionable clientele (the novelist Alexandre Dumas and Duc de Morny, half-brother to Louis-Napoleon), she unwillingly considered the stage.

She studied at the Conservatoire, was admitted to the Comedie Francaise but left under a well-publicized cloud (the first of many) when she physically attacked one of the veteran share-holding performers.

With this blow, Sarah's public life began. From now on she moved from role to lover, gradually gaining momentum until she produced a son and became the Goddess of the Left Bank.

●

She gained influential friends of her own—the aging George Sand, the politician Leon Gambetta, Gustave Flaubert, Emile Zola, Victor Hugo, Francois Coppee, Louis Pasteur, Charles Gounod, Henry Irving, Oscar Wilde, the Prince of Wales; she performed before the Emperor. During the Great Siege of Paris she turned her current theatre into a field hospital and efficiently served as head nurse.

She took up painting and sculpture, but her taste was poor. She returned to the Comedie Francaise and established her Court. During the Paris Exposition she shocked her conservative directors of the House of Moliere by going up in a balloon; the following year she took London by storm, as later, leading her own company, she was to conquer America and eventually the world. She made nine trips to America in all, including four "farewell tours", She did not care for New York, loved Boston, and, unlike Samuel Butler, approved of Montreal.

But her greatest thrill in the New World seems to have been touring Texas in a tent. Eventually, after she had gained glory throughout the world, her cautious nation awarded her the Legion d'Honneur.

Careless as her private life had been, tasteless as much of her public exhibitionism became, Bernhardt the artist remained untarnished. (Though not always uncriticized: Max Beerbohm's youthful puritanism was shocked by her performance as Hamlet; Bernard Shaw's older irascibility was roused by her blatant showmanship and "Sardoodledum".) Once she became an actor-manager, she designed her own costumes and supervised their manufacture, attended personally to all details of box office and house management, oversaw all production details.

Even while travelling the "Bernhardt Express" across the United States, she would constantly rehearse new plays, review and revise older productions. Never satisfied with a performance, she worked herself tirelessly. For a while she taught, but, as always, scorned Tradition, insisting on sincerity and self-discipline.

To a young student who objected that she did not "feel" a part as Madame had instructed, she firmly replied, "If you are going to be an actress, my girl, you've got to be able to do it that way or any other way!" Oscar Wilde wrote Salome for her in French, but the censors banned it.

●

Once she herself contemplated learning English so that, like a more recent French tragedienne she might act Shakespeare's own words (though doubtless Sarah would have insisted on the title role in Macgeth). But nothing came of the idea when she announced to her would-be instructor that only 45 minutes a day would be available for the lessons — at 2 a.m.

In old age, when the grand tours were replaced by Music Hall appearances, lectures and recitals, the magic (if only in the audience's memory) remained; so did the energy, for at 66 she was still hiring leading men who could double as lovers. At 65 she played the 19-year-old Joan of Arc and got away with it; during the First World War, in her fifties and minus a leg, she recited to the troops at the front. She continued to act until her death in 1922, true to her own defiant motto, "Quand meme," "In spite of everything."

But Madame Sarah, despite the subject, remains a biography only. The silent films, the early recordings, the portraits and the memoirs cannot evoke the magic of her presence nor recapture the thrilling voice.

After almost 350 pages (including a bibliography and list of productions) one is still greedy for more, and much of the sketchy social background of the era could willingly be sacrificed for more complete descriptions of the actress at work.

●

It is a pity that no one preserved Bernhardt in her most famous role as Racine's Phedre, in the way that Gordon Craig lovingly lingers over every detail of Henry Irving's opening scene in The Bells. As she would doubtless prefer it, the actress remains the myth of her own creation.

Novel Of The Heart

THE KNOCK AT MIDNIGHT, Charity Blackstock, Hodder and Stoughton Ltd., $4.90. Reviewed By ANTHONY JENKINS

On the death of her father, Margaret Ramsay — one of those daughters who slide "by imperceptible degrees into taking on the responsibilities that no one else wants" — emerges into life at 35.

Anxious to taste her new freedom, she goes on holiday to Hungary where she finally discards the illusions that still linger about her charming exfiance and experiences at first hand the human suffering behind the facade of, Nazi power in the Europe of 1938.

Miss Blackstock writes with a refreshing sense of proportion about the feelings of her first person narrator, "self-pity is always indecent and absurd," and the first half of the book moves forward in a tough plain style enlivened with a witty turn of phrase.

The author frequently insulates her narrative with remarks that reveal her awareness of the dangers of a romantic plot in the tired world of 1966: "Rupert seems now a silly sort of name, the kind of thing one meets in romantic novels."

Yet this is a romantic novel. Except for Margaret herself, the characters are very thinly drawn: of the two men in her life, Rupert Cash is dashing, handsome and evil, Crouner Gunn — an untidy, irreverent middle-class type — is indulgently presented as an attractive yet naughty boy.

The long arm of coincidence stretches everywhere: the exfiance just happens to be on the heroine's train, while Mr. Gunn has the surprisingly convenient habit of carrying his dead daughter's passport with him — and there hangs the tale.

The ensuing adventure is too fragile to sustain either of the book's two themes; the heroine's initiation into life and the political nuances of pre-war Europe become subordinated to the mechanics of the plot.

As Margaret retreats from her continental encounter, the tough wit is sentimentalized into a supreme virtue in itself, British reasonableness, and the book finally turns mawkish: ". . . when we gazed on the darling, beautiful British sailors all around us,, when we trooped down to buy ourselves cups of tea — it was a miracle, I could have hugged the whole crew." The Knock at Midnight is a romantic "novel of the heart"; one wonders why Miss Blackstock should pretend so hard that it is not.

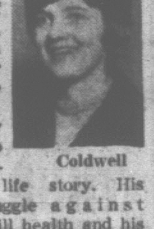
LOOKING AT BOOKS

Keats Wrote Best Lines Under Influence of Love

By JOAN COLDWELL

On February 23, 1821, John Keats died in Rome. He was 26 years old. All his poems, among them some of the greatest of English odes, were written in the four years before his death.



Coldwell

It is only too easy to sentimentalize Keats' life story. His constant struggle against poverty and ill health and his brief burst of poetic activity under the shadow of death too frequently elicit a kind of gushy sympathy that is an insult to Keats' proud independence and his sharp sense of fun.

Even his contemporaries tended to romanticize their encounters with him: two years before he died Keats shook hands with Coleridge, who claimed to have then whispered to a bystander "There is death in that hand."

And there was Fanny Brawne—never had romantic lady so unfortunate a name. Biographers have not been able to agree on whether Fanny was a heartless flirt or a genuine lover, but there is no question of the depth of Keats' own passion, nor of the releasing influence it had on his poetic powers: "For myself I know not how to express my devotion to so fair a form: I want a brighter word than bright, a fairer word than fair. I almost wish we were butterflies and liv'd but three summer days—three such days with you I could fill with more delight than fifty common years could ever contain."

Speculation about Fanny Brawne occupies a good part of the two biographies of Keats that appeared practically simultaneously in 1963, the first full-length biographies since Amy Lowell's in 1925. Both of them are just out in paperback. From Macmillan comes Aileen Ward's John Keats: The Making of a Poet, which deservedly won the National Book Award and, in England, the Duff Cooper Memorial Prize.

It is a biography built upon extensive researches, exploration of Keats-country and personal intuition. This last gives the book both its peculiarly compelling quality and an occasional sense of strain—one feels sometimes that Miss Ward is obsessed by the psychological (as in her interpretation of Keats' reaction to his mother's death) and that she accepts unproved facts because they complete a satisfying pattern. But the book is never dull and it would be fascinating reading even if (heaven forbid) one had no interest in Keats' poetry.

The worst nightmare of scholars became reality for Aileen Ward when she learned at the last moment that someone else was about to publish a biography of Keats.

But Walter Jackson Bate's John Keats is totally different in outlook and tone, much more academic in relating Keats' thought to the aesthetic theories of his times and in showing more of the technical craftsmanship in the verse. Professor Bate's style is ponderous, but he speaks with authority and is more illuminating than Miss Ward in interpretation of Keats' letters.

At $3.00 in an Oxford paperback, Bate's John Keats is better value both for bulk and depth, but $2.50 for the Aileen Ward book will buy pleasanter reading and a more memorable example of the biographer's art.

Everybody Fancies Himself an Expert

MODERN WORLD, by Lord Robbins; Macmillan Company of Canada Ltd., Toronto; 1966; pps. xiii and 157; $5.00.

Reviewed by S. W. Jackman

The groves of academe were once an enclosed and private forest inhabited largely by semi-ectoplasmic beings whose contact with reality was often relatively slight.

Now however, all is changed; the private forest is a public park and everyone is able to walk about freely criticizing the permanent denizens, semi-yahoos to many, and the arrangement of the habitat.

Education is everybody's business and everyone fancies himself an expert. There is much in the public's mind and view to confirm the old adage "Those who can, do, those who can't, teach."

The modern university is no longer the haven of the ancient languages, the seven liberal arts and the pure sciences. Everything is considered as being a subject for a degree course. Consequently the old attitudes must be changed and the public and the faculties educated.

This set of lectures by the distinguished economist Lord Robbins attempts to essay the wider spheres of modern universities. The lectures cover such diverse topics as fine arts, recruitment of technicians, the role of government and the need for academic modernization.

Essays taken out of their original context often lack the original vitality but these essays by Lord Robbins all read well.

They are not popular in style or expression. They should not necessarily be read one after another but perused carefully and discreetly.

In a province such as British Columbia, where education and its concommitant problems are expanding at an astounding rate, the suggestions of a perceptive and able scholar may give much useful advice.

For the citizen, the scholar and the teacher Lord Robbins has some sage admonitions and these should be heeded if we wish our educational institions to maintain their high standards of excellence which have existed in the past.

Out In March

The autobiography of Bertrand Russell will be published in Britain in March. Lord Russell, 94, deposited the manuscript with the publishers over 10 years ago on the understanding that it would not be released until after his death. He has now given permission for the publication of his story of three passions—for women, for knowledge and of pity for human suffering.

LINES ON THE MERMAID TAVERN

Souls of Poets dead and gone,
What Elysium have ye known,
Happy field or mossy cavern,
Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?
Have ye tippled drink more fine
Than my host's Canary wine?
Or are fruits of Paradise
Sweeter than those dainty pies
Of venison? O generous food!
Drest as though bold Robin Hood
Would, with his maid Marian,
Sup and bowse from horn to can.

I have heard that on a day
Mine host's signboard flew away,
Nobody knew whither, till
An astrologer's old quill
To a sheepskin gave the story,
Said he saw you in your glory,
Underneath a new old sign
Sipping beverage divine,
And pledging with contented smack
The Mermaid in the Zodiac.

Souls of Poets dead and gone,
What Elysium have ye known,
Happy field or mossy cavern,
Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?

John Keats, 1795-1821.

LINES SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN ADDRESSED TO FANNY BRAWNE

This living hand, now warm and capable
Of earnest grasping, would, if it were cold
And in the icy silence of the tomb,
So haunt thy days and chill thy dreaming nights
That thou wouldst wish thine own heart dry of blood
So in my veins red life might stream again,
And thou be conscience—calm'd—see here it is—
I hold it towards you.

John Keats, 1795-1821.

Sacred Cows Under Fire

PERATIVE by Robert Ardrey. Atheneum Press, New York, 1966. $8.25.

Reviewed by M. C. Squire

Robert Ardrey, author of the controversial African Genesis in 1961, is again taking pot-shots at sacred cows.

His latest book The Territorial Imperative attacks so many of our entrenched beliefs that it will probably provoke a storm which will dwarf the impassioned outcries against his earlier book.

Drawing heavily on recent findings in the field of ethology — the study of animal behaviour — Ardrey suggests that man is much more deeply influenced by his instincts than psychologists and sociologists would have us believe.

The Territorial Imperative devotes much space to the animals which instinctively defend their territory from invaders. Man also is a territorial animal who will fight to repel those who attack his home ground.

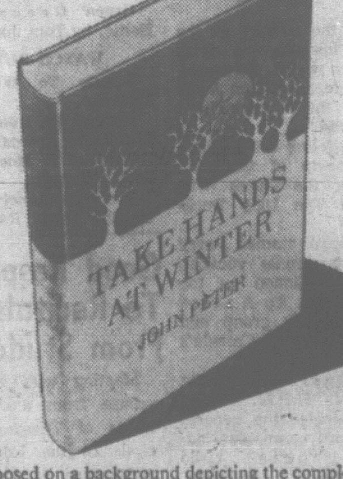
EATON'S—Books, Main Floor

A sensitive and engrossing gallery of characters, against a setting of Canadian prairies in winter.



Superimposed on a background depicting the complex growing pains of Canada, is the story of a young Englishman, David Gilpin, who has come to the land of his dreams only to find himself enmeshed in the coils of reality. The vivid setting is a snow-swept midwestern Canadian city where the romantic young man is initiated into mature life by becoming involved with the two women in his landlord's life, a situation climaxed by the necessity of making a decision between love and loyalty. The author, John Peter, was born in South Africa but has spent most of the past sixteen years on the Canadian prairies, the locale of this second novel. Now at bookstores. $5.95.

HOPES HIGH FOR SPACE 'BULLET'

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Science Writer

Out of rhush-hush research there is emerging a vehicle touted privately by U.S. Air Force experts as "the greatest innovation since the missile." It looks like a bullet cut in half lengthwise, and soon may carry spacemen almost anywhere they want to go and back to any airport they choose.

Both military and civilian scientists have worked on it for years, finally coming up with a shape able to fly in either the atmosphere or space, on peaceful or hostile missions.

It's a wingless wedge that is being designed to:

● Rocket into orbit to resupply friendly satellites, destroy enemy spacecraft, rescue stranded astronauts or become a satellite itself.

● Drop from any point in orbit, manoeuvre over and land in any country in the world — a feat impossible for the present capsules of the U.S. Mercury, Gemini and Apollo space programs.

Its adaptability to many functions means economical mass production and, as the high-rocketing X-15 experimental plane from which much of its technology was learned, it is re-usable.

This new shape is called a "lifting body" meaning it gets aerodynamic life from the contour of its body instead of from wings as do conventional aircraft.

It evolved slowly in wind tunnels as scientists labored for a design without wings — which would be torn off by re-entry into the atmosphere from a 17,500-mile-an-hour orbit — but with still enough "lift" to keep it from falling like a stone.

From dozens of tested shapes ranging from spheres to teardrops emerged one: A bullet cut in half lengthwise. Strangely enough, flight tests have shown it flies equally well with either the flat side or the rounded side down.

Pound for pound, it has more room inside for passengers and cargo than winged craft. It cannot manoeuvre tightly at low speeds and altitudes, but its small fins and rudders give it enough controllability for safe landings. In space it is guided be reaction jets.

To air force planners, development of the lifting body means they can begin to think about moving into space on the mass scale with which they now move in the atmosphere.

To civilian scientists the lifting body means more space knowledge at less cost with reusable vehicles.

Four years ago a full-scale plywood lifting body, the M2F1, was towed to 12,000 feet, cut loose and flown to a safe landing by space agency pilot Milton Thompson. Last December a flat-side-down version, the HL-10, got its first drop test and pilot Bruce Peterson said they handled equally well.

Six air force test flights showed that properly-built lifting bodies could re-enter the atmosphere without being destroyed in the heat generated by air friction.

By 1970 air force scientists expect to produce an advanced Manoeuvring Re-entry Vehicle (MRV), to be launched by the most powerful missile yet, the triple-barrelled Titan 3-C.

The first flights will be unmanned. If they are successful, planners then will decide whether to put one man in it or go ahead with proposals for craft large enough for two or even four men.

CARRINGTON
. . . 'grubby manoeuvre'

Angry Peers Back Away

LONDON (CP) — The House of Lords decided Thursday not to cut its own aristocratic throat, but not without showing a flash of the sort of temper and temperament that sometimes makes it Britain's best debating chamber.

The Lords, where Conservatives hold a heavy majority over Labor supporters, decided not to insist on certain amendments to a bill concerning local government in London already rejected by the Labor majority in the House of Commons.

Before reaching that decision, however, Opposition Leader Lord Carrington, a Conservative, qualified the bill as a "mean and shabby little piece of gerrymandering of which any government should be profoundly ashamed." But to insist on the amendments was to stake the very existence of the House.

MORE AT STAKE

More was at stake than a single bill in the debate, and all sides in the chamber knew it.

Lord Carrington, a former high-ranking Conservative cabinet minister, stressed that if the bill had truly involved a matter of urgent national importance, he and his Tory colleagues would have opposed it—no matter what the consequences.

For those who needed reminding, Carrington said he believed the Lords would frustrate a Labor government only once. When they did, the Commons would make sure that the Lords was abolished altogether or lose its power to delay legislation which has passed the lower house.

"One should be completely and utterly convinced of the importance of an issue before staking the future of the House on it," he said. ". . . I have come to the conclusion that this is not such an issue."

But the bill itself he condemned at lengthy as a "grubby political manoeuvre."

The Earl of Longford, government leader in the Lords, accused Carrington of "play-acting" at being indignant. Other Labor peers argued that, even if the Tory peers disagreed, they had made their objections known to the House of Commons and the Commons had rejected them.

The debate — and decision had been awaited anxiously for some time. There had been talk that the Tory peers would "make a stand."

The bill provided for a delay of one year in elections for the Greater London council—a sort of metropolitan government for the capital—so a system of alternate years could be introduced for elections to the council and to individual borough councils within London.

The Tories accused Labor of wanting to continue their current majority on the council until the political climate looks better. The government insisted it needed the delay to get the election system organized.

COLD WEATHER STOPS CP SERVICE ONE DAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said Friday extremely cold weather on the Prairies and in eastern Canada has resulted in cancellation of CPR train service in and out of Vancouver today.

He said there will be no incoming train from the East and the resulting shortage of equipment in Vancouver has forced cancellation of the eastbound Canadian, which usually leaves at 7:30 p.m.

The CPR spokesman said normal daily service is expected to resume Sunday.

SEEK LEGISLATION

Saanich Initiates Action on Sewers

Saanich council took the first step Friday night towards amalgamating all its sewer areas into a common utility.

In an unanimous decision, council authorized its officials to seek the necessary enabling legislation at the current session of the provincial legislature.

This will allow council to submit a detailed proposal to property owners later. Public approval is necessary before the utility can be implemented.

Municipal officials, particularly the engineering and planning staffs, will start work shortly on proposals which are expected to require much discussion before being put into bylaw form for a vote.

It is not expected that a bylaw will be ready for the electorate much before the end of this year.

Several councillors made the point that Friday night's decision does not mean automatic approval at a later date. This would depend on what is decided.

Coun. Leslie Passmore said council will have to be unanimous at a later date for a bylaw to succeed because the recent stwerage report said $6 million was needed for trunk lines alone in Saanich.

While it was not the main point of the meeting, much discussion centred around possible approaches to the details of amalgamating the present separately-financed sewerage areas.

Coun. Passmore suggested the sewerage utility encompass the present sewered area plus an outer area designated as "X" which would be sewered in the near future.

Charges would be assessed against both areas on a per-foot frontage basis, under this suggestion.

Comptroller John Tribe said 90 per cent of Saanich residents would be in the two areas.

Engineer Neville Life defined the "X" area as basically everything up to Northridge, Marigold-Swan Lake, Ascot-Epsom to the top end of McRae Estate and up to Mount Douglas Park.

FRED HUME
. . . varied career

Former Vancouver Mayor, Top Sports Figure Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Hume, a former mayor of Vancouver and neighboring New Westminster and a prominent sports figure for years, died in a private hospital Friday.

Hume, 74, was former owner of Vancouver Canucks and New Westminster Royals of the Western Hockey League.

Mr. Hume sold the Vancouver club two seasons ago.

Mr. Hume was born in Sapperton, a New Westminster suburb, and started work as a telephone lineman for the city of New Westminster and the B.C. Telephone Co.

He left the telephone company to start a business that later grew into the largest electrical contracting firm in Western Canada.

Mr. Hume's first step into politics came in 1922 when he topped the aldermanic polls in New Westminster. He served as an alderman for 10 years before running for mayor in 1932.

He lost the election but gained enough political know-how to win the mayoralty race the next year, a position he held until 1942 when he retired.

Eight years later friends persuaded him to run for mayor of Vancouver. He won easily and kept office until 1958 when he was defeated by Tom Alsbury, now an alderman.

Mr. Hume's interest in sports kept the Vancouver Canuck franchise alive.

He dug deep into his own pocket to keep the club active and it is estimated he spent $500,000 to satisfy his interests. He sold the club for $600,000.

Hume was also a lacrosse enthusiast. He was the first man to import lacrosse players from the east to play on the coast.

In 1966 he was made a freeman of Vancouver in honor of his long service to the city.

He is survived by his wife Belva, a son Howard and daughter Mrs. J. C. Page.

POLICE CHIEF

Public Inquiry Demanded

PORT MOODY (CP)—Allen Kupkee, whose resignation as chief of the Port Moody police force sparked the resignations of the rest of the force and its civilian staff, called Friday for a public inquiry into the operation of the police department.

But Mayor Al Howe, chairman of the police commission which Chief Kupkee blamed for his resignation after complaining of interference from commission members, said he will advertise immediately for a new chief.

He said the chief's resignation has been accepted and "if the rest of the force wish to follow, and it appears they are firm in this regard, then we may hire an entire new force. If not, then the RCMP are only a phone call to the attorney-general away."

Said Mayor Howe: "The fact is that the commission has never enjoyed a proper rapport with the police chief's office. His replies to our questions on the running of the force have always involved threats of resignation if we interfere or demand to be informed."

More than 300 Port Moody residents signed a petition asking for the retention of the chief, six policemen and three civilians.

Despite the resignations, all have remained on the job and said they will do so until either the RCMP takes over or replacements are hired.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Control of Bank Policies Big Interest of Citizens

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The B.C. government has been challenged to make some assurances regarding control of the newly incorporated Bank of British Columbia.

Sensing public misgivings about the control of its policies in view of current policy dispute, MLA Alan Williams (Liberal — West Vancouver - Howe Sound) asked Premier Bennett in the legislature this week to answer some questions.

KENT

He noted the participation of the premier and other representatives including Attorney-General Robert Bonner during committee hearings that led to federal incorporation in December.

Mr. Williams submitted that with the bank's head office in Vancouver, its directors residents of B.C. and its shares offered to B.C. citizens, together with advantages brought by western-orientation, the government must be greatly interested.

But there had been no comment about the Bank of British Columbia in the throne speech, and Mr. Williams wondered if there had been any change in government attitude.

* * *

The public, he said, is extra-anxious to get in on the development of the bank as shown by the interest in share subscriptions.

Meanwhile, there has been the controversy between Westbank president James Coyne and chairman Sinclair Stevens. Mr. Coyne's view that Parliament should ensure western control for the institution conflicted with that of Mr. Stevens, who represented some of the eastern interests involved.

(On Friday Mr. Stevens resigned as chairman of Westbank.)

Mr. Williams is of the feeling that this conflict may shake the confidence of "those whose investment is so important to our bank, and as the government has taken such interest in the birth of this venture, I would wonder what steps it will initiate to ensure that problems with other institutions do not affect our bank."

He asked who will be the president and what is his standing in the banking community; what large financial institutions are seeking investment in the bank and which are being sought as shareholders; what interconnection there will be between these institutional investors and those of existing banks or financial houses.

"In short, how independent and how western-oriented will the Bank of British Columbia be?"

The answers, he submits, are of outstanding significance to the bank's success.

* * *

And speaking of Westbank, one of its directors will visit Victoria next week as president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada.

He is Tom Brown, of the Vancouver firm of Odlum, Brown and T. B. Read Ltd., who will be making a stop here as part of his 1967 tour of IDA divisions.

Victoria bank debits for January showed a substantial increase over the same month a year ago.

Canadian Bankers' Association reports an account debit total of $426.9 million last month compared with $317.9 million in January, 1966, and $495 million for December, 1966.

Former Victoria public information officer with B.C. Forest Service, Dave Monk, 46, has been made director of the federal labor department's PR and information service in Ottawa.

He had been director of information and technical services for the Canadian forestry department after leaving Victoria.

Western Mines Ltd. expects to make its first shipment of ore concentrates from Discovery Terminals, at Campbell River, sometime next week.

The Myra Falls operation which started up on a production basis in December has been pouring out about 190 tons of concentrate daily from more than 800 tons of ore per day.

Its Buttle Lake mill output of zinc, copper and bulk lead-zinc concentrates will go to the U.S.

Cryogenic Enterprises Ltd. was to have Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan to open its Richmond plant officially today.

The fifth plant of its kind and first in Canada, it is liquifying the natural gas for shipment by tanker to Squamish where it is being distributed as domestic gas.

Success of the venture could open the way to further local distribution and export markets.

Bank Accounts Debits in Gain

MONTREAL (CP)— Debits to Canadian bank accounts in January totalled $49,789,300,000, a decrease from December but a substantial increase over January of 1966, says the Canadian Bankers Association.

The figure for December was $49,904,800,000 and for January of last year $41,350,800,000.

Debits represent money withdrawn from deposit accounts other than federal government accounts in chartered banks.

Tax Change For Bell, B.C. Phone

OTTAWA (CP) — An income tax change long sought by Bell Telephone Co. and B.C. Telephones Ltd. was announced Friday by Finance Minister Sharp.

Both companies will be freed from an order in force since 1958 that forbade them to employ their deferred tax reserve as an expense in determining rates and charges.

Before 1958, both privately-owned systems claimed the maximum capital cost allowances permitted under the Income Tax Act. They paid into their tax reserves the difference between this maximum and the actual depreciation recorded on their books.

But since 1958, they have claimed only their actual depreciation against income tax, and have paid substantially more tax than previously. In addition, they have not had the use of funds in a deferred tax reserve.

The practice of using a maximum capital cost allowance is permitted for other companies and Friday's statement said the privilege should not be denied the telephone companies.

The order is to be revoked as of 1967.

Talks Continue By Mine-Mill

EDMONTON (CP)—A spokesman for the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union in Canada said today discussion was continuing on a pact announced recently by Mine-Mill and the United Steelworkers of America.

Ray Stevenson of Toronto, Mine-Mill public relations director, said no limit had been placed on the length or number of speeches by delegates to a leadership conference.

Car Plants Workers Laid Off

DETROIT (AP) — Two major U.S. auto producers announced Friday that plans for production cuts for the next few weeks will make idle some 7,800 workers.

Chrysler Corp. disclosed a reduction in operations at three Detroit-area plants will result in 5,800 workers being laid off, while Ford said it will put 2,000 workers out of jobs.

General Motors said it had no production plans to release at this time. GM, world's largest auto maker, cut deeply into its original production schedules in both December and January.

While announcing the layoffs, Chrysler said its preliminary schedules call for a total of 117,500 cars, 33,000 fewer than last March.

Ford said its March output would be approximately 24 per cent below a year ago, while February's planned output of 155,000 cars and 44,000 trucks will be about 19 per cent below the February total a year ago.

The firm announced plans to build about 183,000 passenger cars and 45,000 trucks in its plants during March, figures about 74,000 units below its production a year ago.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ford of Canada Ltd. has announced here the indefinite layoff of 95 employees of its axle and transmission plant.

A spokesman said the layoff "would being employment into line with passenger car production schedules."

He said the employment of those in the foundry and engine plants here would not be affected.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced in Oshawa Friday it was creating 150 new jobs in Windsor at its trim plant operations by shifting an automatic upholstery operation to Windsor from Oshawa.

Pay Hikes Average $400

VANCOUVER (CP)—Annual increases ranging from $400 to $475 have been awarded B.C.'s 17,500 school teachers for the 1967 term, Des Grady, director of economic welfare for the B.C. Teachers' Federation, said Friday.

Teachers with a minimum of two year's training had their minimum salary raised an average of $400 to $4,500 and saw their maximum rate jumped $450 to $6,800.

At the other end of the scale teachers with six years' university training had their minimum salary raised $550 to $6,700 and their maximum scale raised $742 to $10,582.

Mr. Grady said that 44 per cent of the teachers had their salaries determined by arbitration.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Investors Experience Lean Pickings

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Investors had meagre pickings on Canada's stock markets this week as prices declined in most major sections.

At Toronto the industrial index, key indicator of the market's performance, was off .44 to 160.67, following the trend at New York.

Brokers said the market was due to weaken after sharp gains last month.

They said there has been formidable resistance at the 162 level of the industrial average where there has been a moderate supply of stock for sale.

This lack of buying pressure was reflected in the trading figures as only 15,034,000 shares changed hands compared with 16,524,000 last week. At Montreal, volume was 4,417,000 compared with 3,647,000.

Dome Petroleum caught the market by surprise at mid-week when it ran wild on rumors of a takeover bid.

The stock jumped 5⅝ to 46⅝ after touching a high of 48½.

Brokers said rumors circulated around Bay Street that two U.S. companies — Cities Service Co. and Sinclair Oil Corp.—were bidding to take over the company.

DENY RUMORS

However a spokesman for Dome denied the rumors and added that he knew of no reason for the stock's sudden surge.

Provo Gas, which shares holdings with Dome in northwestern Alberta, dipped 10 cents to 5.25.

As a result of Dome's jump, the western oil index climbed 3.67 to 140.21.

Among other oils, Home B and Canadian Superior added 1¼ each at 25 and 31¾, Banff ⅞ at 14⅝, Hudson's Bay 1⅜ at 28⅝ while Scurry - Rainbow backed off 1 to 20¼.

Famous Players caused most of the stir among industrials as it moved up 2 to 36.

The company announced it had accepted in principle an offer from Gulf and Western Industries Corp. of New York to acquire all remaining outstanding Famous Players shares.

Gulf and Western now hold abut 51 per cent of Famous Players' 1,737,072 outstanding shares.

Famous Players also increased its quarterly dividend 2½ to 30 cents a share.

Falconbridge advanced 3⅝ to 93 and Beaver Lumber 3 to 38 after the company announced net earnings for 1966 totalling $2,771,000 compared with $2,286,000 in 1965.

Alcan and Bell Telephone dropped 1⅛ to 34⅞ and 48⅝ and B. C. Forest 1 to 23.

Banks were higher as investors waited for a rash of share-splitting by the chartered banks when the new bank act comes into force.

Nova Scotia gained 1 to 69¾, Toronto-Dominion ½ to 63 and Montreal ⅝ to 61⅛. Imperial-Commerce eased ¼ to 65.

Pine Point highlighted base-metal activity as the stock jumped 3 to 54⅝. The company's 1966 earnings were $34,200,000 or $7.57 a share compared with $22,132,000 or $5.56 in 1965.

Denison tumbled 1¾ to 53¾. Hudson Bay ½ to 66¼ and Noranda ¼ to 58½.

On the speculative side, d'Eldona advanced 25 cents to 1.62 on 596,000 shares while PCE Explorations dropped 11 to 48 cents on 707,000.

On index, golds fell .85 to 151.74 and base metals .96 to 90.

At Montreal, industrials were up .05 to 161.49. Utilities were off 1 to 137.91, banks .25 to 121.21 and papers 2.06 to 117.89.

WESTERN PLANT PLANNED

Alcan to Enter Pre-Fab House Field

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four cities are being considered as site for a western plant to produce factory-assembled homes that will sell for $10,000.

A spokesman for Alcan Aluminum Ltd. said the company is considering Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg as factory sites.

Alcan now is building its first plant, in Toronto, and this is scheduled to start turning out the factory homes this fall. A second plant for the east will start production in Montreal in late 1968.

The company now is searching for the site of a plant in the west, which might be in production in two or three years depending on market conditions, said R. T. Rudd, public relations manager of Alcan Design Homes Ltd., an Alcan subsidiary.

Based on the Toronto installation, plants will cost an estimated $2,000,000 and employ 500 workers on two shifts at peak capacity.

Alcan president Fraser W. Bruce recently announced his company is entering the field of factory-assembled homes. It will sell three and four-bedroom homes, of 1,100 and 1,200 square feet, completely erected at the site, and partially furnished, for about $10,000 on the buyers lot.

CELLAR, GARAGE EXTRA

The houses will be sold on 30-year mortgages at 6 per cent interest. Down payments will range from $950 to $1,200 and monthly payments from $75 to $95.

In addition to providing his own lot, the buyer must pay extra for a cellar and garage, if desired. Shipping costs will average $1 a mile from the plant.

Eight prototypes already have been built in Toronto. Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. approved design and construction, said Mr. Rudd.

"But it will be two years at the earliest, possibly three, before we're operatin in Western Canada," Mr. Rudd said. But once the first western plant goes into production, market studies indicate additional plants will soon be constructed in other western cities.

Figures provided by the Economic Council of Canada show there was a shortage of 240,000 housing units in Canada last year, he said.

"Our first plant will produce about 100 new homes a month, double that if we put on an extra shift. This will satisfy only a small part of the demand."

Mr. Rudd said Alcan doesn't expect to be alone in the low-cost factory-assembled field for long.

The one-storey homes will be constructed at the plant in two 12-foot sections which will be bolted together at the site.

Furnishings will include washer, refrigerator, stove, dishwasher and clothes dryer, plus wall-width carpeting in the living room.

Meany, Reuther Split Wide Open

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—AFL - CIO President George Meany plans prompt action to replace Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, on the labor federation's ruling executive council, it was learned today.

Meany, irked at Reuther's attack on AFL - CIO leadership, will brush aside the attempts of peacemakers to patch up the quarrel between the two, it was learned.

Previous reports among union leaders gathering for the 13,500,000-member federation's executive council meeting had indicated the possibility of putting off a decision on whether to replace Reuther, who resigned, until it became clear whether Reuther will completely pull the auto workers out of the federation.

Reuther, who joined Meany 11 years ago in the historic merger of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, sharply attacked Meany's leadership on all fronts, including foreign policy, organizing of new workers, economics, civil rights and bargaining tactics.

Although Meany has been in a jesting mood about Reuther's harsh criticisms, it was learned today that the 72-year-old federation president is serious about electing a replacement for Reuther on the 29-member council.

Meany will formally open the council meeting here Monday.

CHICAGO (AP)—United Auto Workers locals in the Chicago area have approved a proposal to disaffiliate with the AFL-CIO.

Local UAW leaders representing 60,000 members and 55 locals gave unanimous approval to a resolution favoring a break from the Chicago Federation of Labor-Industrial Union Council, the local AFL-CIO body.

The resolution, which proposed formation of a Chicago-area UAW council, also requested a vote of all members on whether to continue affiliation with the Illinois Federation of Labor.

The vote would be counted before the UAW conference convenes in Springfield, Ill., April 10.

The action Friday night came in support of UAW President Walter Reuther and other leaders who quit their posts on the AFL-CIO executive council earlier this month.

Franco-Canadian Trade Hike Seen

By ALAN HARVEY

Times London Bureau

PARIS—Any day now, word may go out that French exports to Canada are running at the annual rate of about $100,000,000. For a country that is the world's fourth largest trading nation the figure may not seem overwhelmingly impressive. But it marks an all-time record in the history of Franco-Canadian trade, and it is a portent of bigger things to come.

After decades of stagnation, trans-Atlantic exchanges are flourishing. From 1955 to 1965, French sales increased fourfold while Canadian exports to France doubled. Over the past two years, French exports are up about 70 per cent and the Canadian advance is 50 per cent.

"I think the French have finally woken up to Canada," says Robert Campbell-Smith, Canada's trade chief in Paris. "These days a lot more people in France are thinking and talking about Canada."

French spokesmen are just as enthusiastic as the Canadians. Charles de Chambrun, France's youthful Secretary of State for Foreign Trade, said recently that both Canada and France have expanding economies, and history shows few examples of such expansion failing to be mutually profitable.

In an informal talk with reporters, he said that what is important is the establishment of regular, traditional and continual trading links, not just "coups de fusil" or one-shot efforts. Referring to the way in which lack of understanding has restricted commercial contacts in the past, he said members of a French mission which went to British Columbia last winter found the experience was a "veritable revelation"—a phrase hardly necessary to translate.

Expo 67 has come at precisely the right psychological moment. An imposing cross section of French business, described as a Who's Who of Industry, will travel to Montreal for the fair and make side trips to Toronto, Niagara Falls, Quebec City and New York. Canadian officials in Paris estimate the total number of French business visitors at 3,000, representing industries ranging from textiles, engineering, food and hardware to paper and transportation.

5,900 EMPLOYEES LAID OFF

Strike Closes Giant Steel Plant

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A strike by 200 railway workers began officially at midnight Friday—forcing closure of the giant Algoma Steel Corp. plant and putting 5,900 men off work.

James L. McIntyre, a company spokesman, said early today that late-night talks under negotiations for a new contract, Ontario's chief conciliation officer, William Dickie, failed to avert the strike.

The strikers are members of Local 605, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and Local 611, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Algoma started laying off men in anticipation of the strike Friday, sending 1,500 men home. A further 4,400 will be laid off today, Mr. McIntyre said. The company will retain about 1,000 men on maintenance duties and coke-making and about 1,300 office and supervisory staff.

Mr. McIntyre said he had no indication of the strike's possible duration.

The strike brings the second closure of the steel mills with their 8,200 employees within two months. It follows breakdown of

The rail brotherhoods were also involved in the previous closure when they refused to cross the picket lines set by 80 striking members of the bricklayers union.

The company says the rail workers have refused the "same total money package that was offered to all other unions and that was accepted by them."

The union says the points in dispute are the upgrading of job classifications and a wage increase.

Contracts with the two brotherhoods expired July 31.

B.C. Spent $172 Million Of Advance

B.C. spent $172.2 million of its Columbia River Treaty advance payment by the beginning of this year, leaving $135.6 million in the kitty, Premier Bennett revealed Friday.

In written replies tabled in the legislature, he informed Opposition Leader Robert Strachan that the total interest earned on the payment by last Dec. 31 was $34.5 million.

The advance payment, made sept. 16, 1964, totalled $274.8 million and $49.6 million of it was temporarily loaned to B.C. Hydro for projects other than the dams on the Columbia River.

Mr. Bennett noted the funds remaining do not include the flood control payments yet to be received, accumulation of interest during construcion or B.C.'s 50 per cent share of downstream benefits during the last half of the 60-year treaty term.

Rail Workers Spurn Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—The International Association of Machinists, representing 4,700 railway shop machinists, Friday rejected an appeal from mediator Carl Goldenberg for acceptance of a railway wage offer worked out in mediation late last year.

Mike Rygus, Canadian vice-president, said the offer was rejected by a secret ballot of members and will not be reconsidered.

The IAM is one of seven shop unions that have opted to go to compulsory arbitration rather than accept voluntarily a settlement involving a 24-per-cent wage increase over three years.

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone
LOOKS AT SPORTS

You have heard how one heavyweight challenger, Ernest Terrell stumbled on the Ali babble, and now you are going to hear how another has fallen on the Acropolis of his dreams.

For 15 rounds of road racing with Muhammad Mouthy, Terrell was paid $200,000 before taxes. For four minutes and 30 seconds of terror, Joseph Flood collected carfare. Before taxes.

Joseph Flood, for those of you who have been milking the goats, is a football player turned boy pugilist. He spent last autumn in the line for Victoria Steelers, a squat, affable tub of lard who enjoyed contact.

Playing with the Steelers, contact was inevitable, also frequent. Many times in their first season the Steelers' line would assemble after being run over and in trembling voices sing, "Hail, Hail The Gang's All Here." Then they would count heads to find out.

If football was Joe Flood's game, boxing was his original love. Before coming to Victoria he had 156 arguments in the ring

Big Train a Big Brother to Amos

Little was seen of Joe Flood after the last Steelers' game when he pulled up lame. So lame that if he had been a horse they would have shot him.

But one day he came into view, blocking out the sun, and said he was embarking on a boxing career. He spelled it out: "I'm going to have three or four amateur bouts and then go to New Zealand and turn pro. I've got a sponsor waiting."

Time passed without further word from him. Then a few days after the Clay-Terrell thing, he bounced into view.

He talks in short, staccato bursts and the first thing he said was, "Like old home week listening to the pre-fight introductions. Three guys that were introduced I fought."

He ticked them off . . . "Thad Spencer, L. J. Wheeler, Big Train Lincoln. Big Train, he's Amos' brother." Amos Lincoln played halfback for the Steelers, a lot of halfback. He has reportedly signed with the B.C. Lions and may help them. Last year they had the musclepower of a British Ford when they could have used a Lincoln.

Flood said, in answer to a question, that he "won some, lost some" to Spencer and Wheeler and Big Train. He says with a light burning in his eyes that he also had three fights with Boone Kirkman, the Seattle heavyweight Jack Hurley hopes to steer into Cassius Clay.

"My fights with Kirkman were the most brutal battles they ever saw in Seattle," he said. "He's built like a refrigerator. You can hit him all night and . . . nothing." He sighed. "But upstairs" — tapping his frontal lobe — "also nothing."

Let a Guy Recover Before Asking!

What about Joe Flood's march into fame and fortune and a joust with Clay?

"I was afraid you'd ask," he grimaced. "Well, I'll tell you. I went to Portland for the Golden Gloves. First night in I catch the flu. I'm flat on my back for five days. I tell them I can't go on and they say I gotta, on account of the gate.

"So I say okay and I look over the heavyweights. There's only one I have to worry about. Fellow named Craven. He's a beast. An animal. He can kill you with either hand.

"Opening night I look at the draw and who do you think I get? Yup, Craven. Then I go to the theatre where they're holding the fights and I see the ring. I nearly faint. It's 12½ feet. For me, a jab and move fighter, it's a telephone booth. I gotta have room. Most amateur fights the ring is 18 or at least 16 feet. But 12½ feet!

"Anyhow, there's Craven in that little ring and the bell goes. I got no place to move. The first round I punch and slide and I'm doing pretty good. Then he nails me under the armpit — I still got the black and blue mark — and lifts me, all 228 pounds — off the mat. If the ropes don't stop me . . . But my armpit isn't my jaw and I even throw a fair hook at him as the round ends.

"In the second round I'm alright for a minute and a half. Then I get in close — which is not a good idea — and I throw a right that misses. B-a-n-g! I've never been hit like that in my life. Ever. I don't think his right goes six inches.

"I'm lying face down in my corner and I can hear my trainer ask, 'You alright?' 'I'll tell you," I say, 'when you wake me up in the morning!'

Insurance Is Flood's Best Policy

"I take the count and get up and b-o-o-m! Down again. 'I'm gonna throw in the towel,' the trainer hollers. 'You do,' I say, 'and there's going to be another fight.'

"I get up and last the round. But all the juice is gone. Even if I could run there's no place to go. In the third he gets me. With both hands. I'm out 20 minutes."

So you packed your suitcase and came back to Victoria and settled down to counting flower baskets?

"Not quite," Flood said. "I wasn't convinced. I thought I would give it one more whirl. After all I knew I wasn't right and Craven was no bum. In the Vancouver Golden Gloves he had three fights. They lasted a total of two minutes." He said it proudly, letting the listener recall that Joe Flood had gone longer.

"I went to the gym and worked. One day I'm sparring with this kid — just light stuff — and he jabs me. Not vicious but on the point of the chin. P-l-u-n-k! Down I go.

"Next day I talk to the doc. He says it's one of those things. I have 156 fights and tne brain in which is cushioned gets banged around and maybe there's a little spot on it. Nothing to worry about. 'I could run some special tests,' he says, but I'm pretty sure that's what has happened to you, Joe'."

And did the tests prove it?

"I don't know," Flood said. "I told him, 'Never mind the special tests, doc, you're talking to an ex-fighter'."

And that's why you'll never see Joe Flood in there with Cassius Clay. Instead of punches he's pitching insurance, guaranteed a lifetime . . . or less. Not a bad policy. Yes?

Leafs Shut Out Oakland To Boost Playoff Hopes

Oakland Seals today are being tormented with a nightmare of two years ago.

That was the Western Hockey League season when Victoria Maple Leafs launched a late-season drive for a playoff spot and made it in the final weekend of the schedule by nosing out the Seals; then playing out of San Francisco.

After winning the playoff crown last season, the Leafs have been struggling in the current campaign and were almost counted out by most Californians when they headed into Oakland this week for two games.

At that time the Victorians were down in sixth place, behind Los Angeles and seven points behind the Seals, who were working on a three-game winning streak and zealously guarding the fourth berth.

Today the Leafs are tied for fifth and only three points away from the Seals, who must be wondering if it is going to be 1965 all over again.

Coach Frank Mario's Leafs opened their two-game stay at Oakland Wednesday with a hard-hitting 4-1 victory and Friday night they crushed the Seals with brilliant defensive work and skated to a 2-0 triumph.

In Friday's other game, Vancouver Canucks continued to pad their second-place position at the expense of California clubs, picking on the trailing Gulls for a 3-2 win at San Diego.

TIME AWAISTING

Needing to win almost every game they play in order to get into the playoff scramble, the Leafs are again looking like the club that goes best with its back to the wall.

Anchored by the brilliant goaltending of Al Smith, they pounded home two first-period goals and then checked the Californians into the ice before 7,645 disappointed Oakland fans.

Andy Hebenton, breaking a string of bad shooting luck with his first goal in 13 games, and veteran Lou Jankowski fired shots behind Oakland goalie Jack McCartan.

Smith, making 27 saves as he recorded his fifth shutout of the season and the sixth for the Leafs, made some great moves and received tremendous protection from a defensive unit sparked by Aut Erickson, Bill Shvetz and Sandy Hucul.

Despite some solid hitting, only two penalties were called, both to the Seals. The first went to McCartan, who finished with 30 saves, and Hebenton needed only 11 seconds to fire a power-play goal.

15TH FOR LOU

Jankowski notched the second tally only 29 seconds before the end of the period. It was his 15th goal of the season.

Leafs have three games against the Seals remaining on their schedule, two of them in Oakland and one at Victoria. Seals go against the pacesetting Portland Buckaroos in two successive games while the Victorians rest until Wednesday, when they play at home against the Gulls.

At San Diego, Gordie Vejprava paced the Canucks to their narrow victory.

Vejprava scored twice and assisted on another goal to spoil the night for 3,171 spectators. Ron Boehm scored the other Vancouver goal.

The three points moved Vejprava to withing two points of the league's leading scorer Art Jones of Portland.

Len Ronson and Al Nicholson scored the San Diego goals.

SWINGING FROM KNEES

Action was brisk and somewhat unusual during this 147-pound battle in Golden Gloves bouts at San Francisco. Dan Carrol couldn't swing from heels so he did next best thing. He kept slugging from kneeling position and knocked Michael Burkman to canvas in second round. Carrol went on to take division title. (AP Wirephoto.)

Wings Inject New Blood In Bid to Shake Slump

DETROIT (AP) — "We just can't go flat right now," Detroit Red Wing manager-coach Sid Abel said as he shook up the National Hockey League club.

"It's a minor shake-up for the weekend. I'm not sending anyone down. But I thought our club looked tired. We've been playing a lot of hockey and some tough games.

"By bringing up a few new ones I thought we might get more drive going," Abel said.

The Wings have lost three straight and fallen two points out of fourth place, the last spot for the Stanley Cup playoffs.

FIVE BENCHED

Abel benched five members of the team Friday and called up three players from Pittsburgh of the American Hockey League for tonight's game in Montreal.

Andy Bathgate, Val Fonteyne and Pete Goegan are regulars who stayed in Detroit.

Pete Mahovlich, a first-year man who has seen little duty, and reserve goalie Hank Bassen also remained behind. Bassen had a back injury.

Abel called up centre Ted Taylor, right wing Craig Cameron and goalie George Gardner.

After tonight's game, the Wings come home for a Sunday matinee against Montreal.

Detroit has only 20 games remaining on a 70-game schedule and 11 of them are on the road, where the Wings have won just three matches and tied one while losing 20.

TOP TEAMS CLASH

In other action, the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks clashed with second-place New York Rangers this afternoon in New York and the teams then travel to Chicago for a Sunday night game. Boston Bruins play in Toronto against the Maple Leafs tonight to complete the weekend schedule.

The Rangers, who have lost three and tied one in their last four games, recalled right-winger Larry Mickey from Omaha of the Central Professional Hockey League Friday to fill in for ailing Rod Gilbert.

Gilbert, the club's leading goal-scorer, has been bothered by a cold in his back for two weeks. He underwent a spinal fusion operation last winter. An examination Friday showed the fusion to be intact but revealed a strained muscle in his back.

Mickey, who played three games for the Rangers earlier in the season, had 23 goals and 36 assists in 50 games with Omaha.

JUNIOR HIGH

Oaks Lead Way To Island Finals

Visitors were treated roughly at Oak Bay Friday as eight clubs battled for four Lower Island berths in the Vancouver Island junior high school boys' tournament.

When hostilities ended, Lake Cowichan, Ladysmith, Mount Prevost of Duncan and S. J. Willis of Victoria had been bounced out of contention.

Qualifying for the Island tourney at Lansdowne on March 3 and 4 were four Victoria-area schools—Oak Bay, Lansdowne, Central and St. Louis College.

Sparked by the accurate shooting of Tom Holmes, Oak Bay finished on top to capture the Lower Island title. The Oaks defeated Lansdowne 25-19 in a hotly contested final after starting with victories over S. Willis and Central.

Holmes fired 17 points in a 39-20 victory over S. J. Willis, added 19 on the way to a 40-29 win over Central and collected nine in the title triumph over Lansdowne. Also playing a big part in the Oak Bay attack was Brent Mullins, who collected 30 points in the three games.

Lansdowne had opened with a 55-25 romp past Lake Cowichan, St. Louis thumped Ladysmith 53-20 and Central downed Mount Prevost 43-20.

EXCITING FINISH

With the four clubs surviving the first round assured of places in the Island tournament, Lansdowne reached the final with a spine-tingling 32-30 decision over St. Louis. The collegians went into the closing stages with a 30-24 lead and then missed six successive foul shots and finally lost on a basket three seconds from the finish.

Back for the game that decided third place, St. Louis didn't falter. The collegians galloped to a 28-3 lead over Central in the opening half, stretched the margin to 42-5 at one stage and wound up with a 61-25 verdict.

THIRD CONTRACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast Baseball League have signed catcher Ewood Huyke to his third one-year contract with the team.

Villanova Ace Cracks Four-Minute Barrier

NEW YORK (CP)—Dave Patrick of Villanova University won the mile event in the New York Athletic Club indoor games in a sensation 3:59.3 Friday night.

It was the first sub four-minute mile of this indoor season.

Patrick, National Collegiate Athletic Association champion who was just six-tenths of a second off the magic number last week, sprinted to the lead with four laps left in the race and ran off to a 20-yard triumph over Richard Romo of the Southern California Striders.

It was his first sub four-minute mile, indoor or out.

Dave Bailey of East York Track Club was third in 4:02.3. Romoa was timed at 4:01.9.

CROTHERS LOSES

Bill Crothers of East York lost the half mile to Franz-Josef Kemper of West Germany by a stride. Both were timed in a comparatively slow 1:53.4.

Ergas Leps of Toronto Olympic Club ran to an easy victory in a special 1,000-yard run in a comparatively slow 2:11.7.

ESQUIMALT HIGH CREW . . . . . . AFTER NATIONAL TITLE

City's Wishes Go With Them!

An Esquimalt High School rink carried British Columbia's hopes for a national curling title into Flin Flon, Man., today.

The crew, skipped by 16-year-old Jim Armstrong, left Thursday for the Manitoba mining town and the Canadian schoolboy championships which get under way Monday morning.

Rounding out the rink are third Gordie Paterson, second Torrey Gillott and lead Dave Vyner, all 17.

The rink shares its allegiance between Victoria and Esquimalt. They curl regularly at the Victoria Club and were presented with slacks, shirts and ties by the Quadra Street members. Esquimalt High presented the rink with new curling sweaters.

One other Victoria-area foursome also will be assured of a berth in national playdowns. A Victoria RCMP rink consisting of skip Terry Lewis, Ed Kathol, Stew Thompson and Gary Hamilton captured the provincial police championship earlier this week.

Lewis and his rink now goes to Ottawa for the nationals Feb. 27 and 28.

OTHERWISE: Gunning for another B.C. title in Salmon Arm this week is Victoria Curling Club manager Tom Dickson, O. J. Powell, Bob McIntosh and Pete McGinnes . . . They'll be competing, along with three other Island rinks, for the B.C. Legion championship and the right to move into the Canadian finals at North Bay, Ont. . . . Other Island rinks are skipped by Don MacRae of Nanaimo, Len Kersey of Campbell River, and Harold Kast of Cumberland . . . The Pacific Coast seniors' championship will be staged at Esquimalt in two weeks' time.

DOUBLES CHAMPS BOW IN MARATHON BATTLE

Last year's city men's doubles champions were upset Friday night in the Vancouver Island open badminton tournament at Cordova Bay Community Hall.

Jim Wells and Eric Hibberson were the upset victims, losing a torrid 15-12, 6-15, 18-17 battle to Les Wilson and Jack Lequesne.

Competition was continuing at a brisk pace today and semi-finals are expected to be completed around 10 tonight. Finals will be played Sunday, starting at 1 p.m.

THREE-STROKE LEAD

Palmer's Driving Earning Applause

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Most observers agreed that the Tucson National Golf Club course was made to order for Arnold Palmer and after two rounds of play he's shown they were right.

"Driving on these fairways is as tough as any course we've played this year," said Palmer, who held a three-stroke lead going into today's third round of the $60,000 Tucson open golf tournament.

"One of the reasons I've scored so well is that I've been driving so well," said Palmer, who has stayed out of trouble with his drives on the long, heavily trapped fairways.

Palmer, who has been experimenting with aluminum shaft clubs, carded a five-under-par 67 Friday to go with an opening round 66 to hold a three-stroke lead over scrambling Chuck Courtney.

DARKNESS CUTS IN

Play was cut short Friday by darkness with several threesomes still on the course. The players completed their rounds before today's round began.

In third place, four strokes behind Palmer at seven-under-par 137, were Bob Charles, the 1965 Tucson winner, and John Schlee, the 1966 Rookie of the Year. One stroke behind them in the race for the $12,000 winner's purse were long-hitting Paul Bondeson and Bruce Crampton.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 71 Friday for a 146 total.

Arnold Palmer	66-67—133
Chuck Courtney	69-67—136

Alberni Rated No. 1 Among North Squads

DUNCAN—Perennial threats for the Vancouver Island high school basketball crown, Alberni Valley Chieftains will lead four Upper Island clubs into the Island tournament next weekend at the University of Victoria.

Chieftains captured the Upper Island title Friday at Cowichan High School when they defeated Chemainus 61-49 in the final game of an eight-team tourney.

Joining Alberni and Chemainus in the trek to Victoria will be Courtenay, which took third place with a 70-67 win over Nanaimo, and Cowichan, an 85-40 victor over Campbell River.

ROBINSON SELECTED

Nanaimo finished in fifth place, Campbell River was sixth and Qualicum tripped Ladysmith 57-55 to take the seventh spot.

Talented Bill Robinson of Chemainus scored 22 points in the final to earn the most-valuable-player award and was joined on the first all-star team by schoolmate Ron Waller.

Other all-star berths were taken by three Chieftains—Ken Waugh, Brock Hilliard and Dan Bowen. Receiving honorable mention were John Levering of Nanaimo and Courtenay's Don Acorn.

In earlier games Saturday, Alberni trimmed Courtenay 67-40, Chemainus clipped Nanaimo 60-34, Cowichan downed Ladysmith 61-43 and Campbell River defeated Qualicum 52-46.

Skiing Conditions Rated Excellent

Vancouver Island skiing championships are scheduled this weekend at Forbidden Plateau. Slalom events were being held today and downhill competition is slated Sunday.

Snow conditions at the Plateau and at Green Mountain were reported excellent with all facilities in operation. Access roads to parking lots are open.

Shop-Talk Time For Sports Heads

Victoria's athletic leaders get the "call to arms" and their night out next Thursday could prove most interesting.

It could be beneficial or disappointing, interesting and revealing.

The annual meeting of the Greater Victoria Sports Council will be held at the YMCA, starting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

All sports organizations are urged to send accredited delegates.

The meeting, council president Doug Fletcher declares, "is important."

Among subjects and topics expected to be discussed in detail will be the proposed new Saanich recreation facilities; Centennial year events; the new Centennial Stadium being constructed on the Gordon Head campus at the University of Victoria, and the new Royal Athletic Park.

Members of Saanich council will be one hand.

BOWLERS OF WEEK

Joining parade of weekly champions who have qualified for "Bowler-of-the-Year" roll-offs in May are Alex Robinson (top) and Nick Bergum (bottom). For each, it is the first time they topped men's fields in weekly competition sponsored by The Daily Times. Affable Robinson was week's leader in men's fivepin division with 318-217-317—854 series in Town and Country Lane League. Bergum made his mark in tenpin category with 240-203-224—667 triple in Men's Major League at Aurora Lanes.

Vikings Lace Kelso Squad

Determination to fulfill an obligation was a painful proposition Friday night for B and K Paving, a commercial basketball team from Kelso, Wash.

Scheduled to meet University of Victoria Vikings at the Uvic gymnasium, the Pavers were unable to make ferry connections at Port Angeles. In order to keep their hoop date, they located a charter plane.

Unfortunately, the plane had enough space for only five passengers, just enough to put a team on the floor.

Perhaps remembering an earlier 30-point loss to the Kelso club, Vinkings pounded the Pavers for a 102-23 triumph.

Things could be tougher for the Vikings tonight at 7:30 in the Gordon Head gym. They will be going against Simon Fraser University freshmen, who expect to arrive with at least 10 players.

Weaver Keeps Lead

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Bert Weaver of Biloxi, Miss., retained the lead Friday in the Los Lagartos international golf tournament with a second-round 71.

Weaver's 36-hole total of 137 gave him a two-stroke lead over Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Humber, Daysmith Close In on Medals

East-West Rivalry in Spotlight As Games Heading for Windup

QUEBEC (CP)—It's the East against the West today as the first Canadian Winter Games nears the end of its eight-day run.

After a six-day medal harvest, which saw the marathon basketball tournament wind up, action tightened in badminton and hockey.

Badminton goes into semifinal stages today with British Columbia facing Alberta and Quebec against Ontario. The winning West team will play off the triumphant easterners for the gold and silver medals, with the losers meeting to decide the third-place bronze.

In section A hockey, Nova Scotia and Alberta are tied for first with six points each; in section B, it's a three-way, six-point tie between British Columbia, Ontario and Saskatchewan.

In all five badminton sections there is an undefeated record. Yves Pare of Montreal leads the men's singles after 11 matches without a loss. Allison Daysmith of Victoria carries a similar record in ladies' singles.

Charlie Marriott and Ken Delf of Calgary are undefeated in men's doubles as are Angus Petrie and Jean Bardsley of Vancouver in the mixed doubles.

Leading the ladies' doubles and undefeated is the team of Judy Humber of Victoria and Mimi Nilsson of Vancouver.

With the semifinal battle lines established, there are eight teams with no games left to play. Their won-lost record: Manitoba 36-19, New Brunswick 26-29, Nova Scotia 26-29, Saskatchewan 22-23, Prince Edward Island 11-44, Newfoundland 10-45, Northwest Territories 9-46, Yukon 2-53.

Sarnia Claims Basketball Medal

Sarnia Knights, representing Ontario, won the gold medal in men's basketball Friday.

Manitoba took the second-place silver medal and Nova Scotia come third to win its first medal.

In women's basketball, a Vancouver senior team won the gold medal for British Columbia. Ontario won the silver and Manitoba the bronze.

In skiing, Denise Chrichton of St. Sauveur, Que., won the gold in the women's giant slalom, followed by Antoinette Svensma of B.C. with the silver and Diane Culver of Montreal with the bronze.

In the men's giant slalom, the gold medal went to B.C.'s Bob Calladine with Dave Bruneau and Pierre Lebrun, both of Montreal, coming second and third.

In basketball's consolation rounds, New Brunswick took the women's section on five straight victories, a record matched in the men's competition by Simon Fraser University of Vancouver, representing B.C.

At the end of the first day's action in wrestling—which doubles as the Canadian junior championships — Ontario had a 10-2 card; Alberta was 9-2, Quebec 8-3-1, B.C. 8-4, Newfoundland 5-3, Saskatchewan 3-9, Manitoba 0-1-7 and New Brunswick 0-10.

When the smoke cleared after the action, the official games standings were:

Ontario 57, Quebec 49, B.C. 47, Manitoba and Alberta 44, Saskatchewan 39, Nova Scotia 24, New Brunswick 17, Newfoundland 15, Prince Edward Island 9, Northwest Territories 8, Yukon 5.

Ontario Leads Gathering of Points

Games statisticians award points only on the completion of a sport. If 10 provinces or territories take part, the winner gets 10 points, graduating down to one for the last-place province. If only five provinces enter, the top province takes only five points.

From the standpoint of medals, allowing three points for a gold, two for a silver and one for a bronze, the provinces lined up this way:

Ontario 69, Quebec 49, Manitoba 31, Alberta 27, B.C. 16, Saskatchewan 7, Northwest Territories 5, Nova Scotia 1. No other provinces had won medals up to the end of play Friday.

Volley Ball: One day of action in volleyball sent Ontario into the lead with a 7-1 record. British Columbia is in second place with six victories and no losses. They have two games in hand over the leaders.

Manitoba, Alberta and Quebec are next with five victories each. Saskatchewan shows a 4-4 record.

In women's volleyball, Alberta took the lead with a perfect 8-0 record while Ontario and Manitoba stand in second place with similar 6-0 cards.

Saskatchewan lost twice to show a 6-2 record. British Columbia has four victories and two defeats with two games in hand.

Quebec and New Brunswick show identical 3-5 cards and Northwest Territories picked up a win in six tries. Prince Edward Island has a 1-7 card and Nova Scotia was unsuccessfull in all its four games.

Nova Scotia, with eight games played, shows no victories.

Hockey: Saskatchewan's bid to finish first in section B stalled when underdog New Brunswick beat them 8-5 in the hockey upset of the week.

Ernie Doucet, with three goals, sparked N.B. to its first victory in five games.

In section A, Alberta and Nova Scotia have six points, one more than Quebec and Manitoba. Prince Edward Island has two points while the Yukon is still seeking its first victory.

Hockey action winds up Sunday.

SAME TIME, SAME PLACE FOR GOLFERS

Same time, same place.

Needham Wallops Linesman

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A referee has his tough nights, but he always wins.

Wally Harris had one of those nights Friday as Cleveland Barons defeated Providence Reds 7-4 in American Hockey League action.

Harris called 18 penalties in an attempt to tame the rough-house tactics of the teams. He tried to restrain Cleveland's Bill Needham, who was intent on tearing Eddie Kachur of Providence apart.

But Needham, attempting to retaliate after Kachur knocked him to the ice, broke free and caught linesman Chuck Scherza with a wild punch on the chin.

GAME MISCONDUCT

Harris came out the victor, however, sending Needham off with a game misconduct.

Buffalo Bisons defeated Quebec Aces 5-4 in the other scheduled game.

Howie Glover scored twice for Barons, while Needham, Joe Szura, Bob Courcy, Tom McCarthy and Dick Mattiussi got the others. Dave Creighton, with two and Brian Perry and Pierre Brillant were the Providence marksmen.

Brian Smith, Gerry Oulette, Wayne Larkin, Dennis Kassian and Billy Dea scored the Buffalo goals. Simon Nolet scored twice for Quebec, while Guy Gendron and John Banna added the others.

Bill Semple earned the handicap award with a net 67. Other prize-winners included Mike Zabick, W. Evans, D. Steel, Art Parsons, M. Morris, C. Dalson, P. Foford and John Rait.

In button competition, challengers Gerry Walke and Don Little defeated Bill Walters and Bill Sargent, 3 and 2.

THREE BACKING OUT?

Dates Conflict Worries Scots

LONDON (Reuters) — Three Scottish clubs were reported Thursday considering withdrawing from the North American Soccer League because the schedule would give them little respite from the Scottish season.

The clubs, Hibernian, Aberdeen and Dundee United, were believed to be ready to announce a decision within the next two or three days.

Bob Shankly, Hibernian's manager, whose team would represent Toronto in the new league, said Thursday he appreciated the action of the North American League in bringing forward its finals to July 16 from July 25. He was worried about the extent of the travelling involved in the league, however, which includes west coast teams in both Canada and the United States.

The season would begin May 28.

A Hibernian director had said Tuesday the club was considering withdrawing from the league for two reasons.

Saturday, Hibernian was told the NASL finals would not be played until July 23, although he had previously understood the competition would end July 16. The new date would not allow the players three weeks holiday before the start of the Scottish program Aug. 12.

Hibernian also was originally told all its matches would be in the eastern U.S. and Canada but it later learned it would have to play in Houston and Dallas, Tex., San Francisco and Vancouver. This program was considered too strenuous.

It was announced in Toronto Tuesday that the end of the league had been rescheduled for July 16.

"But the extensive travelling arrangements are still the same," said Shankly. "It now seems likely we'll withdraw."

The NASL has been sanctioned by the International Football Federation, the governing body of world soccer.

Its rival organization, the National Professional Soccer League, is not officially recognized.

Arnie Leads

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—With $26,632 in the bank, Arnold Palmer leads his nearest opponent in golf's 1967 money-winning race, Gay Brewer, by $6,000.

With a $14,000 win in the Phoenix Open, Julius Boros has moved into third.

Other leaders, with official and total earnings for the year:

Boros, $19,600 - $20,875; Bob Goalby, $16,033 - $18,099; Ken Still, $8,967-$9,846.

Sailors Capture Volleyball Berth

Navy swatters from Esquimalt will represent the armed services of British Columbia in the Canadian Forces volleyball championship tournament at Edmonton, March 14 and 15.

The sailors earned the B.C. berth when they defeated the Royal Canadian Engineers from Chilliwack in a playoff after the two clubs finished in a first-place tie in a five-team tournament at Esquimalt.

The CFB, Esquimalt, team won a best-of-five playoff with the Engineers in three straight games.

NORWICH TRIUMPH

Cup Favorite Upset Victim

LONDON (CP) — Gordon Bolland and Don Heath scored for Second Division Nodwich City today and knocked favorite Manchester United out of the English Football Association Cup—one of the biggest upsets in the 96-year history of the soccer competition.

A crowd of 64,000 turned out at Manchester to watch United lose 2-1.

Norwich shook the home fans by scoring first through Heath in the 26th minute. United's First Division team levelled the score on a goal by Denis Law in the 35th minute. Law's temmate, Nobby Stiles, then tried a back pass to his goalkeeper, Alex Stepney. It didn't reach the goalkeeper — and Bolland was there to put the ball into the net for the winning score.

Norwich's win took the team into the last 16 of the cup competition. The final will be played at London's Wembley Stadium in May.

HAD BIG CROWDS

More than 500,000 persons watched today's 16 matches in the fourth round — and Manchester United's defeat was just one of the upsets.

Bristol City, a Second Division team, knocked out First Division Southampton 1-0; Third Division Swindon knocked out Second Division Bury 2-1.

David Turner, Brighton's capital and left half, got his team's leveller against Chelsea in the 49th minute. Bobby Tambling scored in the first half for Chelsea.

TOTTENHAM WINS

Swindon, which defeated First Division West Ham in the third round, went into the last 16 on goals by Keith Morgan and Don Rogers.

Alan Gilzean scored two goals in a minute and helped Tottenham to a 3-1 victory over Portsmouth.

Teams who wound up in a tie must replay next week to decide which advances into the next round.

PAN-AM WORRY

It's Not Always Fun and Games . . .

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some Manitobans, looking ahead to the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg this summer, picture mobs and riots instead of sporting brotherhood.

The Chamber of Commerce of Amaranth, a small town 80 miles northwest of here, is particularly concerned, although it didn't say why.

Read at a board of police commissioners meeting this week was an Amaranth resolution, to be presented to the Manitoba Chamber of Commerce, which urged that a task force of 5,000 men be established to handle "mobs and riots" during the July 22 - Aug. 7 games.

Police Chief George Blow took exception to a part of the resolution which read: "The Winnipeg force is neither trained nor equipped to handle a full-scale riot."

"There isn't a better trained police force in Canada," the chief said.

He added that his men are trained in riot and mob control.

"Listening to that resolution, you'd think we had no police force," said Alderman Paul Parashin.

Mayor Stephen Juba was the only member of the board to defend the resolution.

"I, myself, am not satisfied with our operations," he said. "I'm looking for the worst to happen."

The mayor suggested some sort of liaison with the militia be established during the games.

Commission members agreed that Chief Blow should submit a report outlining preparations the Winnipeg force will take.

LACK OF EXPERIENCE DOESN'T FAZE 'BELLIES

NEW WESTMINSTER — Reni Masi, 33, a high school basketball coach who has never played or coached lacrosse, was appointed Thursday as coach of New Westminster Salmonbellies of the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

He succeeds Doug McRory, who retired after taking the Salmonbellies to a third-place finish in the four-team league last season.

Masi has been a basketball coach at Queen Elizabeth School in Surrey for 11 years.

Salmonbellies visit Victoria April 26 in this year's league opener. Coquitlam is at Vancouver May 2 in the mainland opener.

Stockers Claim An Opportunist

When you start scanning the list of leading scorers in the Esquimalt Hockey League, Don Lancaster's name turns up about three rink-lengths behind.

But it's getting to the point where Stockers' coach Douglas Anderson thinks the young defenceman may be the player to send on the ice in a crucial situation.

Lancaster has been the central figure in the important goals this week that gave last-place Stockers three out of a possible four points in games against the league-leading University of Victoria Vikings.

It was Lancaster's overtime goal Wednesday that handed Vikings their second setback of the season, 7-6.

Stockers slapped the runaway leaders again Friday night, holding Vikings to a 5-5 draw at the Sports Centre. Again, Lancaster was the man of the moment. He made the play and veteran Jim Middleton slapped in the goal—with 78 seconds left to play—that earned Stockers a split in points.

Stockers led 4-0 at one stage.

In the night's other game, Dave Griff, Doug Couch and Don Davidson each scored once to give Tudor Monarchs a 3-1 decision over Armed Forces Combos. The victory wrapped up second place for the Esquimalt-based Monarchs.

Sappers Set For Invasion

More than 20 sapper apprentices from the Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering will invade Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, Feb. 24 and 25.

They'll tackle an equal number of technical apprentices from the RCN Fleet School, Esquimalt, in an annual winter sports tournament.

Held to encourage inter-service athletic competition and physical fitness, the tournament will include rifle shooting, broomball, basketball, volleyball and bowling.

Island Archery Meet at Alberni

Vancouver Island's archers will be pulling for their best shots at Port Alberni Sunday.

The main event: the Vancouver Island indoor championships.

In weekly competition for Victoria Bowmen, Dick Coulson scored 262 and Eileen Mair came up with a 240 to walk off with top honors. Bob Johnson defeated Bill Hall to retain the men's archery button.

Camera-Stealing Ape Loses To Small Child's Ingenuity

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife Pat are currently on a 12,00-mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the fourteenth in a series on their adventures.

The ape stood, almost as high as a kitchen chair and walked about with the sly, swaggering look of a prosperous shipchandler. From the moment we approached him he stood his ground and kept his eyes on the Canadian's camera.

Jim Haskins, a Montreal businessman, had bought the Leica that morning in one of Gibraltar's duty-free shops. "I've waited all my life to own a camera like this," he told us.

The ape stared back tolerantly at the camera lens and allowed the beaming businessman to finish his first roll of film. Then the Canadian turned his back on the animal, walked over and sat down on a low wall. He fastened the catch on the camera case, placed it beside him and began to hunt through his pockets for another roll of film. The ape crept closer.

•

Then, before anyone could shout, the ship-chandler-eyed animal took a quick bound, scooped up the camera and shot across the road.

"My camera!" roared the Canadian.

Within seconds the ape was out of human reach; he scampered up the cliff-side and stopped only when he came to a small outcrop of rock some 30 feet above us. There he squatted and gazed victoriously down on his whitefaced victim.

"Call the Keeper of the Apes," suggested someone.

"He'll never get here in time," said another.

"Don't frighten him," cautioned our guide. "Wait until he drops it."

"Drops it! You must be crazy," moaned the Canadian.

"Please sir," said a small boy with an English accent, "I can get your camera back. I have a bag of sweets."

•

And so saying he began raining candies around the culprit. Greed overcame the ape. He started scrambling around after this heaven-sent meal, grew tired, finally, of holding the Leica and dropped it. The camera rolled four or five feet down the slope and caught in a clump of bushes where it was eventually retrieved undamaged by the guide.

Our visit to Gibraltar's ape colony came about as a result of our being storm-bound in the port for three days. Right up until the moment the bad weather arrived we had been busy preparing the boat for her first bout with the open Atlantic. Last minute repairs had been attended to and enough food and water had been stowed aboard to keep us at sea for a third of a year.

•

Our supplies included over a hundred gallons of fresh water, innumerable cans of fruit juice, a life-raft containing 20 days emergency provisions, tins of bully beef, hamburgers, hot dogs, luncheon meat, ham, chicken, minced steak, salmon, tuna fish and seemingly countless other items of food that would help keep our diet at sea varied and interesting. There was even a salted down side of English bacon.

•

In the main saloon lockers Pat stowed such items as dried peas and green beans, instant potatoes, rice, sugar, tea, two boxes of chocolate bars, spaghetti, and cases of safety matches. Scattered throughout cubby holes were soups, beans and bottles of soft drinks.

Because we expected to be at sea, during the longest passage, from anything up to 40 days we carried a full supply of medical provisions. Along with them was stowed an impressive tome entitled "The Ship Captain's Medical Guide." This gave suggested treatments for some of the wildest diseases imaginable and should all else fail, followed up the list of suggestions by a neat chapter on "Burial of the Dead at Sea. A short form of Christian Service."

In Gibraltar we re-stocked our library, bought two extra books on deep-sea navigation, went over our charts of the African Coast, laid out harbor plans of Tangiers, Agadir, and Casablanca, and read our pilot book on that coast. Neither of us slept well the night before we were to sail. It was more a feeling of excitement than fear which kept us awake for the moment which we had planned and worked for over the last year had become a reality: the first stage of our Atlantic passage was at hand.

CURIOUS ABOUT WAR? JOIN TOUR TO CHINA

LONDON (UPI) — First-class ecorted tours to Communist China are still available for anyone willing to spend $2,054 to visit a country which may be on the verge of civil war.

A London travel agency is advertising a "31-day escorted first-class tour to China".

The tour includes Shanghai, Hangchow, Peking and Canton in China, as well as stops in Ceylon, Singapore, Hong Kong, Cambodia, Thailand and India.

The next tour leaves London March 31.

Another 21-day variation hits the same points in China but takes in Kashmir. It leaves May 5.

A spokesman for the travel agency said recent political events in China have had no effect on planning.

"Over the past year, 100 tourists went there," the spokesman said.

400 Departures Set For Tours to Alaska

PORTLAND — Nine de luxe tours to Alaska with more than 400 departures are being offered this year, says Kneisel Travel Inc., Portland.

The tours vary in length from seven to 25 days, with additional stays available. Departures are from Portland, Seattle and Vancouver, and prices start at $359.48, May 17 through Sept. 10.

"Alaska is always a wonderful place to visit," says Norman Kneisel, "But there's added interest this year, because of the state's 100th anniversary of its purchase by the U.S. from Russia, to be held in Fairbanks."

"Treasure Chest" tours involve just about every type of combination, including air, sea, bus and rail travel. Alaska Airlines, B.C Ferries, Alaska Railways and White Pass and Yukon Route are among the carriers used.

Two tours will feature the "Inside Passage Cruise" on Canadian Pacific's famed Princess Patricia and Prince George. Also five Inside Passage tours using B.C. Ferries new "Queen of Prince Rupert" from Kelsey Bay to Prince Rupert in combination with Alaska Ferries System.

New 'Villages' Built For Foreign Tourists

Finland this year celebrates the 50th year of her independence and a host of new events, tours and facilities will make the Golden Anniversary year the perfect time for visits by Canadians.

Among the attractions stirring the most interest are the new holiday bungalow villages in the lake areas. Eventually, these will accommodate 600,000 foreign guests in first class centres throughout the country, and while that figure may evoke visions of hordes of tourists crowded together, Finland's ample supply of 60,000 lakes assures everyone the privacy one ought to find in an outdoor vacation plus many unexpected comforts, too.

The prototype village is at Viitasaari, in the lovely lakes north of Jyvaskyla, central Finland's university town.

Each of its bungalows has a bedroom, sitting room, bathroom, kitchenette and outdoor terrace, is fully equipped with bed linens and cooking utensils and looks out on a lake with private beach.

LOTS OF CAFES

If you prefer to eat out, there's a restaurant for every 30 to 40 bungalows. The companion project at nearby Ruuponsaari has a small hotel for those who want added services. The traditional sauna bath houses are right at the lakeside, of course.

Golden Anniversary events include the new Helsinki Week in late August and early September and the Finnish portion of the Scandinavian Design Cavalcade in October. Helsinki Week combines the former Sibelius Festival with many other cultural events such as drama, ballet, opera, folklore and art exhibitions. Anniversary observances culminate on December 6, Independence Day, with parades and gala festivities.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT it's real, as visitor Cindy Fine discovers as she moves in for a close look at the smallest violin in the world at the new Ripley Believe It or Not Museum which officially opens on San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf this month. OPENS MARCH 31

Biggest Home Show Ever

Largest exhibition of its kind in North America, the 1967 National Home Show will open March 31 at the Coliseum in Toronto's Exhibition Park.

More than $5,000,000 worth of goods, covering a six-acre area, will be put on display at the eight-day show by more than 300 exhibitors. Theme of this Centennial Year's show will be "100 years of progress in Canadian Home Building and Homemaking."

For manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in the home-building and allied industries, the National Home Show has become Canada's biggest annual promotional and selling opportunity. A combination trade and consumer show, now in its 16th year, the 1967 exhibition will attract more than 10,000 trade buyers and more than 140,000 members of the general public.

MORE EXHIBITORS

"In 1967 there will be more exhibitors participating than in any previous year," states Jack Neil, exhibits manager. "More than 1,000 different types of products will be represented. The timing of the Tome Show is of vital importance to manufacturers and distributors because it permits them to introduce new products right at the start of the new selling season."

Many significant statistics regarding the consumer audience have been incorporated in a new Elliot-Haynes market survey, based on the 1966 Show. "Almost half of Home Show visitors plan to make home improvements during the next two years," the report states.

"In dollar values, these range from 10 per cent of the respondents stating costs under $300 to 14 per cent estimating their home improvements will cost over $3,000. On the average, these home improvements will cost about $1,550 for those planning them.

The Elliot-Haynes report says that 11 per cent of respondents were in the professional group, 13 per cent were executives or business owners, 20 per cent were in sales or clerical positions, 15 per cent were skilled workers, 30 per cent were homemakers or housewives.

Exhibit display categories in the 1967 National Home Show will include: building products; plumbing, heating and air conditioning; natural gas and electrical equipment; paints and color schemes; roofing and insulation; floor coverings; hardware; interior decoration; furnishings pianos and organs; TV, hi-fi and stereo equipment; antiques; landscaping; garden furniture; home applicances; mortgage and insurance services; home handyman tolls and equipment.

BETTER HOUSING

Easier mortgage money, and government recognition of the need for more and better housing, are seen by National Home Show Chairman Vincent V. DeMarco as assuring a year of top activity for house builders and associated industries. "Not just minimum housing is required," says Mr. DeMarco. "People today are looking for a high standard of convenience, efficiency and design in their home surroundings.

Mr. DeMarco bases his optimism on the recently announced government sponsored amendment to the Bank Act which would channel bank funds into mortgage loans.

Mexico Remains Top Choice Of Northern Sun-Chasers

By JOHN LeBLANC

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Their pockets stuffed with travel folders and sunburn lotion, Canadians in greater hordes than ever are off on their annual flight from frostbite.

Not only is the winter exodus bigger, but a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that sun-chasing northerners are going farther afield. New Zealand and Australia, for instance, are growing more popular with West Coast travellers this year.

Around the country generally, Mexico is perhaps the biggest draw this season, though Hawaii stays high with westerners and Bermuda, the Caribbean and Florida continue to attract Maritimers.

A few searchers for the offbeat have checked out for the wild Galapagos Islands in the Pacific off South America, though that continent itself doesn't pull Canadians.

Mexico's increased magnetism is something of a phenomenon, and it is at or near the head of the list in Montreal, Toronto and the western capitals. Air France in Montreal says its five weekly flights to Mexico were booked solidly for Dec. 16-25. The Gideon Travel Agency in Toronto reports Mexico bookings make up 20 per cent of its business, quadruple the size of three years ago.

BOOKED SINCE JULY

A Manitoba survey showed the single spot most sought by Manitobans was Acapulco, Mexico, but the resort has been booked fully since last July.

The Toronto agency guessed that the mass attraction of Mexico is mainly in that it's relatively cheap to get there and live there and it's the nearest foreign country with a different culture.

The rise in southbound travel seems general across the country, though an over-all increase figure cannot be reached. A common explanation: Canadian weather and more money to get away from it.

Also, says Henry Kent, manager of a Regina travel service: "A lot of rural people who didn't travel before want to know what it's all about. They're doing more travelling, thanks in part to good crops."

Newfoundland is an exception to the current southbound drift. This customarily takes place at Easter, with Florida, Bermuda, the Bahamas and Jamaica favored. A St. John's agency says many Newfoundlanders are travelling now, but mainly staying north.

STRETCH VACATIONS

Some highlights around the country:

British Columbia: Many persons are combining a late 1966 and early 1967 vacation for a long trip. Travel up 20 per cent, with Mexico and Hawaii in big demand.

Alberta: Hawaii most popular, with business up 30 per cent. Caribbean travel up 40 per cent. Reduced air fares to Spain and Portugal stirring up interest.

Saskatchewan: Hawaii, the Caribbean and Mexico the most popular, with Arizona and New Mexico up high. Many head south by automobile.

Ontario: Besides the Mexican boom, travel to the Caribbean is sharply increased.

Quebec: All big airlines with services to warm countries almost solidly booked over the Christmas season.

New Brunswick: Florida continues popular but there is a trend to go farther south, especially to Barbados.

Nova Scotia: Bermuda probably most popular because of a new direct Air Canada service, but many still head for Florida, a traditional favorite. Increasing numbers taking southern ship cruises.

'Too Many Talkers'

The world has produced for more war-makers than it has peace-makers, says Rev. Norman Arcser, minister of Stevenson Memorial and Emmanuel Baptist churches.

"This is probably because 'it takes neither brains nor heart to set a match to the powder keg.

"The world is crying out for answers to its quarrels and, if a comment may be made on the present Vietnam situation, it is that there are far too many peace-talkers and not enough peace-makers at work.

"Jesus Christ has given to the world the one infallible method of peace-making."

ARCHER
. . . make peace

Mr. Archer will deal with this subject in the eighth of a series of sermons on The Beatitudes in Stevenson Memorial and Emmanuel Baptist churches Sunday morning.

At the evening service he will give the eighth in a series on Prophecy, entitled One Taken, the Other Left.

The choir, directed by Mrs. Otto Niedermann, with Henry Pluym at the organ, will be heard in the anthems Now Sing We Joyfully Unto God and Evening and Morning.

Annual Auction Sale

The men's club of St. Dunstan's Anglican Church, Gordon Head, will hold its annual auction sale in the church hall, Tyndall and San Juan avenues, on Saturday, Feb. 25, at 2 p.m. An interesting variety of antiques and garden tools will be offered, says P. W. Elwell, secretary.

18 City Choirs To Participate

Eighteen Victoria choirs will participate in the annual Festival of Choirs in First United Church Thursday at 8 p.m.

The annual festival is presented by the Victoria chapter of the Royal Canadian College or Organists.

Veteran Victoria choir leader Frank Tupman will conduct the massed choirs in Anthem for Centennial Confederation (Healey Willan), Let the Bright Seraphim and Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite.

Eric Boothroyd will be at the organ and Peggy Walton Packard will be soloist in the anthem Let the Bright Seraphim.

Individual selections will be given by 17 Victoria church choirs and the Arion Male Voice Choir, founded in 1890 by the late Herbert Kent.

Choir To Sing For Cub Packs

The 50-voice Arion Male Choir will present a program of song in Centennial United Church, Gorge at David Street, Monday at 8 p.m.

The choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will donate proceeds from the concert to Sixth Camosun District Cubs, Scouts and Ventures.

Thousands of Cubs, Scouts To Honor Birth of Founder

The 110th anniversary of the birth of Lord Baden-Powell — founder of the Boy Scout movement — will be honored in many Victoria churches this Sunday.

Born on Feb. 22, 1857, Lord Baden-Powell founded the worldwide organization with a camp at Brownsea Island, Dorset, England, in 1907.

Scouts, Cubs and Guides will honor the anniversary at church parades marking the first day of what is now established as Baden-Powell Week.

★ ★ ★

Cubs and Scouts of the 8th Camosun (First United) Troop will parade to the 11 a.m. service in First United Church when Rev. Robert J. D. Morris will speak on Faith in Adversity.

Sharing in the conduct of the service will be Ernest G. Cummings. It will be re-broadcast over CKDA at 7 p.m.

The choir, directed by W. H. Gregory, will sing Fear Not Ye O Israel and On Jordan's Banks. Paul Wharf, the soloist, will be heard in If With All Your Hearts from Mendelssohn's Elijah.

At the 9:30 a.m. service, the junior choir will sing Jesus Tender Shepherd Hear Us.

★ ★ ★

Belmont Avenue United Cub Pack and Scout Troop, 11th Fort Victoria, will parade to Belmont Avenue United Church at 7 p.m. Guest speaker will be Ray Nesbitt, an elder of the church and cubmaster at St. Alban's. The minister, Rev. Murray Henderson, will be assisted by Bruce Walton, Renee Watson and Barbara Gottfried.

★ ★ ★

More than 400 Cubs, Scouts and Ventures of the Douglas district will attend church service Sunday at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Burnside Road.

The group will meet at the church at 2 p.m., and service is scheduled to get under way at 2:30.

Rev. John Vickers will give the main address and Rev. H. R. Whitmore will dedicate the Maple Leaf flag for Douglas district.

Protestants Invite RCs Into Council

By NORMAN CRIBBENS, Times Church Editor

The Roman Catholic Church should be a working part of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches, says Rev. Dr. S. J. Parsons, president of the council.

Addressing the council's annual meeting Wednesday, Dr. Parsons expressed regret that Bishop Remi De Roo and the Roman Catholic clergy of Victoria only attend council meetings as observers.

DR. PARSONS
. . . 'admit Catholics'

"The time has come when we must make provisions for the Roman church to become a working part of this council, particularly at the local level.

"This has happened in such places as Edmonton and Seattle. After responding to the great Pope John and the willingness of the Roman church to follow him, it isn't right that Roman Catholic clergy should be kept merely sitting with us.

"Ways and means must be found to give them full privileges with us. I believe we should open the gates so widely that they have no reason to say they are not welcome as full members with us.

"We should make the council such an effective arm of Church of Christ in this city that Bishop De Roo and his clergy will feel it is well worth their while to become active among us."

●

Dr. Parsons said the Council of Churches suffers from the same basic complaint as the United Nations.

"The major faults of the United Nations plague this council. The individual nations have not sufficient faith in the larger body to let go of their own national autonomy.

"It must be our concern to see to it that the spirit of genuine ecumencity is cultivated at the denominational level, so that we can commit ourselves to the great principle of inter-church action.

"We need to trust each other separately and corporatively."

Dr. Parsons said it is important that members elected to the Council of Churches should have the complete confidence of their respective congregations.

●

"They should be men who carry the mind and will of their individual churches, men entrusted with the power to make and implement policies and programs within the framework of the council.

"I believe this council must be able to speak and act in the confidence that it does the will of the membership bodies."

Dr. Parsons spoke of the importance of holding inter-church discussion groups in private homes.

"Twenty-four gathered in one of our homes recently. Two were Roman Catholics, one an Anglican, one a member of the Brethren, two were Baptists and the rest were United Church.

●

"This type of gathering is well worthwhile and I believe we should hold them all the year round."

Dr. Parsons was elected president of the council for 1967. Bishop Denys Rankilor of the Reformed Episcopal Church of Our Lord, first vice-president; Rev. John Watson, First Baptist Church, second vice-president; Rev. David Metzger, Grace Lutheran Church, secretary; Rev. John Watson, treasurer.

CHURCH NOTES

Morality and Law Unitarian Topic

Victoria barrister Cecil O. D. Branson will speak on Morality and the law at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday services of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

"Mr. Branson will discuss the place morality has in our laws," a church spokesman said. He will give a comparison of natural law, promulgated by some divine authority, and positive law, as made by man.

"There will be a discussion on what happens when the two contradict each other."

The Unitarian Church meets in the Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street.

★ ★ ★

The choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterina Church will give a joint concert with the Arion Male Choir and the Rotary Boys' Choir in the Kirk Hall, Courtney Street, March 3, at 8 p.m.

Proceeds will go to the choir project fund of St. Andrew's.

★ ★ ★

The Musical Entertainers, a group of eight instrumentalists, will give a concert in the Open Door Church, 1600 Cook Street, Monday at 7:45 p.m.

The ensemble comrises four men and four women performing on trumpet, euphonium, organ, piano, violin, two harps and an accordion. It is directed by Mrs. Grace Hawkins.

Proceeds will go to the choir will go to the provision of extra seats in the Open Door Church.

'UNDERGROUND MOVE SPREADING IN U.S.'

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — An "underground church" whose members are concerned with poverty, war and peace, sex, and race is rapidly spreading across the United States, a controversial Episcopal (Anglican) priest said Wednesday.

BOYD
. . . war and sex

Rev. Malcolm Boyd, sometimes called the "espresso priest," added that this "religious revolution" is largely unknown to the organized church leadership.

"People in this movement are young and old, rich and poor, black and white," he says.

He is assistant to the rector of Washington's Church of the Atonement and also travels widely as a chaplain-at-large to Episcopal college and university students.

. . . NEWS BRIEFS FROM CITY CHURCHES

the mind of man," writes Rev. John Watson, minister.

"Yet, if we stand in the light of the Cross, we discover that it is not an obscure experience, nor is it irrelevant to life, for it touches our lives at the point of deepest need.

"Its truth can be made visible and its power experienced in the contemporary situations of life."

In the evening, Mr. Watson will discuss Questions People Are Asking, such as:

"In the face of the tragedies of life, is it possible to believe in an Almighty and loving God?

Young people of the church will meet to discuss this question after the evening worship.

* * *

Victoria branch of the British-Israel World Federation (Canada) will meet in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 3 p.m. to hear a talk by W. Taylor on Reading The Bible With History and the News.

* * *

Centennial United Church will hold its annual Prairie Night Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"This is the night when visitors from the Prairies, and former Prairie residents now living here, are especially feted," says Rev. Dr. S. J. Parsons, minister.

"We invite all Victoria people to come and meet friends from every point on the Prairies and elsewhere in Canada."

A musical program, with refreshments, will be held after the service.

* * *

Barrie Neff and Neil Solomon will be admitted to the servers' guild of Christ Church Cathedral at the 11 a.m. Eucharist Sunday service.

"Both have already given proof of their competence and dependability," writes Dean Brian Whitlow.

A number of Girl Guides from the Victoria area will take part in the service.

* * *

Robert Ferguson will be guest speaker Sunday morning in Victoria Truth Centre, an affiliate of the International New Thought Alliance, at 1201 Fort Street.

His subject will be It Works.

At the 7:30 p.m. worship, Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will discuss the words "On This Rock."

A healing ministry will be held in the church Tuesday at 3 p.m. A study group devoted to The Meaning of the Mark will meet on Wednesday at 8 p.m. to discuss: Three Men, Three Ages, Three Thoughts.

* * *

Secrets of the Kingdom will be the sermon subject of Rev. Albert King in Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning.

The Sanctuary Choir, conducted by Frank Tupman, will present the anthems O How Amiable Are Thy Dwellings and Schubert's Sanctus.

In the evening, Rev. E. Laura Butler will speak on Judgment Is Destructive, and the Sanctuary Choir will sing Father in High Heaven Dwelling.

Eric Boothroyd's organ preludes on the new church console will be Moderato in E Minor and Cantilene Pastorale.

* * *

Rev. John B. Richards, professor at the Northwest Theological College, Vancouver, will be guest speaker at morning and evening services in Central Baptist Church.

His subjects will be Form Without Function and O Lord, Go Away! The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed after the morning service.

The mid-week prayer service will not be held next Wednesday because of the annual church business meeting being held at that time.

* * *

The Christian hope is the thought for Sunday when Rev. H. R. Whitmore talks on Thinking of Fear to Faith at both Garden City and Wilkinson Road United churches.

At the 10 a.m. service at Garden City, the anthem will be God So Loved the World and at 11:15 at Wilkinson, the anthem will be They That Trust in the Lord.

* * *

Miss Helen Dewar, formerly of Victoria, is a novice in the Convent of the Sisters of the Church at Oakville, Ont.

Visiting Ontario last week, Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Cathedral called on Miss Dewar, and was invited to celebrate Holy Communion in the convent chapel.

* * *

Rev. A. G. McLeod will continue a series of Lenten sermons in St. Aidan's United Church Sunday morning, when his topic will be The Cost of Discipleship.

Carol Hayward will sing When Children Pray and the choir, led by Vera Barclay, will sing the anthem O Jesus Christ, Thou Dearest Lord.

A film will be shown at the evening service when the choir will sing Deep Harmony.

Camp Weekend

Members of Fairfield United Church Hi-C group are spending the weekend at George Pringle Camp, Shawnigan Lake. Counsellors are Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley, Mrs. Lorna McLennon and Clifford Horwood. Chief speaker will be James Sclater, director of Young Life.

ONTARIO LAW IRKS MENNONITES

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A collision between the Mennonite way of life and new compulsory social legislation may force families of this faith to leave after more than 165 years in this area, says Elven Shantz.

Mr. Shantz, a retired Kitchener businessman, has been acting as a spokesman for the Mennonites in the dispute with the Ontario government.

Difficulties were brought to a head by the extension of the Workmen's Compensation Act to farmers in January, 1966. About 100 of the 250 Old Order Mennonite families have applied for exemption from the act.

"Ultimately a lot will leave if this legislation is followed through," said Mr. Shantz.

He said some are already planning to move to the British Honduras, where the constitution protects the beliefs of the order.

"There are already more than 4,000 there now," he said.

They argue that as they have no workers other than those from their own families or from the order, and as they pay no salaries, they should be exempted.

They say it is their Christian duty to care for their own and they want nothing to do with the government.

Celibate Role Defended

TORONTO (CP) — Most Rev. Philip F. Pocock, Roman Catholic co-adjutor archbishop of Toronto, says he knows of no doctrinal reason why women couldn't be ordained as priests.

Speaking to an audience on the changing role of the priest, Archbishop Pocock defended the celibate priesthood and said priests are going through a purifying process by exposure to the secular press.

He said that a man entering the priesthood and a life of celibacy must love more, not less.

"He must love God with his whole heart, and his whole mind and his whole soul, and must be willing to sacrifice the love of a woman," he said.

He said the celibate life enables the priest to dedicate his life completely to God.

CITES REASON

The Archbishop listed a growing lack of reverence for priests and bishops and an increased interest in religious affairs on the part of the secular news media as two of the reasons for the shortage of men entering priesthood.

He said just as newspapers put headlines on crime rather than virtue, they also report the faults of the church and the priests.

On the possibility of ordaining women eligible to vote," he said it would be interesting to find out what women themselves want.

"I sometimes think we should take a vote on it with only women eligilbe to vote," he said.

Archbishop Pocock said another aspect of change in the status of priests, especially members of the church hierarchy, is less use of ecclesiastical pomp. He said titles such as My Lord, Your Grace and Your Excellency resulted from cultures when ecclesiastical and civil power were intermingled.

Special Study On Gas Report

A Social Credit backbencher got his way and the Liberal MLAs didn't Friday but the legislature was unanimous in creating a special 14-MLA committee to update the Morrow royal commission report on gasoline prices.

SHELFORD
. . . gets his way

Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca), who sparked creation of the royal commission, Wednesday demanded in the legislature that the committee be set up this week so it could begin meetings next week.

It had been held up Monday when Liberal Leader Ray Perrault refused to give unanimous assent to establishment of the committee without notice, on the grounds it was loaded by the government.

He objected again Friday that the nine Socred, four NDP and one Liberal "composition of the committee did not reflect the composition of the legislature."

Mr. Perrault argued that a fair and democratic representation on the committee would have been six, three and one.

OUT OF ORDER

Denying any intention to obstruct, he made an amendment noting "regret" the composition was unfair which he said would not prevent establishment of the committee. But Speaker William Murray ruled it out of order.

David Barrett (NDP — Coquitlam) said the gasoline prices report will affect the lives of all British Columbians and his party will attack any group that tries to delay the committee.

"This committee better not sit on any report until the end of the session," he warned the government.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner denied that the committee was loaded and said there were others with nine Socred members.

Dr. Pat McGeer (L — Vancouver Point Grey) said the issue of "scrupulous fairness" in apportioning seats on legislative committees transcends other issues.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said he seconded the motion for creating the committee because it was important to activate as soon as possible.

"And I had the feeling the Liberal party wanted to delay this committee from sitting because they represent the big oil companies of this province," he said.

"What a shameful thing to say," snapped Mr. Perrault.

No one dissented to establishment of the committee when the motion came to a vote.

Children Abandoned

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Police said Friday they are looking for a woman who apparently abandoned her nine and eight-year-old children in a trailer here. The two children had set fire to a mattress in an apparent attempt to keep warm.

Better Deal For Everyone Urged by MLA

Unanimous approval in principle for a $10 increase in this year's home-owner's grant was given Friday by the legislature but not before opposition members raised demands for a better deal for all citizens in B.C. communities.

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) and Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) criticized the government's attitude to the municipalities before the bill raising the grant to $120 received second reading.

Mr. Macfarlane pointed out the increase amounts to only 83 cents of assistance per month for each home-owner faced with rising taxes and Mr. Macdonald said it would fall short of the $15 average increase in school taxes alone for Vancouver ratepayers.

NEW DEAL REFUSED

Mr. Macfarlane said Premier Bennett harps on the need for a new federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangement but refuses to give municipalities a new federal-provincial tax-urbanization is creating a major problem.

He pointed out Greater Victoria in the near future will have to undertake major hospital and school construction programs, spend $23 million for a regional sewer system and $40 million or more on major roads.

"Is all this to be derived from the tax on property?" he asked.

Mr. Bennett countered that municipal taxes "in this province are the lowest in all of Canada."

"The municipalities keep all the taxes they collect but we give them 54 per cent of the taxes we collect."

He said the opposition originally opposed the home-owner grant but supports it now because it's afraid of losing votes.

FILM TELLS STORY OF CENTENNIAL SQUARE

Colorful Return Home for Clack

Former Victoria planner Rod Clack came home Friday carrying his favorite project in the form of a color movie.

At a private showing at the University of Victoria, Mr. Clack screened for the second time in two weeks the story of Centennial Square.

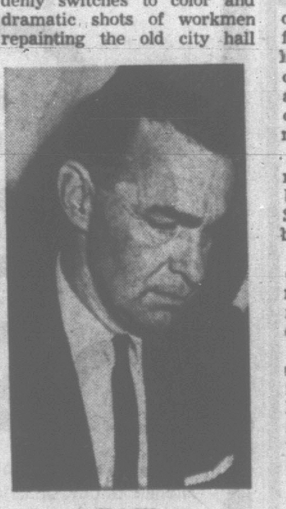
Though billed as the premiere of "Townscape Rediscovered," Mr. Clack confessed that a select group of government officials in Ottawa were excited by the movie two weeks ago.

Started some years ago by newsman Ian Street subbing as cameraman, Mrs. Elsie Shepherd and Mr. Clack as a historic record of the transformation of a jaded city area to the sparkling jewel of Centennial Square today, the movie has obvious flaws.

EVERY ANGLE

But they are more than counter-balanced by some magnificent color photography showing the Square from every angle.

Opening with drab black and white shots of older parts of the city, the movie suddenly switches to color and dramatic shots of workmen repainting the old city hall clock tower and then to an even more dramatic shot of the finished Square from a helicopter.



CLACK

Some critics will feel that the best wine was served first rather than last.

Interwoven with the story of Centennial Square is the equally inspiring story of the development of Bastion Square.

For the locals the switch from Centennial to Bastion and back was easy to follow. People of other provinces may not find the transition so easy.

GREAT BEAUTY

But even if they are confused as to which Square they are in, they cannot help but be impressed by the transformation of two tumbled-down areas of the city to open areas of great beauty.

Even the natives were impressed with the camera work of Jack Long, a former Weekend Magazine photographer, who eventually took over the movie camera chores from Mr. Street.

He shows the Square through new eyes, gives it tremendous perspective and shows without words what could be done to keep it vitally alive.

Old pro that he is when behind a lens, Mr. Long doesn't miss any bets.

OLD, YOUNG FACES

His camera touches lightly on old faces in the sun, young faces at the fountain, rests lingeringly on a happy nun crossing the Square and drops away to a battered pair of old canvas shoes carefully surmounting red-brick steps.

From a stirring quartet to a rock 'n' roll group of bearded beatniks to the skirl of a Scottish pipe band, Mr. Long brings the Square to life.

There is little doubt that his camera work will set many a municipal council astir as the movie crosses the country during the next year.

The script for the movie, narrated in somewhat dull fashion, was first drafted by Mr. Street, who confesses that he is more at home behind a typewriter than he is behind a camera.

Unfortunately, it has been vetted since that first draft and lacks even the slightest touch of lightness or humor.

Even the funny line (or was it a serious exhortation?) "If it can be done here (in Victoria) it can be done anywhere," though drawing the only laugh of the evening, came through with solemn intonation.

CITY TO BENEFIT

But the criticisms in general have to remain picayune.

With promised exposure across the country, Victoria cannot help from benefit from each showing.

The city comes through as a place of great beauty and its civic leaders, past and present, as men of vision and courage.

It will, we suspect, touch off many similar projects for the betterment of the nation as a whole.

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he was so impressed by the film that a copy is being ordered to enable the city to show with pride what it did with imagination.

Prior to the showing of the movie in the Arts Building auditorium Mayor Stephen had high praise for Messrs. Street and Clack and for Mrs. Shepherd.

Chairman for the evening was Professor Tony Emery.

A Tradition of Courtesy, Kindness and Service

It was in horse and buggy days when we began our service in Victoria. In all the years since, we have never lost sight of our ideal of providing reasonably priced memorials marked by courtesy, kindness and service.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Start begonia tubers in damp peat moss at 65 to 75 degrees F.

Sow seed of sweet peas indoors in peat pots for later moving to the garden. Also sow indoors, seed of salpiglossis, petunia, nicotiana, gazania, ursinia and dwarf bedding dahlias.

Look over all rooted cuttings of hardy material to put into separate pots or cans. Many of these will be ready to plant outdoors in April.

Take cuttings of the late flowering chrysanthemums. The early blooming ones are taken in late March.

Plant dwarf conifers and shrubs, but delay very small plants unless soil conditions are ideal in your garden.

Make a mixture of sand, peat, screened leafmould and sterilized soil to use around rock plants which have had soil eroded by heavy rains.

Prune and spray fruit trees, currants and gooseberries.

Sow seed of summer cauliflower, summer cabbage and sprouts in a flat to be kept in a covered cold frame or an unheated porch; then prick out into other flats.

If soil of vegetable garden not too wet to walk on, spread compost or old manure; dig into top few inches and leave rough.

Unit Increases Resale Value

The cost of installing year-round air conditioning varies depending on the size of the house, and whether it is a new house still under construction, or an existing house. Also affecting the cost are the many factors having a bearing on the cooling and heating loads necessary to give y9u and your family complete loads necessary to give you year-round comfort.

A rough guide, according to the Canadian Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Association, on the cost of adding the cooling function (which includes proper air circulation and dehumidification) to the heating function would be between 50 and 75 cents per square foot of floor area in a home with ducts suitable for cooling. You should allow approximately $600 for the other elements of complete year-round climate comfort — an electronic air cleaner, power humidifier, fresh air control and zone temperature control. Check though, as you may already have some of these elements in your present heating system.

LOCAL RATE

Operating costs of year-round air conditioning will depend on what your local utility rate is and how much heating and cooling is needed to make you and your family comfortable reports CRACA. It is safe to assume that the operating cost of making a heating system into a year-round air conditioning system is only pennies a day.

In order to get a true picture of the cost of year-round air conditioning for your home it is wise to consider the savings to be made in cleaning, redecorating bills, elimination of mildew and moisture damage. Include also saving from such "hot weather items" as electric fan operation, eating out, extra beverages, entertainment and gasoline for rides to "cool off."

It should also be remembered that year-round residential air conditioning is an investment which not only increases the resale value of your house but increases its marketability.

Dos, Don'ts of Tree Pruning

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

We are told that February is the month in which fruit trees should be pruned, and pruning, to many gardeners, means just one thing — reducing a plant to their own idea of its size and shape.

Fear and inexperience combine to totally disrupt the normal growth and habits of many trees, the fear stemming from a vague feeling that trees will not bear fruit unless every little twig and every branch has its end removed.

The fallacy of this is clearly demonstrated by trees growing in the wild. Such trees will often produce quite a tangle of twigs and branches, some weak, others vigorous and strong.

Over the years the weak branches are eliminated in several ways. If carrying too much weight of fruit, they break. Strong winds remove many, while heavy snow will snap those which resist the winds. This leaves the wild tree with only the strongest growths, those able to withstand crop weight and tempest.

PERFECT TREE

A cultivated fruit tree, left to its own devices, would fare the same. If this is a fact, why do we resort to pruning our trees?

We do it because man endeavors to bend the tree to his will, believing his superior knowledge will result in what he considers to be a perfect tree with perfect crops.

Instead of allowing a young fruit tree to grow naturally as it would in the wild, he removes all young shoots considered unnecessary, and encourages those which, in his estimation, would develop into a tree comparable to his mental picture of the ideal.

Directly after planting, and for the next four years or so, the aim is to build up a scaffold of branches suitably placed to receive maximum light and air, and strong enough to withstand weather and carry large crops of fruit.

When the framework has been completed on a young tree, the next step is to encourage the production of fruit.

Having learned to distinguish between buds that will produce twigs and leaves (wood buds) and those which produce flowers (fruit buds), the next few years are devoted to reducing the amount of unnecessary wood by limiting the number of wood buds, and increasing the fruit crop by encouraging the formation of fruit buds or fruiting spurs.

As soon as the young tree becomes an adult, usually eight to 10 years after planting, the main object in pruning is to maintain a delicate balance between fruit production and new growth.

There must always be a certain amount of new growth, but it should not be made at the expense of fruit. Nor should the amount of fruit the tree is permitted to bear be at the expense of the necessary new growth.

There, in a nutshell, we have man's basic theory of pruning fruit trees.

From this theory certain facts emerge. Firstly, it is clear that indiscriminate trimming of every twig and branch is not conducive to building an ideal tree.

STUDY EVERY CUT

Every cut has to be considered in advance, weighing carefully all the possibilities that may result, and then performed only if the balance is in favor of improvement.

Secondly, that an established fruit tree that has settled down to producing a balanced crop of wood and fruit will not require any pruning. In fact, pruning under such a condition would upset the delicate balance.

Thirdly, that pruning a fruit tree in February is only a small part of a predetermined, long-range plan, a plan which will be followed year after year throughout the life of the tree, always being modified and adjusted to prevailing circumstances but constantly aimed at the goal of a perfect tree.

Fourthly, that the pruning suited to one habit of growth, or variety of apple or pear, may be totally unsuited to another. Each tree has to be considered as an individual and treated accordingly.

GROWTH HABITS

Environment, which is a combination of soil, water, food, climate and location in a garden, has a great bearing on habit of growth. A McIntosh apple in one garden is no criterion by which we may judge a corresponding tree in the garden next door, and the two may require quite different decisions when it comes to pruning.

The most difficult trees to handle are those which have been well cared for in their younger years and then left to grow and spread as they pleased.

When a garden is acquired having such trees, the first inpulse is to saw them down to a size the gardener thinks is desirable. It is here that the basic rule of all pruning must be kept in mind: The more wood you cut off, the more new wood will return.

Any drastic cutting back will totally upset the balance, and for the next few years the tree will produce masses of twigs and foliage, very little fruit if any, and end up larger than it was in the first place.

The correct procedure is to determine how much new growth the tree has been making in the past. This is shown by the color of the bark.

Then lay out a plan to cover the next five years, deciding what should be removed and how much of it can be taken off each year without disturbing the balance of growth too severely. This is the only way an old tree can be reduced in size and still remain productive.

To see these pruning theories put into operation, attend the fruit tree pruning demonstrations on Wednesday and Saturday of next week, sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society.

The meeting on Feb. 22 will be at 1710 Rockland Avenue, and on Feb. 25 at 1250 Hastings Street. Both will start promptly at 2 p.m. with Alan Littler, district horticulturist BCDA, in charge.

Money, Land Major Causes

TORONTO — Periodic shortages of mortgage money and high cost of land development were pinpointed as the major causes of increased housing costs by William G. Connelly, president of the National House Builders Association, in an appearance before the joint Senate-Commons Committee on Consumer Credit, at Ottawa.

On behalf of his Association Mr. Connelly placed several proposals before the committee which he said could solve some of the problems besetting the industry.

'Losers Weepers' Dramatic Story Of Watts' Area

Gloria Calomee arrived "cold" for her interview. She did not know what the show was all about. She was given the script to read. Then she was asked what she thought of it.

"I think this show is potentially award-winning!" she exclaimed.

That something-special feeling is typical of everyone connected with the show because the play, "Losers Weepers," is something special.

It's an original play by 36-year-old Harry E. Dolan, who was discovered in Budd Schulberg's writing workshop set up in the Watts area of Los Angeles. "Losers Weepers" is the first drama in a series of 10 presentations on "NBC Experiment in Television," colorcast over Channel 5 at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Comedy Hour

Jack Benny, George Burns and Israeli singer Esther Ofarim are guest stars on "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" Sunday at 9 p.m. in color on channels 7 and 12.

Tom and Dick Smothers open the show with two musical numbers, "The Lonesome Traveler" and "They Call the Wind Maria."

Amateur Finals

The semi-finals of the 1967 U.S. amateur talent championship will be broadcast on "Ted Mack and the Original Amateur Hour" in two parts on consecutive weeks starting Sunday at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 12.

Sports Feature

Finals of the men's singles at the 1967 U.S. indoor tennis championship in color will be presented on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Sunday at 2:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

In addition, a feature in color on the sport of gliding and films of the 1912 Jack Johnson-Jim Flynn heavyweight title fight will be part of the program.

Jack Whitaker, host of the series, is commentator for the gliding and boxing segments. He will be joined by amateur tennis ace Chuck McKinley in describing the tennis portion.

The broadcast of the men's singles finals will originate at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Centre, Salisbury, Md. Leading tennis players from 18 countries will compete in the indoor championships.

The July 4, 1912, Johnson-Flynn bout, a ring classic of the early era of boxing in the U.S., was Johnson's first title defence after taking the crown from Jim Jeffries two years earlier. In addition to the bout, the film includes a sparring sequence between Johnson and Marty Cutler, sparring partner to six heavyweight champions, on the ground instead of in a ring.

In the gliding segment, the art of hill gliding is demonstrated by the London Gliding Club.

Indonesia

"Indonesia: The Troubled Victory," last program in "The Battle for Asia," a three-part color series examining Communist expansion and U.S. counteraction in Southeast Asia, will be presented by NBC News Sunday on Channel 5 at 6:30 p.m.

Since October, 1965, when the Partai Kommunis Indonesia, the third largest Communist party in the world, failed in its plot to seize power in Indonesia, the biggest, most strategic country in Southeast Asia, Indonesia, has been on the brink of civil war. "Indonesia: The Troubled Victory" documents the bloody events of the past year, and examines the failure of the Communist coup

Wild Kingdom

Marlin Perkins and Jim Fowler journey to a remote valley of southern Utah where they are greeted by four pairs of beady eyes in four "masked" faces peering out of the trees, in "Racoon Valley" on Wild Kingdom" colorcast on the NBC network Sunday at 5 p.m. on Channel 5.

STAR OF NBC comedy show "Get Smart", Don Adams is seen with wife Dorothy and daughter Stacey Noel. Series is seen Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock on Channel 5.

The faces belong to a family of captivating raccoons — a mother and her three youngsters that live in the scenic valley that also is home for the badger, the beaver, the muskrat and the bear.

Perkins and Fowler follow the raccoon family in their adventures with these and many other animals. In defending her family, mother raccoon is shown fighting a snarling, spitting clawing bobcat and in a battle with a coyote.

In other highlights the family embarks on a unique fishing expedition; the youngsters face pain and peril as they explore their valley, and mother raccoon teaches her trio to survive.

Glider Story

A California teen-ager's fascination for bird-watching inspires him to become a champion glider pilot, in "The Boy Who Flew with Condors" on "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" Sunday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

While watching the graceful flight of the California condor, young Christopher Jury spots a glider about to land near him. Margaret Birsner climbs from the craft, and explains she has just soared a distance of 31 miles cross-country, thereby earning her Silver "C" distance badge.

Margaret invites Chris to be her guest at the Torrey Pines soaring meet. Fascinated by the beauty and grace of the sailplanes, Chris enrolls at the Techachipi Soaring School, and begins the long ordeal of earning his wings.

Soaring expert Fred Harris and NASA test pilot Milt Thompson make appearances.

VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

ROBERT WOLDERS
. . . born in Holland

Western Star Has Flashy Costumes

Robert Wolders, one of the dandiest western stars ever, pushed a multi-colored brocade Texas Ranger hat back from his face, pulled his feet out of the gaudiest pair of cowboy boots to kick up dust on the streets of Laredo, and said in a heavy Dutch accent, "Riding and romping are easy enough. It's the costume changes that wear me out."

Wolders, a co-star of NBC Television Network's "Laredo," has good reason to be tired of changing clothes. His stage wardrobe includes 18 different flashy outfits as compared to one or two other western stars wear. In almost every show, Wolders makes as many as eight changes.

Every costume Wolders wears is more preposterous than those worn by any previous western star: purple velvet shirts trimmed in lace; regal brocade jackets, hats and boots; brilliant colored pants and accessories.

DREAMS COME TRUE

"It fits the character well," Wolders said. "The Ranger, Eric Hunter, is a mysterious, romantic European. He's not afraid of a fight, but he prefers talking his way out of a tough situation.

"Eric Hunter is the type of character I've always dreamed of playing. As a matter of fact, all my dreams are coming true now. And the biggest one may come true next year."

Wolders explained he has always wanted to relax by sailing a boat from one international port to another. However, he may find his visits to foreign ports anything but relaxing. The new U.S. television star will likely find himself surrounded by hordes of fans almost anywhere he travels.

"Laredo" has been sold by NBC to television stations in the United Kingdom, Finland, Portugal, Argentina, Australia, Canada, Japan. Lebanon, Mexico Thailand Uruguay, Venezuela and other countries. Even if Wolders sails to Saudi Arabia or Nigeria, he may find his role as a Texas Ranger in the internationally popular "Laredo" series has made him a well-known personality there.

"I think it's ironic that I'll be seen in a popular television series in Europe," Wolders said. "I was born in Holland — Rotterdam — and lived there most of my life. I started my acting career there, but to really be successful, I left Holland and came to the U.S."

Does Wolders regret leaving Europe? "Not at all. Of course I still love my Rotterdam, and the European atmosphere, but the fast-paced, convenient way of life in the U.S. is most suitable."

CBC to Debut New Show

Steve Forrest Stars As Undercover Agent In Adventure Series

John Mannering, alias The Baron, comes to the CBC-TV network, making his debut in the drama series bearing his name, on Tuesday, at 9 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6. The Baron, in color, is a one-hour adventure series starring Steve Forrest in the title role. The series is English-produced.

John Mannering is an antique dealer in London, where his activities involve buying and selling international treasures. This business provides a camouflage for his exciting life as an undercover agent.

The Baron was created by author John Creasey, a writer of best-selling mysteries and thrillers whose books (about 450 of them so far) appear under his own name and about a dozen pseudonyms. In fact, The Baron books bear the imprint of Anthony Morton as author.

This English writer has also created another character known to CBC-TV viewers, Commander Gideon of Gideon's Way, seen on the network as a summer replacement.

Hendry Drama

Thomas Hendry's nostalgic television drama of idealistic youth in wartime, Fifteen Miles of Broken Glass, will be repeated on CBC-TV's Festival series, Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Starred are Terence Kelly as 17-year-old Alec McNabb, an air cadet with a yen to join the RCAF and become a fighter ace; and Heath Lamberts as Stolz, his sidekick.

The play opens in Winnipeg in the summer of 1945, on V-J Night. The story is told in a series of flashbacks, as Alec and Stolz commiserate over the end of the Second World War. Alec was born too late to be a hero.

Perry Como Show

Vocalist Frances Langford and the comedy team of Avery Schreiber and Jack Burns will be the guest stars when Perry Como presents a full hour of songs and comedy on the NBC network's special colorcast of "Perry Comos' Kraft Music Hall" Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5. The program will pre-empt "Bob Hope Presents and Chrysler Theatre."

Como and his guests will be joined by the regular members of the specials—announcer Frank Gallop, the Ray Charles Singers, Danny Daniels Dancers, and Nick Perito and orchestra.

"Perry Como's Kraft Music Hall" colorcasts are produced by Ray Charles, directed by Clark Jones and written by Goodman Ace with Bill Angelos and Buz Kohan. Nick Perito is orchestral arranger and conductor, Danny Daniels is choreographer, Henry Howard is associate producer and Paul Barnes is art director.

Animals Are Stars

Clarence the cross-eyed lion stands guard at a station wagon? No problem.

Modoc the elephant arrives pulling a trailer? No problem.

Judy the chimp opens a car hood? No problem.

A leopard rushed in and swipes at Paula? Now you've got a problem.

Thus goes what might be called assessing the degree of difficulty in animal work on "Daktari" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in color on the CBS television network's Channel 7.

It's not always easy to combine natural enemies, put actors in close proximity with wild animals and get animals to perform more or less on cue.

It takes patient work behind the scenes to have two actors bandaging an ostrich ("the original bird brain," says star Marshall Thompson); to lead a skittish (is there another kind?) hyena, or to persuade a leopard to go from Point A to Point B without being diverted by stray birds, leaves or people. Producer Leonard B. Kaufman says, "There may be harder shows in Hollywood to make, but I don't know what they are."

The difficulty lies in the uncertainty of wild animal behavior.

"Clarence will do what we want him to, eventually and maybe," Kaufman said. "It depends on how he feels. The actors and crew have to be ready to adjust."

Judy, the chimpanzee star of the show, can do virtually anything. But trainers have to show her how. And it takes some persuasion to get her to appear at ease with strange animals.

A typical script breakdown may require between 130 and 150 separate items of animal action, ranging from "Clarence sniffs at tree trunk" to "Judy attaches hook to jeep bumper, then jumps onto hood."

Each direction represents a separate camera shot. Trainers must be ready to work the animal action as the production schedule requires.

"However," says producer Kaufman, "it's anything but a rigid operation. We're always ready to go on to something else if Clarence is feeling cranky and just wants to sit."

Chamber Urges Single Charity

A single charity appeal covering all institutional and organized drives for public donations was advocated Friday in a special proposal by Chamber of Commerce president Courtney Haddock.

He made the submission to a directors' meeting, which adopted a draft resolution to be sent to all Victoria service clubs, Victoria Labor Council, Junior Chamber of Commerce and similar groups for their endorsation and forwarding to the mayor and Greater Victoria reeves.

Mr. Haddock noted that although Victoria has a United Appeal, there are still individual fund drives by such organizations as the heart fund, Easter seal compaign, Salvation Army, TB Christmas seals, the Times Unitarian service committee, Colonist fund, Harbor Lights, Red Cross, Solarium, mothers' march and Thanksgiving seals.

They get a total $376,000, he said.

A single approach to satisfy all funds would be most logical and efficient, save duplication of campaigns, reduce costs of administration, save time and energy, permit more effective planning, better co-ordination of effort and reduce the burden on community leadership and volunteer workers.

Such a fund also would benefit the business community by saving canvassing time, reduce payroll accounting work, eliminate employee funds and permit company budgetting for a single amount.

Russia Growing

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The population of the Soviet Union grew more than 70,000,000 since the 1917 revolution, the Soviet news agency Tass said Friday. The agency said the country's population as of July 1 was 233,200,000—the third highest in the world after China, 750,000,000, and India, 472,000,000.

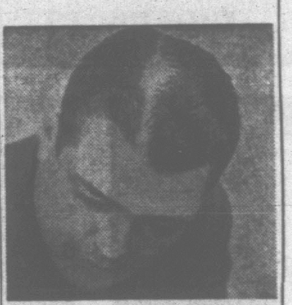
"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Monday and Tuesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, February 20 and 21.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist Victor Booth to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Booth will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Hotel Sussex.



Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incure no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Booth," director Harrison said.

"Your obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

SATISFY 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it.

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

"That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Booth in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex Monday or Tuesday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Booth's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

DAIRY FARMER JOHN PENDRAY IN MODERN SETTING

AUTOMATION MOVES INTO THE BARN

Mooing Approval to Hands Off

By HUMPHRY DAVY

It's "hands off" at John Pendray's farm.

And his 70 big milking Holsteins give approving moos to the rule.

Mr. Pendray has just put into operation a $20,000 milking parlor at his Blenkinsop Road dairy farm which is the ultimate in automation in farming.

●

The parlor is not, as the saying goes, the type into which the spider would invite a fly. It is cleanliness personified, where no flies are welcome, and a spider wouldn't have a hope of survival.

It's a building where a food researcher would feel quite at home. The parlor looks more like a hospital laboratory with its intricate system of stainless steel tanks, plastic pipes and glass containers, than a place of bovine beasts.

It is designed to insure that consumers receive the purest milk, free of all foreign matter.

This is how it's done:

From start to finish no human hands touch the milk during the milking operation.

Teat cups are attached to the cows and milk starts flowing at a rate of about one gallon a minute into large glass containers, along glass and stainless steel pipes to a milk tank in an adjoining room.

The milk is then quickly cooled to a temperature of 40 degrees in the tank which is capable of holding 8,700 pounds of fluid.

From there is is pumped into tank trucks and leaves the farm for pasturization and distribution.

All utensils are washed automatically with detergents and disinfecting solutions.

Mr. Pendray says the main reason he went "modern" was to curb rising production and labor costs.

"It's doing that and eliminating many tedious jobs," he said.

●

He isn't exaggerating. The one-man automatic vacuum operated parlor takes a total of 2½ hours to milk 70 big-uddered Holsteins.'

The same work done by hand by an experienced man would take all day — and more.

The parlor is equipped with push-button doors. The cows, eight at a time, troop in on their own, and walk to individual stalls — four on each side of the building. The operator works in a "well" between the two sets of stalls, never having to bend to the animals.

●

While the cows are being milked, an automatic feeding system provide them with rations in individual troughs.

The milking operation also permits Mr. Pendray to watch for free-loaders — cows who eat all and produce next to nothing.

They don't stand a chance of getting away with it as the milk of each individual cow is measure when it is pumped into a large glass jar.

Then as the milk moves on through the glass pipes, some of it is diverted to sealed jars. It is later tested for weight and butterfat content.

Mr. Pendray pointed out that keeping production records of individual cows is important in the operation of a dairy farm.

"A cow with a high production should receive more feed," he said. "It's converting feed into milk."

Production-wise the modern milking operation is proving a success.

The big black and white cows are producing more and more. In the past 12 months the herd has given 1,000,000 pounds of milk and indications are they will break this record in 1967.

Outside, the cows have it soft. They are kept and fed in a sawdust carpeted compound and instead of going out to pasture the feed is brought to them.

Green feed is grown on the 80-acre farm, as well as a lot of the hay that is fed.

When milking time comes around, the cows are herded into a concrete-paved corral equipped with drains. The manure is washed down the drains into a huge underground tank. This can be pumped out and used to fertilize the fields.

●

While dairy farming is Mr. Pendray's main source of livelihood, he is also one of B.C.'s top potato growers. He has 20 acres in Netted Gems.

His potatoes have won many prizes at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

'Everything Of Value Taken Away'

DUNCAN — Everything that made an Indian an Indian — his values, pride, language, land — have been taken away from him.

This was the theme of a speech made by George Manuel to the annual meeting in Vancouver of the B.C. Indian Friendship Centre.

Mr. Manuel, community development worker with the Cowichan Indian band, was speaking as chairman of the National Indian Advisory Committee.

He said today's Indian suffers from lack of identity.

Mr. Manuel said community development is intended to free the Indian from the paternal concept of white supervision through the Indian Affairs Branch.

He said the current reserve system is no longer acceptable to many Indians who want a new concept of autonomy — the right to control their own destinies.

INDEPENDENCE

Mr. Manuel said: "We want a reserve system with the same political and economic independence as any other Canadian community.

"We want to retain our identity as Indians."

He said the Indian Affairs Branch program of education, industrial and resource development along with improved housing must not be imposed on the Indian but worked out with him.

Mr. Manuel said: "Success or failure of the community development program depends to a large degree on the Indians themselves.

"We must take the first step. We have to create an image which peoples of Canada and abroad will respect."

Duncan Mayor Promises Parking Action This Year

DUNCAN — James L. Whittome, chairman of the city's advisory planning commission, said the downtown will become a depressed area unless additional parking is developed.

He was speaking at a joint meeting of downtown businessmen and members of city council.

Mayor Jack Dobson repeated his promise that a program to expand city parking facilities will be embarked upon this year.

He referred to "promising" negotiations with Marathon Realty (a CPR subsidiary) regarding the leasing of land adjoining the E & N tracks in the city.

The mayor also referred to council inquiries regarding the purchase of other land available for parking.

Mr. Dobson said the city had only limited financial resources, especially having tied up $150,000 in the purchase of land adjoining the proposed new provincial government complex on Station Street.

This project came to a halt early last year after the foundations of the new courthouse were laid.

Mayor Dobson said the idea among some people that the city parking meters brought in massive sums was fictitious. The net profit from meters is approximately $3,600 a year.

No objection was raised by businessmen at the meeting when Mr. Dobson suggested the business tax might have to be raised.

He explained the meeting was held to discover the businessmen's feelings regarding the expansion of parking facilities.

Norman Gourlay pressed for new parking to be near stores and not on the perimeter of the town.

UFO May Be Air Force Flare

DUNCAN — Reports of the sighting of an unidentified flying object Wednesday evening have been pinned down by Sam Koffski, of Campbell Street, as a flare suspended from a parachute.

Mr. Koffski, a licensed pilot, admitted: "It did look weird but if it was an air force flare the light is directed downward and makes the rig look much bigger than it really is."

He described seeing the object drift across the city at about 1,000 feet at a speed of about 40 miles an hour.

Mr. Koffski said: "It was swinging like a pendulum and then suddenly burned out."

Sighting of the UFO was reported by a number of residents.

Abandon Plan, MLA Tells Ottawa

Dr. H. R. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) told the legislature Friday the federal government should abandon the universal aspect of its medicare plan.

"I am not in favor of compulsion," he said.

The federal government should have adopted the B.C. Medical Plan's principle of providing coverage and subsidies for "those who need it—but they (Ottawa) wanted to give medicare to the millionaires".

That, he said, was the reason for insisting on universality and why the federal plan had to be delayed for one year for lack of fincances.

Dr. McDiarmid attacked the Saskatchewan universal medicare plan because it excluded Indians on reserves. By contrast, he said, he knew of hundreds of Indians in B.C. obtaining BCMP coverage for 50 cents a month.

"That shows who really cares about social justice," he said.

Dr. McDiarmid supported the suggestion of Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin) that a special legislative committee be established to study Indian problems even though reserves come under federal jurisdiction.

He said that the provincial education department could play a key role in giving reserve Indians a chance at self-improvement.

The first act of new Travel Industry Minister Kenneth Kiernan should be to order a "top-to-bottom survey of the tourist industry and its potential so we know where we're going."

Area Growth May Force Split Of Health Unit

DUNCAN—Health Unit director Dr. H. A. Symon said consideration is being given to splitting the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit area.

He said the growth of population in the existing area has made it too big to be administered efficiently.

Dr. Symon said public health autorities are examining the possibility of dividing the area by cutting into a separate entity the school districts f Cowichan, Ladysmith and Lake Cowichan.

The new area would have a population of 33,500 and leave the northern part with a population of some 70,000.

Dr. Symon said the division might be made at the north end and cut away the Courtenay, Parksville district.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, FEB. 18, 1967 —PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

In an up-Island hotel a couple of years ago, I listened while a public relations man for the pulp mill that had provided a press group with drinks and dinner told me proudly how much his outfit had spent on its air pollution control program.

I forget what the figure was, but do remember that when we stepped outside, the mill stacks a few miles distant were stinking up the town with what struck me as unabated abandon.

The moral of this account is that in the matter of pollution, half, or quarter, or eighth measures don't signify when a total job needs doing.

I expect, though, that we will have to settle for a partial effort until we acquire leaders who will insist to industry that its operations needn't necessarily be accompanied by pollution in its various ugly forms.

Those who wish to can also comfort themselves with the knowledge that we are only the third worst-polluted province of Canada. Findings arrived at by the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers indicate that at the last check, Ontario and Quebec were far ahead of us.

We, in fact, are polluted only to the estimated cost of $91,800,000 a year.

★

However, I don't think we can settle for bald statistics, since both Eastern leaders in the pollution race are many times more heavily industrialized and populated than B.C.

Proportionately, I suggest that we are acquiring pollution sources at a brisk rate, and am glad to see that increased public awareness of the threat has goosed Mr. Bennett's government into a promise of action.

The Pollution Control Board—an arm of government to which a judicial sprain has been administered in the Buttle Lake affair—is to be strengthened. That's welcome news. Despite the sneers and jeers directed at it, the board has done as well as its limited resources and commission permit.

I hope it will now be allowed to wade in with a mop instead of a feather duster, and will be convinced that government pollution control intentions are solid when the black disgrace of the Alberni Valley has been cleaned up.

If its interest is sincere, government should also tear into the self-puffing brief submitted to the cabinet committee on pollution by the Council of Forest Industries.

In this most curious document, pollution control seems to have become synonymous with utiliaztion of wood byproducts. This last is comendable; but to claim an essentially profit-making device as an altruistic attempt at pollution control is an insult to the intelligence.

I dislike criticizing our forest industry, because in terms of payrolls and tax yield, it remains much more than any other the hand that feeds us.

But this situation, which in effect requires B.C. to be a plantation from which raw or semi-raw materials are harvested for manufacture elsewhere, also places our provincial ceiling too close to its floor. Hence shrewd Mr. Bennett's scramble for the secondary industries we so badly need.

Meanwhile, the dark horse among our lesser revenue producers is worth keeping an eye on.

This is tourism, which in 1966, gained by about $66 million over 1965 to reach a whacking total of $267.2 million spent in British Columbia.

Part of that sum was blown by we inhabitants; but even without our holiday contributions, the figure is arresting. It also indicates the need for some careful re-appraisals by government.

For pollution ill-curbed or ignored will not merely prove a threat to British Columbians' health and enjoyment of life. It could do grave harm to a goose that lays a larger golden egg each year.

All other considerations apart, pure air and water are money in the bank—a fact which I trust we will realize and act upon much more vigorously than we have to date.

OUTDOORS CALLING SUNDAY

Gardeners, golfers, fishermen and Sunday drivers can look forward to an enjoyable Sunday.

After the big winds of Friday the weatherman predicts a mild Sunday, sunny with only a few cloudy intervals.

Low tonight and high Sunday are 35 and 45.

If you're planning an early start sunrise is scheduled for 7:15 a.m. and you'll have until 5:41 to operate without headlights. Get out and see the crocuses.

Three Die When Wind Flips Troller

Three persons drowned and an 11-year-old boy was cited for heroism in a boat accident at Tofino on Friday.

Dead are John Jack, 65; Gloria McCarthy, 32, and Bruce Hill, 3 — all from the nearby Ahousat Indian reserve.

Five persons survived including the boy, John Keitlah, who managed to paddle to his mother's side and keep her afloat also until rescued.

His mother, Mrs. Margaret Keitlah, couldn't swim.

Other survivors, who were tended in Tofino hospital, included boat owner John McCarthy, his son James and youngsters Sheila and Frederick Hill.

●

The tragedy was blamed on a 50-mile-per-hour gale which swept across Vancouver Island, reaching gusts of 70 at times and wreaking havoc in the Victoria area as well.

The troller had weathered the trip across the strait from Ahousat and was preparing to dock at Tofino when it was hit by a sudden gust only 100 yards from shore.

It keeled over and sank while an incoming speedboat raced toward it piloted by Joseph Frank, chief of the Opitsates. The bodies of the three victims were recovered. The mission boat Ave Maria arrived minutes later to aid in the rescue.

Conditions of all the survivors was classed as fair today but they will remain in hospital for treatment for exposure.

The gale which pounded the Island cut telephone and power lines and blanked out a Victoria radio station and a Vancouver TV broadcast.

Several store windows were broken by the force of the wind in Victoria and Saanich. The storm was blamed also for delaying the departure of the CPR's Canadian from Vancouver, although flights out of Patricia Bay Airport were on schedule.

Telephone service to Port Renfrew was out until 9 p.m. B.C. Hydro crews were called to Sooke, Metchosin and Sidney and some power lines were down near Duncan at Somenos Lake.

The 17,000-ton oil derrick SEDCO 135-F berthed at Victoria Machinery Depot caused concern at the height of the wind storm.

●

Its 165-foot-high structure took the full force of the blasts, stretching against its nine anchoring chains to nudge the dock several times. No serious damage was reported.

The tug Island Monarch attached lines to the huge floating structure and held it clear until early today. Workers were attempting to tighten the chain today.

Several road accidents were blamed on gusting winds and pelting rain.

Temperatures were above normal, the lowest locally being 42. The strongest gust locally reached 70 miles per hour at 4:20 p.m.

Fishermen Hit Overcrowding At City Wharf

Troller Group Fears Inferno

Victoria's commercial fishermen today protested the serious fire hazard created by the overcrowding of boats at Fishermen's Wharf.

They said an outbreak of fire among the more than 200 craft would create a raging inferno, with gas tanks exploding and flames whipping through the fleet.

The fishermen are petitioning the federal transport department in Ottawa to provide extra wharfage facilities to relieve "dangerous overcrowding" at Fishermen's Wharf.

They point out that the six floats built there in 1948 to accommodate "a mere handful" of boats are now jammed by fleet of more than 200.

"They are packed in so closely that, whenever a big craft goes by, the wash causes our boats to bang into each other causing damage," said fisherman Willy Dunan.

"There is also a serious fire hazard. If one of our boats caught fire, the flames would spread through the fleet and the exploding gas tanks would create a regular inferno."

Mr. Dunan and a number of other fishermen today began collecting signatures for three petitions to be sent to Transport Minister J. W. Pickersgill; George Chatterton, Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and David Groos, MP for Victoria.

"We expect the petitions will be signed by all of the 200 boat-owners at Fishermen's Wharf," said Bob Foster, secretary of the Victoria branch, Pacific Trollers' Association, which is supporting the appeal to Ottawa.

Mr. Foster pointed out that the federal transport department is responsible for providing wharf facilities, while the city of Victoria looks after maintenance.

"I would say the fishing fleet here has more than doubled over the past five years and it is growing all the time," said Ray Prince, whose 62-foot trawler, Violet Prince, has been berthed at Fishermen's Wharf since 1948.

"Only 10 years ago fishermen could take out their boats and bring them back to the exact spot they left. Now they have to squeeze in wherever they can."

Mr. Foster said this part of the Inner Harbor is too crowded to permit any further expansion of facilities at Fishermen's Wharf.

"It looks as if the government will have to build another wharf elsewhere, perhaps at Esquimalt or West Bay. But that is a problem for their engineers to decide.

"As it is, many commercial fishermen have to take their boats to Sidney and Sooke because there is no room for them in Victoria."

Mr. Foster said a committee of fishermen will call on Victoria city council next week to ask for repairs to the existing facilities.

Fishermen's Wharf is occupied solely by commercial fishing vessels from Sept. 1 to May 1. It is used by pleasure boats during the summer when the fishing fleet is away.

"Owners of pleasure boats are welcome to sign our three petitions if they wish," Mr. Foster said.

The petitions call on the government to look into "the inadequate wharf facilities for Victoria's commercial fishing fleet," and points out that boats are now tied up four-deep.

Crash, Bang, Tinkle

A car with a jammed accelerator careened about the parking lot at the Red Lion Motor Inn Friday night, smashing into six cars and causing an estimated $2,700 damage.

John Coleman of 3948 Shorncliffe told police he had just backed his auto from a parking spot and shifted it into drive when it took off.

He suffered a cut over his eye and a bump on his nose in the wild ride.

Ask The Times

Q. How much do legislative assembly members in B.C. make? F.L.

A. The Canadian Almanac 1966 says members are paid $5,000 per session, plus $1,500 for expenses, plus $25 a day expenses up to 40 days during the session. Other payments are $500 for telephone and telegraph expenses and 25 cents a mile for travel to and from Victoria.

Q. What does an asterisk beside a serial number on Canadian currency signify? F.K.

A. An asterisk in front of the serial number on a bill means that note is a replacement for a defective one destroyed in the printing process.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

SKILLINGS BLASTS LSD EXPONENTS

Professors Ticked Off by MLA

British Columbia university professors were ticked off in the legislature Friday by Victoria Socred MLA Waldo Skillings.

His blast was touched off by three main items:

- A University of Victoria hearing given LSD exponent Dr. Richard Alpert last year;
- An offer by University of British Columbia faculty members to assist "American draft-dodgers";
- The action of UBC president Dr. John B. Macdonald in publicizing his estimates of the financial needs of three B.C. universities this year.

Speaking in the budget debate, Mr. Skillings labelled Dr. Macdonald a "lame duck president" while claiming he was not "attacking" anyone. He praised University of Victoria and its president Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor.

The government "whip", Mr. Skillings is himself a former student of Victoria College and Victoria Normal School, the predecessors of Uvic.

DISCONTENT

He said he had heard stories of faculty discontent at Uvic but that students and everyone else are sometimes discouraged.

"I am sure everyone here commends the action taken by (Uvic president) Dr. Taylor, Dean Wood and Dean Jeffels."

In an interview today Mr. Skillings said he was referring to their administration and "firm hands on the reins". He made no reference to the current controversy surrounding the release of three instructors by the university.

He went on to say in his speech, "I don't think the faculty should aid and abet American draft-dodgers."

USE OF LSD

And he said in his speech, faculty members should not advocate "the use of LSD or marijuana."

Asked to amplify these statements today, Mr. Skillings said he was referring to a petition and advertisements in Vancouver.

They were directed to U.S. youths coming into Canada to avoid military service and offered them assistance in relocating in university studies here. Various Vancouver university faculty members were involved in the project.

Mr. Skillings said his remarks on LSD and marijuana had some reference to University of Victoria. He recalled that in January, 1966, Uvic "brought out" Dr. Richard Alpert, a dismissed Harvard professor of psychology, who defended the use of the hallucinatory drug before a student audience.

WALDO SKILLINGS
. . . 'making no charges'

And professors generally, but not necessarily here, "have said students should have the full experience" including experiments with drugs such as LSD and marijuana.

He said this morning he was making no charges "these things have been reported to be going on" and he was anxious to mention them so safeguards could be erected in the interests of moral, ethical and academic excellence.

Mr. Skillings said in the interview that in respect to use of LSD at Uvic there have been rumors "and I think it's something we as legislators should take a firm stand on." He said he knows of no wrong-doing at Uvic and he recalled that when the police investigated such matters there "they found nothing."

FIREWORKS

Another part of his speech caused some fireworks when he criticized UBC president Macdonald for stating before the budget came down that Uvic,

'B.C. Would Be Poorer Out of Confederation'

PICKERSGILL
. . . also lower incomes

British Columbia has prospered under Confederation and it would be poorer if it seceded, Transport Minister Pickersgill said Friday.

"I'm convinced that if B.C. went it alone it would be poorer — there would be lower incomes," he told a University of Victoria audience.

"There are those who ask: Why not let the better-off provinces go off on their own?

"If B.C. had become a part of the U.S. in 1846, I suggest that Seattle today would be twice as big as Vancouver."

If the U.S. had taken possession of the West Coast, the Lower Mainland "would just be the margin of the Columbia Valley," the minister said.

Spring Festival Cancelled; 'Hasn't Achieved Purpose'

This year's Spring Flower Festival is off.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Courtney Haddock said directors agreed Friday not to ask the city for $5,000 to subsidize the festival.

He said chamber directors feel the festival has not achieved its main purpose — attracting people to the city before the main tourist season begins.

But it was possible that a modified festival not involving a "costly outlay" could be held in place of the Spring Flower Festival.

Boys Paddle Into Arms of Police

By TERRY IZZARD

A 14-year-old boy kept his promise Friday.

In doing so he tied up police officers from two forces and had radios humming the length of the waterfront.

The problem arose when he told his 13-year-old friend he'd meet him with a boat in the Gorge waterway.

He didn't own a boat.

So he took a 14-foot outboard from Oak Bay Marina and set off for the rendezvous point after first picking up 80 cents worth of gas at Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Police got on his trail after a fishboat skipper radioed he'd spotted the boy off Oak Bay golf course.

Relying on other radio reports, Oak Bay officers kept tabs on him as far as Victoria Harbor where they passed to city police.

At 10 a.m. as promised, the boy picked up his friend and headed up the Gorge.

His progress was by this time being observed by constables standing on the CNR trestle near Point Ellice Bridge.

The trip ended when the boat's 18-horsepower engine ran out of gas and the boys were forced to paddle into shore to the arms of waiting policemen.

An Oak Bay officer said one of the boys will probably appear in juvenile court.

Temple Marks Official Visit With Ceremony

In a colorful and impressive ceremony in Holyrood House, 12 new candidates were initiated at the spring ceremonial of Miriam Temple No. 2, Daughters of the Nile.

Both the ceremonial and the banquet preceding it were arranged to honor supreme queen of Supreme Temple Mrs. Verna M. Stoltenberg, El Paso, Tex., who was making her official visit to the temple. Queen of Miriam Temple, Mrs. R. M. Williams presided during the evening.

Speaking to the meeting, Mrs. Stoltenberg thanked the local temple for its contribution of $1,175 to assist with the philanthropic work of the order. The funds will be used for Shrine hospitals for crippled children.

She told the group that temples in Canada and the United States had given braces, artificial limbs, special shoes, and other orthopedic equipment to children in out-patient departments of Shrine hospitals. Value of the contributions she said was $193,005.

Other contributions included articles of sewing and knitting, providing gifts and parties for the young patients, totalling $109,335.

Other special guests who attended the meeting and social hour following were Supreme Princess Zora Mrs. J. Broili, Ammon-Ra Temple No. 56, Reno, Nev.; Princess Royal Mrs. D. Parrish, Princess Tirzah Mrs. L. Dolph, and Princess Badoura Mrs. K. Larson of Nydia Temple No. 4, Portland, Ore.; 16 members of Zarah Temple No. 72, Vancouver, including Queen Mrs. W. Shore, and past queens Mrs. D. McColl, Mrs. D. Fader, Mrs. M. Higgins, Mrs. V. Browning and Mrs. P. McEwan; and members from Isis Club, Courtenay, and Zora Club, Nanaimo.

During her year as supreme queen, Mrs. Stoltenberg will travel across Canada and the United States to make her official visits. When she left Victoria to attend ceremonials in Portland, Seattle and Tacoma, she was accompanied by Miriam Temple queen Mrs. Williams, junior past queen Mrs. A. G. Landells, and Princess Nydia Mrs. T. Gibbons.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Filthy' Language Can Lead to Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: While looking for a pen in daughter's purse, I found some notes she and another girl had exchanged in class. Abby, the language was unbelievable!

I don't know where she learned such filthy words! She never talked that way around the house. She is only 15. I wonder if she uses that kind of language with boys? If she does, they surely can't respect her. What if a teacher got hold of them?

I can't understand it. I've tried to raise her right. We go to church and say grace at meals so it can't be a lack of moral or religious training. I thought she was a nice girl. Right now I feel so lost and disappointed. I am sick inside. What should I do?

HER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't do anything. All children, no matter how carefully reared they are, eventually are exposed to "filthy" language. To use such words makes them feel "sophisticated," grown up and a little wicked and daring, but it's only a phase which they pass through quickly.

Believe it or not, your daughter can still be a "nice" girl. Your "shock" and disappointment are understandable, Mother, but somehow you survived hearing and reading such language in your youth, I'm sure. And so will she.

Meanwhile, without revealing your discovery, comment casually that boys feel justified in making indecent advances to girls who use "dirty" language.

DEAR ABBY: What does a "gentleman farmer" raise?

KNOWS ONE

DEAR KNOWS: Would you believe his hat?

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother and his wife got a brand new spinet piano, so my husband and I went over to see it. I took piano lessons myself when I was a girl, and I know how to play fairly well, so I said to my brother-in-law. "Is it OK if I play a few tunes on it?" He replied, "All right. Just make sure your hands are clean."

Abby, I am no kid. I happen to be 45 years old. I was never so insulted in all my life. What would YOUR reply have been?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: I'd have said, "Don't worry, I'll only play on the black keys."

CONFIDENTIAL TO F. H. T. IN WATERLOO: Psychiatry is NOT an atheistic concept. The greatest textbook on human behavior ever written is the Bible in which the principle of psychoanalysis was set forth.

"And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." (New Testament, John VIII; 32)

Not until one knows "the truth" about himself, complete with all the grim hostilities, insecurities, and unresolved conflicts, is he truly "free."

It is the role of the psychiatrist to remove the camouflage, self-deception and rationalizations, and to bring the unconscious conflicts into the conscious mind where reason can deal with them. Once reason is gained, the cure begins, because the truth does make one free.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Last chance for this fine traditional furniture . . .

We're addressing this principally to you discriminating people who already own some of Home Furniture's beautiful traditional Duncan Phyfe style mahogany dining room furniture . . . Maybe you've been buying a piece or two periodically to gradually complete your suite . . . not realizing that all good things eventually come to an end . . . The situation now is this . . . the company manufacturing this fine quality furniture has temporarily (meaning for a year or two, anyway) . . . discontinued this particular grouping . . . but the happy news is that Home Furniture still have a few pieces left . . . representing your last chance to get what you need to completely furnish your dining room . . . There are several sizes of buffets, breakfront cabinets and corner cabinets . . . Five different sizes of tables, in round, oval and oblong shapes . . . Shield back, or open panel back side chairs and arm chairs . . . just a few pieces of each . . . Maybe you need another chair or two to round out your suite . . . and if you don't already own a breakfront or corner cabinet, this will really be the crowning touch to your dining room furnishing . . . So don't wait till it's too late . . . drop in to Home Furniture soon as possible and select what you need before someone else beats you to it! . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

Striking topper: Man-tailored shirt in beige cotton lace over nylon marquisette backing.

New Hummer knits at Wilson's . . .

"The nicest-fitting knit suits on the market" we were told by Wilson's . . . who certainly should know what they're talking about . . . when they showed us the first of the new Hummer knits for spring to arrive from Vienna . . . Hummer suits are a beautiful quality knit . . . subtly styled on the classic lines which never lose their chic, no matter how many years you wear them . . . Mostly two-piece styles . . . straight skirts and jackets . . . One is a flattering gold color with matching grosgrain trim around the collar and pockets . . . grosgrain belt which shows only in the front, allowing the back to hang straight . . . Same model in pale pink . . . Another nice classic style comes in turquoise and beige . . . generously cut, in sizes to fit up to 20 . . . Wilson's also have Hummer knit shells in white and many of the suit colors, so you could make up a complete ensemble . . . A perfectly wonderful Hummer 3-piece suit is charcoal with a double white stripe . . . collarless, double breasted fastened with self-buttons . . . turtle-neck white shell . . . This is a size 14 . . . and there's a size 12 in violet and pink . . . Navy grosgrain trims a 2-piece gold suit whose collarless jacket comes to a V . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Take a half-hour's rest every day with your legs raised higher than your head . . . Pays beauty dividends.

Famous Del Grande shoes now at Munday's . . .

For one reason or another we hadn't visited Munday's since their January sale ended . . . so when we went in this week and saw all the new spring shoes on display we were slightly giddy (being an inveterate lover of beautiful shoes!) . . . We can hardly wait to tell you about the Del Grande shoes, which are new to Munday's this season . . . and are a Canadian-made shoe with an Italian-style flair . . . There's a sweater pump with an elasticized collar, slightly thicker illusion heel . . . bone, beige, black kid and black patent . . . Another smart pump comes in brown and bone patent . . . with little cut-out trim and bow on the vamp . . . also in monotone beige, navy, or black kid with patent tips . . . This one has a lower walking heel . . . A sling pump with illusion heel is black patent with kid overlay on the vamp . . . also fashion brown (caramel shade) . . . with bone trim . . . There's a sling T-strap with lower heel . . . kid and patent combination, in bone or light brown . . . Another pump in a pinky tan called Nougat . . . bone underlay on vamp, or black kid with patent underlay . . . Still another model, with elasticized collar, is cut a bit lower at the sides . . . black patent or navy calf — very elegant . . . See these beautiful new shoes at . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

New hair rollers you heat before using are claimed to set hair in just seven minutes.

There's fashion excitement at Madam and Eve . . .

Next time you're lunching at the Princess Mary and one of the girls modelling the Madam and Eve fashions looms within hailing distance, don't be afraid to ask her anything you'd like to know about what she's wearing . . . or new fashions in general . . . The girls actually work at M & E, so they're just full of fashion information . . . Better still, drop in to the Madam and Eve Shop yourself and try on anything that catches your eye . . . Something that caught our eye when we were in on Monday is an absolutely smashing white coat with a tent silhouette . . . little stand-up collar with button down flaps . . . raglan sleeves, round gold buttons . . . There's a similar coat in green . . . These are definitely for a tallish, slim woman . . . but if you don't qualify, other coats are equally handsome . . . A nice daytime dress we like is pinstripe navy, with inverted front pleat, white cuffs and perky tab at front neckline . . . great for the club or career woman . . . While you're in M & E, take a look at their sale racks . . . skirts, dresses, blouses, a wool coat . . . at prices slashed unmercifully . . . You may be lucky and pick up a plum! . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

An attractive nylon shift nightie is one half yellow, the other half pink.

Perfume and pottery wedded by Mason's of England . . .

We walked into Sydney Reynolds the other day to be greeted by the most enchanting fragrance . . . and what do you think it was? . . . Perfumed candles which they'd just received from Floris of London, and were trying out! . . . These are delightful objects . . . candles encased in Mason's ginger jars, converted for the purpose (open front, a hook in the back so you can hang them on the wall, if you like) . . . Richly patterned in the traditional ginger jar designs . . . These come under the heading of conversation pieces . . . and if you're not keen on perfume, put any kind of votive light inside . . . stand on a table or use as night lights . . . Keep them in mind when you want an imaginative gift . . . Elegantly boxed at $10 . . . Also new . . . and a happy thought for gifting . . . are pomanders from Floris . . . Mandarin pattern Mason's pottery . . . wafting forth the fragrance of an English garden . . . And smaller pomanders by Lord Nelson Pottery . . . these latter filled with lavender . . . Those big, old-fashioned soup tureens of our childhood are now back in popular demand . . . Sydney Reynolds have just received a shipment of these from Mason's . . . in various shapes, half a dozen different patterns . . . They come complete with ladles and plates underneath . . . Lovely things! A nice collection of 19th century ginger jars, too, at . . . Sydney Reynolds, Ltd., 801 Government St., 383-3931.

Bright brown is a wonderful color to wear under the sun. Try a brown swimsuit.

Create your own spring wardrobe . . .

Friend of ours acquired a new sewing machine that does everything but talk . . . said she simply had to have it after seeing that vast array of beautiful new springtime fabrics at Saba's . . . Just goes to show, doesn't it? . . . We had a look-see ourselves in Saba's fabric department this week . . . and with suits and coats uppermost in mind at the moment, concentrated on the woollens . . . whose colors and textures are something to enthuse about! . . . Take the mix-and-match tweeds, for instance . . . patterned combinations of blues and mauves, rose and pinks, shades of turquoise . . . with monotone tweeds to match . . . $8 per 54" wide yard . . . There are Blin and Blin pure wool Bedford cords . . . white, pink, green, turquoise and two shades of blue . . . Lovely for a spring suit . . . (brides-to-be might consider a going-away outfit made of this) . . . $15.50 a yard . . . Tattersalls are extremely popular this season, as you'll know if you peruse Vogue or Harpers Bazaar . . . Saba's have beautiful wool tattersalls in various colors . . . as well as shepherd's plaids and houndstooth checks . . . And we saw a nubby black and white fabric which would make a dream of a coat . . . Another selection of suitings and coatings in white and a lovely range of colors, including the high fashion orange, yellow and shocking pink . . . Saba Bros. Limited, 1130 Douglas St., 384-0561.

Eastern Designs Dominate Canada 'Oscars'

Throughout the day, fashion editors from Vancouver Island to Newfoundland kept a close eye on the parade of made-in-Canada styles which swept across the Chateau Champlain's Salle Caf' Conc, the decor of which was inspired by an 1800 French theatre.

Nona

From this National Collection, 23 top ready-to-wear designers would receive Canada's new Union Label fashion Oscar, designed by sculptor Bernard Chaudron. The trophy, a delicate "needle" 18 inches in height has attached to it such items as a button, a thimble, fabric and a number of other traditional fashion symbols.

As the last design of the 151 shown left the stage, the fashion writers gathered their notes and registered their votes, which were tabulated immediately, for the Oscar presentations the same evening at the Gala Fashion Awards taking place in the 3,000-seat Salle Wilfred-Pelletier of the magnificent Place des Arts in Montreal.

What a marvellous opportunity to test one's fashion eye. Do we, with just a glance, recognize good line? Do we know when the color, fabric and silhouette are mated in mutual harmony? Do we know our climate, our way of life and our readers well enough to choose the winners?

Several of us wrote our choices in our own notebooks so that there would be no hanky-panky during the moment of truth. It was most enlightening to find that there were several outfits that had won all our votes and very few that were just a single choice.

British Columbia missed the Oscars entirely and I must admit it was a just decision. There is some extremely good fashion design taking place in Vancouver, but, as yet, few of the manufacturers have chosen to enter the eastern competition which naturally is dominated by Montreal and Toronto. Our nearest winner was Frankroy of Winnipeg.

Fine fabric, good style and excellent workmanship are most important to our B.C. fashion image but who is to say that a fashion Oscar would be amiss?

There was few of the bold bright prints of the California and New York shows . . . skirts were not quite as short but the dominance of pants was most noticeable.

There was a good deal of color during the day-long shows but strangely enough very little evidence of the color explosion as the winning garments formed on the stage for the grand finale. The choice of fashion editors could be dubbed "basically beige" with a flash of color for evening and sportswear.

The awards are a new venture, the Chateau Champlain has been officially open less than a month but everything rippled along like pure silk.

The National Collection of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union will be a once-yearly show rather than twice a year as in the past . . . already I look forward with great anticipation to the next presentation.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Be Guised, Disguised Under These Toppers

By Penny Saver

Every day, more and more women are discovering that wigs are a practical investment. Ask Penny and you'll hear a snicker followed by a long tale of one case of mistaken identity. However, for about two hours, almost everyone in the office was sure that there was a new member here. How ever could a short-haired blonde grow an additional 10 inches during her lunch hour, in a deep brunette shade? (Wigs are indeed practical if you've made a great blunder in the office and wish to return incognito. Chances are not even your boss will recognize you!)

If you've been thinking of buying a wig, or have been hearing wild rumors about how they "ruin your own hair," or "need cleaning so often," or, "always buy European hair—Japanese hair is inferior," then it's time you visited Victoria's newest wig salon. Here, you'll be set straight on all the latest information about wigs and hairpieces.

A friend of mine who wears a wig regularly and who owns several hairpieces on the side, told me that wigs block your own scalp pores so that your hair "can't breathe". Querying this with the owner of this shop, I was told that that is a ridiculous myth. She showed me the inside of one wig—a net full of pores.

Wishing then to come back with an intelligible question, I asked how often a wig needs cleaning. My second inquiry was also my second faux pas. (I was told that most women ask the same nonsensical question, which, she said, is like asking a dress saleslady how often you'll have to clean the dress.)

This expert on wigs says that if you take care of the topper it naturally won't need cleaning often. To begin with, if you keep your own head clean, then the inside of the wig won't soil. When you take the wig off, place it on a styrofoam block so that it will keep its shape, and cover it to keep the dust away.

If you have any problems at all with wigs, this shop is for you. The owner, after being in the business for five months, went on a 12-day tour of Japanese factories to learn all the "tricks of the trade." She says that young Japanese girls learn to brush and care for their locks at the early age of two years! The hair is soft and healthy when it is made into wigs. (If you don't believe it, feel the texture of one of the many wigs in this store. I did and I was amazed.)

Another thing to remember when buying a wig is to choose a color that suits your skin tone. You can pick from the 30 swatches, or have a sample of your own hair matched at the factory.

Price is an important factor. Because this shop sells direct from the factory to you, they can sell wigs as low as $41.50. Falls, which are half-heads of hair in 20 and 26-inch lengths, start at $39.95.

Hairpieces, which are popular with almost everyone today, come with a flat or honeycomb base and sell from $10.95.

Personal attention is the "sales pitch" in this store. If you want to know where it is, give me a call at 382-3131.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Commodore's Ball

Members of the Capital City Yacht Club and their friends will don party clothes next Friday evening when they attend the annual Commodore's Ball, to be held at the Club Tango from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. During the evening Commodore J. Bailey and other new flag officers will receive the insignias of their rank and be honored in a grand march. Guests will dance to the music of Art Kingsley's Orchestra, and a light supper will be served later in the evening.

Surprise Dinner

The dining room of the Imperial Inn was the scene of a surprise dinner party on Tuesday evening when a group of friends gathered to honor Mrs. Betty Ross on the occasion of her birthday. Included in the party were Mr. and Mrs. George Andrews, Dr. and Mrs. David Philip, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKay, Mrs. Leslie Holding, Mr. and Mrs. Vince Clarkson.

Pink and White

Carnations en corsage in peppermint pink and white tones were presented to bride-elect Miss Louise Meadows when she was entertained at a shower in the Esquimalt Road home of the Misses Sylvia Moore and Edwina Wilkinson. Mother of the honor guest, Mrs. R. H. Meadows, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. P. Benn, received white carnations. A gaily decorated clothes basket contained the gifts. Games were played and refreshments served to guests: Mrs. A. Ford, the bride's grandmother; Mrs. R. Benwell, Mrs. E. Brummell, Mrs. Kate Shaw, Mrs. B. Clark, Mrs. W. Smith, the Misses Liz King, Laverne Goldsmith, Audrey Diercks, Sylvia Jubb, Darlene Young, Doreen Crawford, Joan Murphy and Kathleen Meadows.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

Being unable, to my knowledge, to boast of having the slightest drop of Scottish blood coursing through my veins, I must admit there have been times when I've felt that our swiftness in striking a new tartan to commemorate each and every Canadian occasion was as pointless as asking a Quebecois to hoist a Tudor rose as his family standard!

After reading parts of the diary of Andrew Muir, who arrived on Vancouver Island in 1849, I'm willing to admit that my judgment was lacking. The exploits of his mother and Mrs. McGregor would, in our day, undoubtedly see them being awarded the MC, in spite of their skirts and falderals!

On first reading, Mrs. Muir doesn't sound a likely candidate for a heroine's role. She was 48 and had two grandchildren when the Muirs and the McGregors arrived from Ayrshire after a seven-month trip in the "Harpooner". Our middle-aged heroine had a stomach that was less stout than her heart, resulting in many miserable hours in her cabin during the stormy periods. After the two families' arrival at Fort Rupert, she was soon able to show that her sea-borne weakness was a very fleeting thing.

In the early hours, the newcomers looked over the stockade to see 16 war canoes, manned by war-painted Indians, being pulled to shore, filled to the gunwales with bloody heads taken from members of a tribe with which they'd just done battle.

One Honor She'd Rather Be Without

The warriors landed, set their booty on poles, and rushed to the fort, demanding to see the white women. Obviously impressed with the stoic grandmother, they paid her the highest compliment in their power, that of offering her the two heads of her choice!

Independent, and determined to get their rights, Andrew Muir and Mr. McGregor were accused of rank insubordination and made prisoners in the upper bastion when they refused to carry on working, after having repeatedly complained of the lack of proper machinery and pickets to ward off hostile Indians when working a distance from the fort. Andrew Muir's diary tells of how they were fed bread and water by the Hudson's Bay officials and slept, with no bed, their legs bound by irons at night.

The two women tried to smuggle food in but were kept back by the sentries. Undaunted, they kept trying and eventually were permitted to take food to the prisoners and finally succeeded in getting them parolled.

Undoubtedly, the Indians had nothing but admiration for these intrepid Scotswomen. Rallying to their cause, they paddled the two men down toward the Straits, where the canoe hailed a schooner. On board her, the two parolees were taken to San Francisco.

Truants Were Eventually Forgiven

This part of the story has a happy ending. Ironically enough, the two men were showered with glory when they eventually returned to Victoria. Andrew Muir became the first sheriff of Vancouver Island while Mr. McGregor was appointed chief inspector of mines!

After the escape, the Muirs moved to Victoria and Mrs. McGregor started on the long journey to join her husband in the south. That must have been quite an endurance test, the greater part of the trip being travelled on the back of a mule with the tiny woman giving birth to another baby before she reached California.

In 1852, the family moved to Nanaimo after the company forgave the one-time truant and made him an inspector.

One of the children, Archie, had been left behind in Vancouver until the family was settled. When the time came, this mother of nine, accompanied by another woman, Mrs. Hunter, set out to fetch him.

Leaving Nanaimo in a dugout, accompanied by a man bearing despatches for Governor Douglas and two Indian paddlers, their trip was one to test the mettle of the stoutest heart. The northern tribes were at war with the Chemainus Indians and when the dugout approached Plumper's Pass a shot was fired across her bows and a fleet of war canoes pulled from shore to surround them. For some reason, the Indians allowed them to carry on with their journey across the Gulf. No fast ferry service, it took several days. On the return trip, they were again greeted by a war flotilla but allowed to proceed.

The McGregors now lived in a small cottage outside the fort and near the water. For several years there was intermittent trouble between the Indians and the company. Only once was Mrs. McGregor in any real danger.

Hid Her Babies in the Chimney

One day a war canoe spilled a cargo of painted natives in ugly mood on the shore. They surrounded the forest-locked cottage where Mrs. McGregor and three of her children were left alone. Seeing the Indians, she hid her babies in the chimney. They had been well schooled, there wasn't a whimper.

Pale-faced but smiling, she went to the door, holding up her hand in greeting. The Indians spoke some dialect that she couldn't understand. They pushed inside her home, apparently looking for the men of the house. Finding none, they went outside and held council. By gestures, they intimated that she must go with them in the canoe. She smiled, although her knees refused to stay still, and held on to the doorway for support.

At this moment, shouting like a lion, her husband ran from the shadow of the trees, brandishing his gun as he came. The Indians took flight and the tall Scot chased them until he was waist-deep in water and their paddle strokes were as swift as the flight of birds.

It was not until he returned to the cabin that his terrified wife permitted herself the luxury of fainting.

When I read about the bravery of such women as Mrs. Muir and Mrs. McGregor I have no quarrel with their descendants' enthusiasm for designing tartans. The colorful "battle honors" have been well won.

GIRL GUIDE NOTES

Trefoil Guild—President Mrs. A. Vickers and her officers were all returned to office when Trefoil Guild (Girl Guides) of Greater Victoria held its annual meeting in the Lauder Road home of Miss Peggy MacDonald. In the annual reports, it was noted that guild members had assisted at guide meeting for badge-testing, receptions, and in the absence of captains. Funds raised during the year were given to the guide association to buy chairs for the Pandora Avenue Hall. Other contributions included donations and good used clothing to charities; magazines to Cancer Clinic; Christmas gifts to mental health patients; knitted squares for OXFAM; used stamps for overseas guilds. It was announced that the report of the Union Jack laying-up ceremony had been used in the Trefoil magazine, the first article from Victoria to appear, and that the Archbishop of York's trefoil prayer had been adopted for use at meetings. The next meeting will be held on Monday, Feb. 27, at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. C. C. Riach, 465 Kipling Street. It is open to former guides and guiders.

MRS. DODIMEAD AGAIN HEADS ESQUIMALT IODE

Chapter Executive Returned by Acclamation

At the annual meeting of the Esquimalt Chapter, IODE, first vice-regent of the Municipal Chapter, Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, re-installed Mrs. C. A. Dodimead as regent. Her officers, re-elected by acclamation, are: First vice-regent, Mrs. N. Ormond; second, Mrs. T. G. Clarke; secretary, Mrs. A. G. Fulmer; treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Corneille; standard bearer, Mrs. M. Hatch; Echoes secretary, Mrs. J. C. MacDonald; education, Mrs. M. Hall, and Mrs. R. R. Benson, services at home and abroad.

Conveners appointed were Mrs. G. P. Clarke, citizenship and immigration; Mrs. A. Warren Smith, Commonwealth relations and world affairs; Mrs. P. A. Fecteau, membership, and Mrs. J. Bryant, public relations.

Honorary regent Mrs. John A. Charles and Mrs. Ray Bryant, wife of the Esquimalt reeve, were special guests at the luncheon meeting, held in Eaton's board room, Monday afternoon.

Secretary Mrs. Fulmer reported that the chapter has taken over the distribution of cod liver oil and surgical bandages to senior citizens and the needy, through the Victoria Order of Nurses. This was a former project of the Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter which has disbanded. Mrs. B. Pritchett is in charge.

Mrs. Fulmer said that the chapter convened the French Shop at the IODE festival in McPherson Playhouse last February. Another project at the festival was the raffle of a dress made by Mrs. L. Muirhead of the Royal Bride Chapter.

She said that a successful after-five party was held at the home of Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele and Mrs. Wurtele. Another fund-raising project was a rummage sale in September.

Mrs. Fulmer noted that during the year, the chapter members spent 477 hours assisting at the Veterans' Hospital and Red Cross canteen. Hampers were delivered to two needy families and bundles of books were sent to the troops in Germany. Afghans made by Mrs. T. G. Clarke were sent to the Caroline Macklem Home, Rose Manor, Red Cross blood donors clinic, the West Bay Hospital and the VON, she said. Quilts were sent to the Korean project and nursery bags and health kits were supplied.

In her report, treasurer Mrs. Corneille said that total receipts were $709.56. The chapter gave $54.50 to national funds, which included donations to the IODE Centenary fund, overseas relief, Peace Garden, Korean project and shipping. Other disbursements were: Provincial funds, $48.50; municipal funds, $137.33; and education, $128.74. The chapter's educational funds totalled $251.24, and expenses for services at home and abroad were $309.50, making total disbursements $718.20. Balance on hand on Jan. 15 was $198.45.

Mrs. Hall's education report stated that the Creelman trophy was presented to Miss Wendy Campbell of Lampson Street School at the closing ceremony. Three books were given to the school library. She noted that the chapter gave $25 towards a scholarship for violinist Mark Butler who is studying in London, England. The chapter's award for the highest ranking Grade 8 pupil was presented to David Palmer-Stone of Esquimalt Junior Secondary School.

Other reports were given by Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Hatch, Mrs. Benson, Mrs. G. P. Clarke, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Fecteau and Mrs. Bryant.

Mrs. Ormond presented a gift to Mrs. Dodimead and to Mrs. Charles.

Exchange Vows and Rings In Friday Evening Service

A dainty floor-length gown of white peau de soie, fashioned on A-lines, was worn by JoAnn Nadine Lane, Friday evening, when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with Wayne Michael Grycan.

Lace appliques trimmed the fitted bodice of the gown which featured three-quarter-length sleeves. A full detachable train swept back from the shoulders. Her full-length veil misted softly from a tiara of aurora borealis and she carried mauve orchids, nestled in white freesia in her cascade bouquet. Her only jewelry was the groom's gift of pearls, and as "something borrowed," she wore a penny belonging to her bridesmaid, Miss Lynne Wheeler, in her shoe.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy C. Lane, 931 Forshaw Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Grycan, 381 St. Charles Street. Mr. Lane gave his daughter in marriage.

White chrysanthemums decorated First Baptist Church for the service at which Rev. John A. Watson officiated. As the couple signed the register Mrs. Pat Wicks sang "Because."

Matching empire-line gowns of mauve peau de soie, enhanced with lace at the bodice and front panel of the skirt, were worn by the bride's attendants. Their headpieces were bands of self-fabric roses and theid carried bouquets of freesia and greenery. Jewelry accents were the bride's gifts of pearl pendants.

Maid of honor was Miss Jo-Anne Lekivetz, senior bridesmaid Miss Wheeler and junior bridesmaids Jerene and Debra Lane, the bride's sisters.

Cliff (Butch) Rogers was best man. Ushering the guests to pews marked with mauve gardenias were Gordon Grycan and Thomas Lane, brothers of the principals, and Donald Gartree.

The color theme of white and mauve was continued in the decorations at the reception following in Gorge Vale Golf Club. The head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by the bride's cousin Alan Lane. The centrepiece was topped with a silver vase of heather.

Douglas Mellish proposed the toast to his cousin. During the evening, Jeff Venables and his orchestra played music for dancing.

The couple will make their home at 628 Head Street, following a honeymoon trip to Seattle. For travelling, the new Mrs. Grycan donned a two-piece suit and matching hat in brown heather tones. She chose dark brown accessories and a corsage of cream roses to complete the ensemble.

Hawaiian Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. Max Zabel returned to their Cavendish Road home, Friday morning, following a holiday in Hawaii. Travelling by plane, they spent three weeks at Waikiki Beach. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Williamson, Clovelly Terrace.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the many friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy extended to us in the loss of a dear husband, father and brother-in-law. Thanks to Rev. A. Calder, the nurses and staff of 3-C Surgical, St. Joseph's Hospital, pallbearers and Sands Funeral Chapel. Special thanks to Dr. R. R. Forgie for his care and kindness during Mr. Menard's lengthly illness. —Mrs. R. J. Menard and family.

I wish to thank my many friends for their lovely floral tributes, letters and cards sent to me on the loss of my beloved son, John G. W. Ryan, who passed away in Ottawa, January 21, 1967.—Mrs. M. A. Renfree, 2932 Cedar Hill Road.

We wish to express our very sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for their expressions of sympathy in our loss. Our special thanks to the doctors, nurses and staffs of the D.V.A. and St. Joseph's Hospitals, also to the Rev. Albert E. King and McCall Bros.—Alfred and Kenneth Mayell and Family.

Many thanks to Rev. and Mrs. Golmar for sponsoring bowling for Special Classes and Slow Learners Sat., Feb. 4, at Capital City Bowling Lanes. — Mrs. Eunice Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. James Pennock, Mrs. I. C. Percy.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BRYCE — In cherished memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Sarah Bryce, who passed away February 18, 1960.
Far beyond the highest mountain,
Far beyond this world of pain,
Some day in that Home up yonder
Mother, dear, we'll meet again.
—Ever lovingly remembered by all the family.

CLIFFORD — In loving memory of our darling son, Wayne Lionel Clifford, who was taken away from us so suddenly ten years ago today, Feb. 18, 1957.
Today recalls a memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those that think of him today
Are those that loved him best.
—Forever loved and remembered by Mummy, Daddy, sister Beverly and brother Ronnie.

FRANCE — In loving memory of Mother Emily France, who fell asleep February 18, 1952; Dad, 1943, and brother Herbert, 1938.

Awake and sing ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of the herbs and the earth shall cast out the dead. Isaiah 26: 19.

And at that time shall Michael stand up and there shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life and some to shame and everlasting contempt. Daniel 12: 1, 2.
—Ever remembered by sons and daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

When you miss both the queen and jack of a suit, you don't really go after all the tricks if your hand and dummy don't hold as many as nine cards in it. Of course, you will accept all the tricks if things go just right but, in general, your plan of action is to avoid losing tricks to both those cards if you possibly can.

With 18 points, North is justified in jumping all the way to six no-trump without checking for aces. He knows that the partnership holds more than 32 high card points so that two aces can't be missing.

Of course, North might check to see if South holds four spades but this time there is no 4-4 spade fit and six no-trump is the correct final contract.

When South looks over dummy, he counts 11 top tricks. He is sure of a twelfth if clubs break 3-2. There also is a possible squeeze if one opponent holds four clubs and four spades.

In any event, South should start by playing clubs, so he leads out dummy's ace of clubs at trick two. Assuming that both opponents follow with low cards, South leads a club from dummy and if East plays low it is up to South to play his ten spot.

This is an example of a play that can't possibly lose a trick but may mean the difference between making the slam and going down.

The defenders have played three small clubs so that the only clubs left are the queen and jack. If West holds both of them, he must make a club trick. It doesn't hurt to let him make it right away. If West holds one of them, it also won't hurt to give it to him. South can pick up the other one from East any time. Only when East holds both is the ten spot play essential. This isn't likely, but it can happen and any successful declarer should guard against that chance.

NOW DON'T SAY TOO FAR—IT ISN'T!!! TOO BIG—IT ISN'T!!! TOO OLD—IT ISN'T!!!

From downtown Victoria you can drive it in 20 minutes (about as far as anyone takes to drive to work). It will suit a family from four persons to eight persons (or more), if there are four, the kids will have their own T.V. room and study, if there are eight, they WON'T BE CROWDED. While this was an old farm at one time, there are about 20 bricks and some foundation of it left, ALL THE REST IS NEW. It FACES THE OCEAN, has about an ACRE of LANDSCAPED garden, FANTABULOUS VIEWS. It has a HUGE LIVING ROOM with GLEAMING OAK floors, a REAL GUEST SIZE dining rm with a BIG PATIO on which to enjoy your "Pousse-Cafe," a smart den with fireplace and a master bedroom with dressing room and private bath "en-suite". Lovely entrance hallway with expensive carpeting. Three bedrooms up with own bathroom and SUNDECK. There is a BOAT RAMP, a LOVELY little beach and storage for four cars and a boat, (trailer too,) Now this CAN'T be judged from the outside so you must come in, AND YOU'LL THANK ME for showing it. Priced at $45,000 but MAKE AN OFFER. I'll be glad to make an appointment to show you at anytime. CALL ME NOW—if not in, Telephone Service available 24 hours a day.

METICULOUS CRAFTSMANSHIP MATCHLESS VALUE, MEMORABLE INTERIOR NEW $27,900

On a sea-glimpse lot near the end of a quiet pretty street in Gordon Head, is this ranch contemporary style bungalow. Excellent, prideful craftsmanship has been vested in its building through 1,460 sq. ft. Three very generous sized bedrooms are featured in the sensible plan and 2 luxury baths with vanities, one of which has vertical ceremic shower and is off the master bedroom. The kitchen is at the front of the house, a homemaker's dream, and has sheet floors of Armstrong vinyl throughout the family breakfast area to the back door's theshold and an abundance of sparkling counter top and cabinets. The dining and living room are aligned and together measure 28 feet or more, completely floored, as is the hall, in a very dear wall to wall carpet. Full daylight basement has place for more bedrooms or an unbroken 45' recreation room with fireplace. Here today! Gone tomorrow! EXCLUSIVELY

Try Cash Try Trades
Try Anything

It is hard to believe that so close-in (just a hop, skip and a jump from the Colwood-Metchosin corner) one can buy 110 acres beautifully treed with a lake plus a few miles of road beds. Comprised of two 50 acres, a 6 acre plot, this holding has two road frontages with hydro to the property also the lower 5 acre piece now has water by it, and you can probably share in the cost of private line on Latoria Rd. Free of charge you get a lovely Scottish-sized mountain, with 3 reinforced concrete buildings on the top. These could be the nicest hilltop homes with expansive views across the straits, Esquimalt harbour and all across the city. The 360° view defies description and is worth the price of the land alone. Vendor will sell one 50 acre parcel with option on other 50 acre parcel. Concurrently 5 acre plot can be bought with option on adjacent 50 acre plot. Options give right to use of land. The owner is a conservationist and has retained the lovely trees, and has not marred the terrain. Anyone would think they were in heaven with Victoria as a suburb. This is to be concurrently advertised in Vancouver. Owner is co-operative asking $20,000 down on whole tract which can be by cash or trade of mortgages at cash value or offers can be subject to trade or sale of any commercial revenue producing property. For the facts call WILLS OF WHITTOME'S. Full price $59,500 cash or terms.

If you have any unique properties you wish advertised EXTENSIVELY call F. Wills for advice. J. H. Whittome & Co. Ltd, 706 Fort Street.

DOT RESCUE SHIPS PLAN DISPLAY

They Slip Silently Into Danger

Every week a small flotilla of ships slips quietly out of Victoria harbor.

Their departure attracts little attention; their destination is somewhat hazy.

Should anyone take the trouble to investigate their mission they'd be disappointed.

Probably they're heading for Estevan, or Clayoquot or Georgia Strait.

Not the sort of names to stir the imagination.

Nor would the cargo shed much light on the mission in hand — a few sticks of furniture; the odd crate of provisions; an occasional marker buoy.

Yet single handed, this fleet is responsible for the safety of every ship that plies the waters between Juan de Fuca and the Queen Charlottes.

These are the ships of the DOT.

Operated by the federal department of transport, they are on patrol 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in fair weather or foul.

By the very nature of their job, the men who operate the ships are seldom in the limelight.

The task is routine, often repetitious.

Yet anyone who ever puts to sea in a boat, even for a day's fishing, should be interested in the job these men are doing.

And they'll be given their first ever chance to find out on June 10.

The Victoria headquarters will throw "Open House" for a day.

Nine Victoria-based vessels will stage a sailpast off Dallas Road during which the Sir James Douglas and Estevan will demonstrate the art of laying buoys.

At the same time, helicopters will demonstrate their role in assisting lighthouse supply tenders.

Following this, the coast guard cutters Racer and Ready will demonstrate search and rescue techniques.

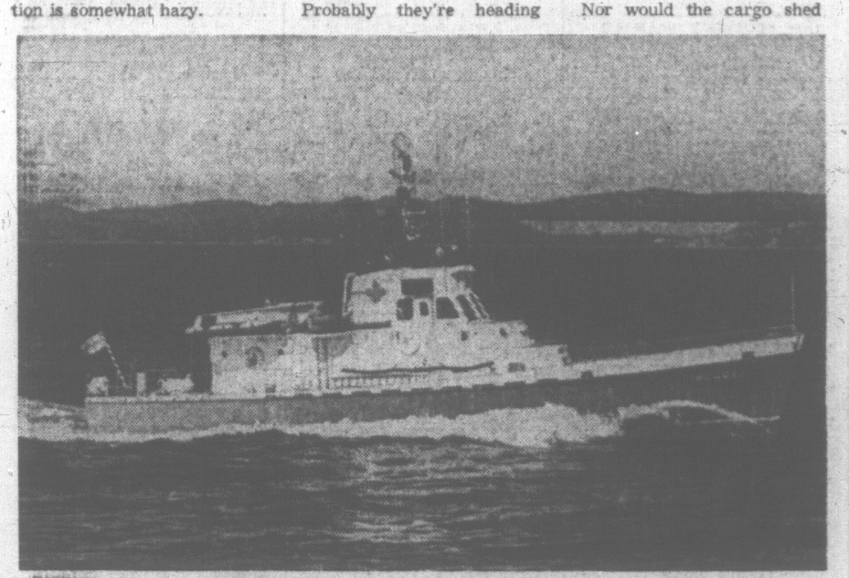
At the agency depot on Harbor Road, Albert Head lightkeeper Bruce Rogers will be on hand to explain his job.

Also on display will be a new fiberglas tower to be erected on Lennard Island and other aids to navigation.

The new weatherships Vancouver and Quadra, after taking part in the sailpast, will be on show to the public at Ogden Point along with the smaller vessels.

Said district marine agent Larry Slaght: "This is the first we have done anything like this in Victoria.

"But with more and more people buying boats every day, we feel the work of the DOT should be extremely interesting to the public."



READY TO DISPLAY TECNIQUES

MASKED MARVEL he is not. Gerald Oster, professor of organic chemistry at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, who has op art work in about 40 U.S. museums, is collaborating with New York fashion designer to produce op art veils. Here he has an optical pattern projected on his face. (CP Wirephoto.)

MORE THAN 300,000 SEE TRAIN

The 300,000th visitor to the Confederation train will go aboard at Prince George sometime this weekend, the British Columbia Centennial committee stated in Victoria today.

L. J. Wallace, general chairman, is in Prince George for the final B.C. appearance of the train. In this province, it has made 10 exhibit stops, the first in Victoria, and travelled 3,222 miles.

From Prince George the train will move to Jasper for its first Alberta exhibit stop.

15 Volunteer From City For Expo Duty

Fifteen Victoria men and women have volunteered to work as counsellors and ushers in the Sermons from Science Pavilion at Expo '67 Montreal.

They include a church minister, two high school teachers, three university students, and several Sunday school teachers. Object of the pavilion is to demonstrate the relationship between scientific wonders and the Bible.

"I am very pleased with the high calibre of people volunteering for this work," said Edward Conacher of Regina, who will be head English counsellor at the pavilion.

Mr. Conacher conducted a short training course for counsellors and ushers at Central Baptist Church from Monday to Thursday. Applications were then invited.

"We need men and women who are genuinely interested in the scriptures," Mr. Conacher said. "Languages are also an asset as thousands of people from many countries will be coming to the pavilion.

"We need about 2,000 volunteers from all across Canada. Fifteen from Victoria would be a fair representation considering the cost of transportation to Montreal and the time involved."

No remuneration or transportation is offered, but counsellors and ushers will be accommodated in Montreal homes at a cost of about $10 a week. They will work four hours a day at the pavilion; then be free to spend their time sightseeing.

Frank Hunter and Dennison Stewart will receive further applications from Victoria volunteers at 608 Yates Street. (Tel. 388-4484.)

Driver Fined $350 On Impaired Charge

Daniel Durran of 3054 Milgrove was fined $350 today when he pleaded guilty in central court to impaired driving.

His car ran into the rear of another auto on Government at Hillside Friday evening, causing about $350 damage, court was told.

Top Students Should Have All Fees Paid

The B.C. Student Social Credit Federation Friday told the government it is against the abolition of university fees but all first-class students should have their fees paid by the government in full.

A brief presented by the federation to Education Minister Leslie Peterson also urged the government to pay one-half the fees of all the second-class students at college.

The budget says first-class honor students will receive 75 per cent remission of their fees this year and the government plans to pay 50 per cent of the fees of the top 3,500 second-class students and one-third the fees of the next 3,500.

The federation added its voice to a chorus demanding that out-of-town students receive government grants to help offset their extra expenses.

It also asked for special bursary aid for female students who have less opportunity to earn enough expense money during summer vacations.

Capital grants to universities should be raised to enable more construction of student residences and extra funds also should be provided for development of special programs, such as medicine and dentistry, as well as graduate programs.

The federation also proposed the government provide both capital and operating grants to Notre Dame University in Nelson, provided it is given representation on the board of governors.

'NO' DEVICE DYING OUT, BILL PASSES

LONDON (UPI)—The only really safe oral contraceptive, according to British member of Parliament Dame Joan Vickers is the word "no."

Labor MP Gerald Teasdale, however, told the House of Commons Friday that experience seemed to indicate this was a far from foolproof method of birth-control.

"The technique of saying 'no' seems to be dying," he said.

The House apparently agreed with him. It gave unopposed passage of legislation to provide family planning advice and devices to all women, married or single, as part of the National Health Service

Recreation Complex Sought For Colwood

Herb Bruch (SC — Esquimalt) Friday urged the government to help develop the Colwood Race Track into a recreational complex.

He suggested the former department of national defence property would make a good site for a Class "A" fair.

"There is plenty of parking and we don't have to tear out any buildings," he said.

"We should give leadership in this," he added.

Earlier this year Langford-Colwood area ratepayers voted to build a $220,000 indoor swimming pool on the property.

UBC and Simon Fraser U. needed $66 million.

NOT STUDENTS

Mr. Skillings told the House, "It is the responsibility of this legislature to decide how much will be spent on education, not the students, not the faculty, not university presidents and not lame duck presidents."

Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) asked if Mr. Skillings was attacking the UBC president.

"I'm not attacking anyone but he's a lame duck president and you know it," Mr. Skillings replied.

He said today that he used the term "lame duck" to mean Dr. Macdonald was ineffectual because he has resigned and loses his office June 30. Mr. Skillings said today, "If he had not resigned, his remarks would have been quite in order."

His remarks in the House however, left the suggestion with some listeners that no one should suggest how public money should be spent.

Uvic student council president Stephen Bigsby today looked on Mr. Skilling's remarks as attempted curtailment of free speech. He pointed out that Mr. Skillings does not criticize Dr. Gordon Shrum, B.C. Hydro co-chairman, for anticipating the needs of the Peace River project.

Mr. Bigsby also pointed out that the LSD exponent Dr. Alpert was brought here by a student organization and not by the university, adding, "I know of no case of any faculty member ever advocating anything like that."

University president Dr. Malcolm Taylor said the question of assisting U.S. draft-dodging youths had not arisen here. He would not comment on the rights of university presidents to make public their university financial needs.

But he said with respect to Dr. Alpert's visit here it had no significance.

MANY IDEAS

He said a university studies many ideas.

"But the fact that you listen to them doesn't mean you endorse them."

Elsewhere in his speech in the legislature, Mr. Skillings said he favored the payment of grants to out-of-town students to compensate for travel and accommodation costs, but he did not favor abolition of tuition fees. He pointed out that a graduate "has a preferred status" and a "preferred income" for life.

Mr. Skillings said taxpayers would be saved the costs of "duplication" if each university would specialize in certain fields.

He suggested that Uvic might specialize in marine biology and astronomy.

Speaking of difficulties at Sandown race track, Mr. Skillings said the government could aid what is a "hazardous occupation" by lowering the pari-mutuel tax.

He asked that the minister of finance, the B.C. Jockey Club and the racing commission "get together" to discuss the "whole question."

He said "facilities would be improved" at Sandown with a cut in the government's tax of pari-mutuel take.

Mr. Skillings also asked his government for "an ample operating grant" for the Maritime Museum here.

Hydraulic Jack Used To Free Car Passenger

City police had to call for a hydraulic jack Friday evening to free the knee of a passenger pinned in a car after a crash at Bay and Government.

Officers said a car driven by Mary Jackle, 573 Ridley Drive, was northbound on Government when it was in collision with an auto headed west on Bay and driven by Edward Pickard of 2951 Craigowan.

John Whittier of 536 Johnson, a passenger in the Jackle car, had his knee trapped under the twisted dashboard for about five minutes. He and the driver were released after treatment at Royal Jubile Hospital.

Former Y's Men To Mark Event

Victoria Y's Men's Club will hold a reunion banquet Feb. 25 at the Colonial Inn to celebrate the club's 20th birthday.

The club was formed Feb. 28, 1947.

About 35 former Y's Men and their wives will attend the banquet at 7:30 p.m.

YM-YWCA president Joseph Cunliffe will be guest speaker. Banquet chairman is Jack Fawcett.

Car Keys Stolen From Business Firm

Keys for 22 cars were stolen overnight when thieves broke into the office of Empress Motors at 900 Fort St.

A rear window in an office was forced to gain entry. No cars were taken in the robbery.

No Plea Taken In Track Cahe

A former jockey charged with setting a fire at Sandown Park last fall which killed 13 horses had his case remanded a week without plea when he appeared in Sidney court this morning.

John Castagne, 28, was arrested in Ontario after a fire which heavily damaged the stables was investigated by the fire marshal's office.

SIDNEY BUSINESSMEN:

Co-Owner Shows Selfish Attitude

The Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce have told Attorney-General Bonner this in a letter.

The chamber blamed the current controversy on Jack Diamond, co-owner of the B.C. Jockey Club, saying he showed "an apparent selfish attitude" in the situation and "is trying to justify his actions by being unreasonable in regard to the licence to this community."

The letter says that if Mr. Diamond wishes to pull out of the area and leave the franchise as it now stands, other parties will be ready to meet the improved health and fire standards North Saanich requires.

"It is common knowledge that Mr. Diamond has been unhappy for the past several years regarding this franchise and has on occasions tried to have same transferred to Vancouver.

"We feel that Vancouver has an abundance of racing days and it is felt that we here on Vancouver Island are entitled to this franchise and have geared our respective businesses to accommodate it as an extension to our tourist season."

Vindication Claimed On Bomarc Policy

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker told an American audience Friday that history has vindicated the 1963 refusal of his government to accept American nuclear warheads.

He also suggested that the 10-year NORAD aid defence agreement he signed with the United States "might well be terminated" when it expires next year and that Canadian and American armed forces contributions to NATO might be reduced.

The Conservative leader spoke to some 3,500 students at charter day ceremonies of Miami University in this southwestern Ohio college town. The occasion was the 158th anniversary of the school's founding but it was broadened to include a centennial tribute to Canada.

Diefenbaker was hailed as a symbol of the "common faith and abiding friendship" between Canada and the United States and was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws.

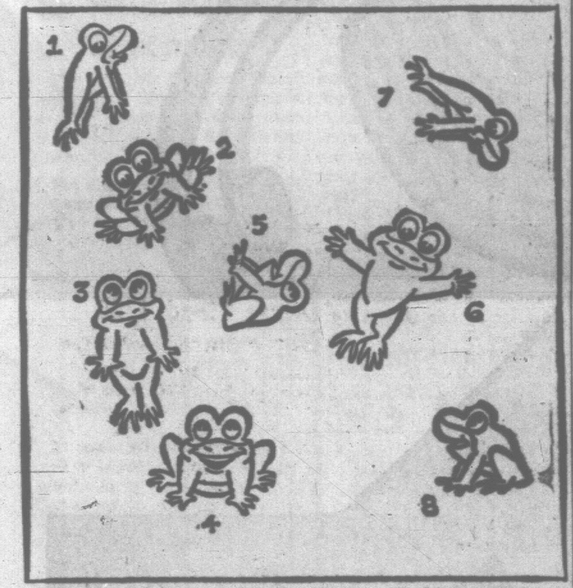
SMART GALLERY

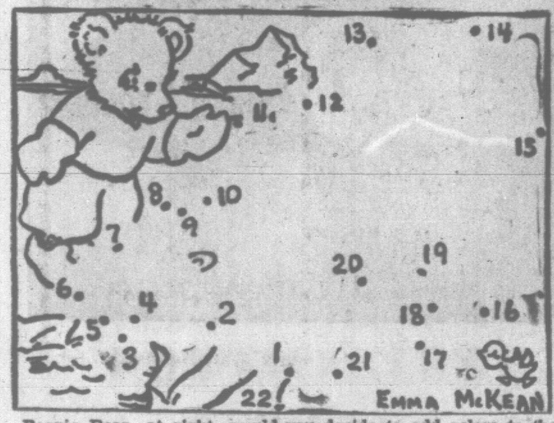


You must see eye to eye with the group of frogs shown above in order to pass this test. Problem: To draw four straight lines from border to border, each line passing through three eyes; no line to pass through any eye twice. Use of a ruler or straight edge is suggested. Remember, object is to cross out all of the frogs' eyes in four straight lines; three eyes per line.

For your information, two lines originate at left side of diagram; three lines terminate at right. Two lines originate at bottom; one line terminates at top. How quickly can you draw the lines?

Solution: Draw a line through eye of frog 1, through right eye (on your right) of frog 2, right eye of frog 4. Draw another line through both eyes of frog 3 and right eye of frog 6. Draw third line through left eye of frog 4, left eye of frog 6 and eye of 7. Draw fourth line through left eye of 2, eye of 5 and eye of 8.

DOT TO DOT



Beanie Bear, at right, would like you to meet a pal of his who lives in a remote part of the world. Says Beanie: "It's lucky he lives where the air is clean, for soot might discolor his nice, white coat."

Beanie's joshing a bit, 'twould seem, but his words have a bearing on his friend's identity.

If you haven't already done so, take a guess as to what the completed scene will show. Then, draw the missing figure's outline. Begin at 1, draw to dot 2 to dot 3, and so on, to dot 22. Only a few colors are needed if you decide to add colors to the scene.

Solution: Split into ten and thirty.

HE PUT THE SHOW ON THE ROAD

This German engineer is sometimes called the father of the automobile. He helped perfect the four-cycle internal combustion engine, adapted it in 1886 for use in a motorcycle and later in motor cars. He was the first to employ a carbureter. He was born in 1834; died in 1900. He was Gottlieb ———.

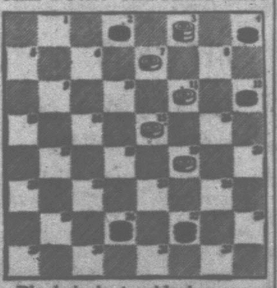
Answer: Gottlieb Daimler.

DOPE RING?

Area of a 4-inch circle is how many times that of a 1-inch circle?

Answer: Sixteen.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST

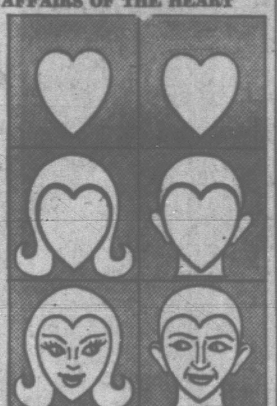


Black is in trouble here even if he does have his opponent moving up the board, and in four moves Black is vanquished.

Can you figure out the winning moves in accordance with champ Millard Hopper's suggested order of play? Remember, it's White's turn; four plays later, White wins with a haymaker.

Solution: White 19-16, Black 12-19, White 11-8, Black 4-11-18 (2-11-18), White 3-8, Black 2-11, White 8-15-24-31-22-15.

AFFAIRS OF THE HEART



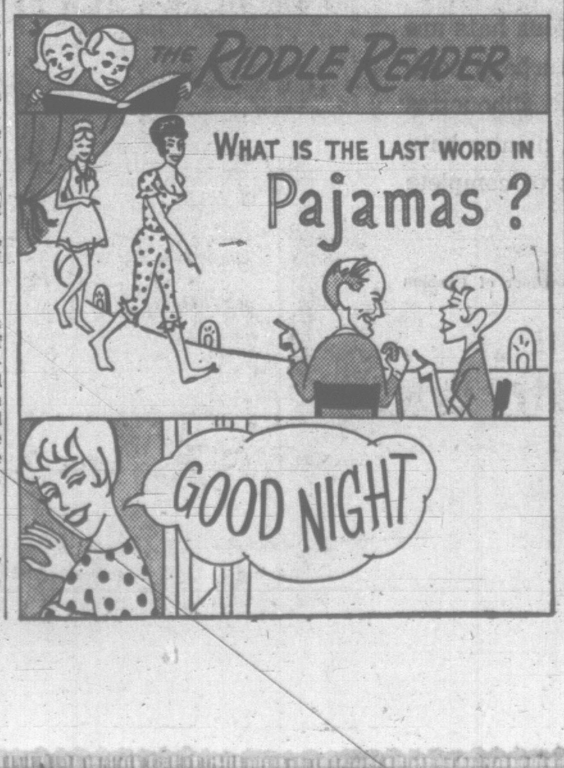
Want to draw and think you can't? Take heart. Indeed, take two hearts, as at left, and sketch a pair of youngsters who appear to be head over hearts in love.

Figures are drawn in three steps as shown:

1. Begin with simple heart designs. 2. Add hair and ears. 3. Add features — eyes, noses, mouths, eyebrows, etc.

When you feel you have progressed and have mastered these figures, draw two more hearts and other features to create a new pair of lovers. Try rounding off chins, squaring brows, etc., to vary contours.

Add hair coloring and flesh-tones, if crayons or colored pencils are handy.



STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

On Feb. 23 Guyana will release two stamps reproducing the famous 1c black-on-magenta stamp of British Guiana which was issued just one hundred years ago, and of which only one copy exists today, making it the rarest stamp in the world.

This stamp, along with a similar 4c value, was locally printed during a shortage of the regular series which was en route from London.

The Georgetown printers, Baum and Dallas, who printed the Official Gazette, were given the job. They chose a very simple design, consisting of the badge of the colony in an inner frame, with name and value around the sides.

They were type-set, the sailing ship which is a central figure of the badge being supplied by a printers' ornament used to head shipping notices in the "Gazette."

The solitary 1c value was unknown to collectors for 17 years until its discovery by a school boy named Vaughn. He sold it some time later to a local philatelist, N. R. KcKinnon for 6sh in order to buy some new issues.

In 1878 McKinnon's collection was sold to T. Ridpath, a Liverpool dealer, for £120, who in turn sold the 1c to the famous Count Ferrary for £150.

Ferrary, an Austrain living in France, fled to Switzerland in 1914, dying there three years later.

He had willed his immense collection to the Reichpost Museum; but it was confiscated by the French government, and helped to pay off Germany's war reparations to the extent of £400,000.

The 1c was bought by an American, Arthur Hind, for £7,343. Later it was bought anonymously for £10,000 by an Australian, but is now in the U.S., the present owner also being anonymous.

The small hand press on which the stamp was printed is still actually in use in the office of the Sunday Chronicle in Guyana.

It is interesting to local collectors to know that you can see an exact duplicate of this press in the lobby of the Government Printing Office on Superior St., complete with its cast-iron eagle perched on the top-bar, and with fancy curlicues wherever spaces permit.

One would swear that the two presses were made by the same manufacturer. But the Guiana machine came from Glasgow, whereas the old Victoria press, which arrived in 1860, and has the date 1859 stamped on it, was bought in London.

Ambulance Firms Claim Charges Average $15-$20

By JIM HUME

Private ambulance operators are up in arms over the recent statement made during a Victoria council committee meeting listing their basic charge for a call at $25.

"Not so," scream at least two of the privately owned companies.

One charges $10 for the first mile and $1 per mile thereafter.

Hume

The other charges $15 for the first mile-and-a-half and $1 a mile after.

Both charge 50 cents a mile after a 10-mile trip has been recorded.

The average trip, therefore, would run between $15 and $20.

With the city asking a voluntary payment of $10 per trip the private operators are naturally worried that their business could suffer. It would appear to be a justifiable worry.

Clyde Savage couldn't have been really serious when he told his convention centre committee members Thursday, that he didn't want them commenting to the press about various aspects of the problems facing construction.

He can't have forgotten so soon, that an elected representative of the people has a duty to express his opinions.

The press had departed from the Thursday meeting when Ald. Hugh Ramsay made his reply.

We won't try to quote him verbatim, but we understand the gist of his statement was that he wouldn't be gagged, neither would he refrain from speaking for or against a project if he saw fit.

* * *

The grapevine informs us that Coun. Art Mebs should start digging in to protect himself against a counter-attack from the Cat's Protection League.

The Esquimalt council member made so bold this week as to say that needs of living people were more important than the final disposition of dead cats.

Cat lovers don't accept that kind of statement without protest; although I feel bound to say Coun. Mebs made sense to me.

Move over in that trench, I think I'm going to be under siege, too.

Before the first rocks are thrown let me hurriedly say we have four cats at home (three are up for the grabs if there's a frustrated cat lover in the crowd), one dog, five sons, a gaggle of bantam hens and a patient wife.

* * *

A few odds and ends to wind up the week.

Jolly Jack Morgan, who runs with cheerful efficiency the arena, the McPherson Playhouse, the Crystal — and the city hall cafeteria, came through with a couple of deadpan quips during the Friday convention centre discussion.

The first, when it was mentioned casually that equipment and furnishing would cost $1 million (why not use the home-owner's grant?) brought forth from Jack: "The walls are always the cheapest."

His second, without the trace of a smile, when it was suggested that the centre might be best somewhere in the vicinity of Centennial Square: "Sounds ideal. It's close to the liquor store and delegates could always slip over the road for Chinese food."

Well they are items in prime demand by conventioners, aren't they?

Board Refuses To Hold Hearing On Union Bid

The Labour Relations Board has refused to hold a hearing on a joint certification application by craft unions for McKay Cormack shipyard.

But the board, in a letter to unions, said it will hear further evidence submitted before Feb. 27. The board has not made a decision on the application itself.

The legal bargaining rights for the shipyard, which has about 160 workers, are held at the moment by one union — the Shipwrights, Joiners and Wood Caulkers Industrial Union, Local 9.

A spokesman for the craft unions, Neil Hindle of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, hoped the board will call a vote of the workers themselves.

He added that there "is room on the joint certification" for the shipwrights and machinists to join.

Shipwrights spokesman Don Douglas declined comment.

Driver Found Sleeping in Car

A Langford man found asleep behind the wheel of his car in Goldstream Park was fined $300 Friday when he pleaded guilty to having care and control of a vehicle while impaired.

Kenneth Clark, 924 Brock, was also barred from driving for a month.

The keys to Clark's car were in the ignition which was switched on when police found him Feb. 5, court was told.

LADIES!
THE RED CROSS HOMEMAKERS SERVICE
NEEDS WOMEN TO SERVICE SEVERAL DISTRICTS

The Red Cross Homemakers Service requires warm, mature, understanding women who like children and are prepared to be away from their own homes for varying periods—daytime and 24-hour duty.

Victoria, Langford, Sidney districts are being searched for women who wish to do this service for the community. You will be paid, uniforms supplied and transportation covered. You will work under a supervisor, with further training as required.

Women who have the necessary time and who feel they can adapt themselves to the many different work situations they will encounter, are asked to come in for an interview. If you are interested in being a supervised homemaker, we would like to hear from you.

YOUTH CRASH TOLL SOARS

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians aged 16-23 died in traffic accidents in one six-week period last year at a rate that, if continued throughout the year, would empty one entire university classroom every week.

A survey of newspaper reports on traffic fatalities across Canada from Oct. 20 to Nov. 29, 1966. There were 234 fatalities in 191 accidents.

SHOUTS, SHOVE

Force Probe Gets Violent

OTTAWA (CP) — Two unscheduled bouts—one shouting, one shoving—broke out at the end of an uproarious meeting of the Commons defence committee Friday.

RAYNER
. . . red with anger

HELLYER
. . . innuendo?

In one corner, Defence Minister Hellyer and retired Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner, now administrator of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa, raised their voices to one another.

In the opposite corner, Jack McIntosh (PC — Swift Current-Maple Creek) gave Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) a shove which sent Mr. Winch stumbling back against a chair.

Mr. McIntosh had been needling the committee's witness and Mr. Winch had been needling Mr. McIntosh throughout the sitting.

"He hit me," Mr. Winch said later. "And me a cripple."

Mr. Winch has been on crutches or cane recently with a bad knee.

The row was touched off by a brief—flowery in its praise of armed forces unification plans—presented by Kenneth Patrick, Montreal businessman and wartime RCAF group captain.

The brief referred at one point to an April, 1964, order purportedly issued by Admiral Rayner, then chief of naval staff, saying in part: ". . . the end objective of a single service is firm."

ACCOSTS MINISTER

His face crimson with anger, the usually mild-mannered Admiral Rayner approached Mr. Hellyer when the meeting ended and accused him of issuing "innuendo" and "propaganda."

He said Mr. Hellyer and his staff had tried to give the impression that the admiral himself had issued the order.

"I made no such statement," Admiral Rayner snapped — as Mr. McIntosh angrily strode out of the room after his encounter with Mr. Winch.

Mr. Hellyer said: "I know, it was my statement."

William Lee, executive assistant to Mr. Hellyer, told Admiral Rayner that nobody had ever said he had made the statement.

"You sent out the signal," Mr. Lee said.

Admiral Rayner retorted: "I was asked by the minister to send it. I had no option."

Mr. Hellyer suggested that Admiral Rayner appear before the committee.

The admiral said he would be glad to do so.

QUOTES SIGNAL

Mr. Patrick's testimony on the point said:

"Admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of the naval staff, on April 3, 1964, published a four-page statement from which I quote:

"'The third and final step will be the unification of the three services. It is reasonable to expect that it will be three

RUSSIA SAYS:

Mao Loses Inner Mongolia

TOKYO (AP)—Radio Moscow said today that after a series of bloody clashes opponents of Mao Tse-tung have seized "nearly full control" of Inner Mongolia.

The Japanese-language broadcast said leaders loyal to Mao had ordered three divisions of the Peoples Liberation Army from Peking to support Maoist revolutionary rebels.

The broadcast added that Maoist Red Guards had failed in efforts to take control in Shantung and Szechwan provinces and said a tense situation still persists in the Dairen-Port Arthur area on the Liaotung peninsula. In these areas, the broadcast said, peasants have joined 'anti-Maoist army' soldiers.

Other reports told of continued opposition to Mao's "great cultural revolution" in Tibet and Fukien province opposite Formosa.

In Inner Mongolia, the broadcast said, Maoists encountered strong counter-attacks from anti-Maoists and bloody clashes occurred.

Five City Teenagers Killed As Car Plunges Into River

Band Members Going to Dance

By TERRY IZZARD

Five Victoria teenagers died Friday night when their car plunged into the swollen Salmon River at Sayward on northern Vancouver Island.

Their deaths brought to 10 the number of teenagers killed on the Island highway in the past week.

Three of those killed Friday were members of a city rock 'n' roll group, the two girls in the car were identified as girl friends.

Dead are:

Carole Anne Baker, 19, of 4057 Gordon Head Rd.
Gwyneth Riley Thomas, 18, of 1226 Hampshire.
Elkrid Cinar, 16, of 599 Sedger Road.
Charles Barry De Muelle, 16, of 816 Intervale.
Alexander (Randy) Reid, 19, of 816 Intervale.

Police recovered the bodies when the death car was dragged from the river.

The accident happened at 8:30 p.m.

All apparently drowned.

●

The youngsters were on their way to play at a dance in Sayward, 52 miles north of Campbell River, when the accident occurred.

They were only a mile from their destination when the car apparently went out of control while crossing a bridge.

It smashed into a pole and flipped over the safety barrier.

Police believe the youngsters had no chance to escape.

The water at the point where the car entered was six feet deep—swollen by recent heavy rains.

The five bodies were still inside the water-filled car when it was dragged to the surface shortly afterwards.

One of the first to learn of the accident was Charles' brother, Arthur, 21.

A draftsman at Kelsey Bay, he was waiting for them in Sayward.

Arthur was leader of the band called the EXL's, which was well-known in teen-age circles.

He had sung with the other three since they arrived in Victoria from Churchill, Man., eight months ago.

●

One of the dead girls, attractive Gwyneth Thomas, had been on her way to see Arthur. The two had been going steady for some time.

The other girl, Carol, was Randy Reid's girl friend. She worked for the B.C. Medical Plan.

Elkrid Cinar, the group's drummer, had arrived from the prairies just before Christmas. He was attending Colquitz Junior High.

Mop-haired Charles, the bass player, was a pupil at Esquimalt Junior High.

Although Randy was not working, his girl friend was employed by Victoria Real Estate Board.

Said a friend of the group: "They were a real good bunch. They didn't smoke or drink and usually one of the parents accompanied them on their band dates."

Arthur De Muelle broke the news to his mother, Lucille this morning. Randy Reid had been staying with the family until he found work.

It was only a week ago today that three teen-agers were killed when their car plunged off the Malahat. A fourth died on Monday.

On Sunday, a 19-year-old city youth died when the sports car in which he was a passenger crashed on the Trans-Canada Highway at Portage Inlet.

HELLYER WILL CHECK ON U.S. STUDENTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Friday he has no knowledge that American students at Canadian universities do undercover assignments for the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

But he promised Eric Winkler (PC—Grey—Bruce) he would ask his colleagues in the government if they were aware of such activities.

Mr. Winkler said there were Washington reports that the CIA uses students for undercover work at domestic as well as foreign universities.

He asked for an investigation to insure the RCMP does not use students at universities in this country to gather police intelligence.

FOREIGN ACTIVITIES

CIA Cash Linked To News Union

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says the American Newspaper Guild has received nearly $1,000,000 in foundation grants since 1960 to help finance its South American and other overseas activities.

"All of the money in the last two years has come from three foundations that refuse to disclose their sources of income or their contributions to other organizations," The Times says in a dispatch from Washington.

Charles A. Perlik Jr., national secretary-treasurer of the guild, when asked whether any of the money came originally from the Central Intelligence Agency, said that as far as he knew the money was obtained from "private sources," The Times reported.

The newspaper identifies the three foundations as the Warden Trust of Cleveland, the Chesapeake Foundation of Baltimore and the Broad-High Foundation of Columbus, Ohio.

DOESN'T KNOW ORIGIN

The Philadelphia Inquirer quotes William J. Farson, executive vice-president of the guild, as saying that he was aware of contributions made by the foundations, but that he knew nothing of their backgrounds.

Asked if the money might have been intended to influence foreign journalists to pro-American points of view, Farson told The Inquirer that was a possibility.

"I can tell you this, if any foundation ever tried to influence our work, we would not accept contributions from them," he added. "In any case, these reports make it practically impossible for us to continue our international work. Anything we proposed now would be suspect. The only thing left for us to do is to pull out."

The Times says "the guild did receive a large contribution in 1964, between $85,000 and $100,000, according to Perlik, from the Andrew Hamilton Fund."

FINANCED SEMINARS

"Mr. Perlik," The Times account continues, "said that the newspaper guild had obtained a total of roughly $650,000 from the Warden Trust, the Chesapeake Foundation and the Broad-High Foundation since sometime in 1965 to finance such activities as conferences on newspaper union organization work and journalism seminars overseas.

"Mr. Perlik said the guild also received between $100,000 and $150,000 during the years 1960 through 1963 from the Granary Fund of Boston."

The Washington Post says

Mounties Nab Gunman

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—RCMP officers, wearing bullet-proof vests and assisted by a police dog, captured a 22-year-old man in a bush area in nearby Surrey today about four hours after a shooting spree.

The chase started after a shotgun blast crashed through the window of a Surrey home.

No one was injured but at one stage shots were fired at police. Pellets from a shotgun blast struck a police car.

Quebec Labor Crisis Hits Peak Monday

(See also page 38.)

QUEBEC (CP)—The biggest labor crisis in years faced Quebec today as a new law forcing 12,000 striking teachers back to work neared the enforcement stage.

The key man in the situation—Raymond Laliberte, president of the 50,000-member Corporation des Instituteurs Catholiques—turned a deaf ear to questions about whether he intended to order a second mass study session by provincial teachers.

With the help of 6,200 members of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, the CIC closed nearly every public classroom in Quebec Friday and teachers spent the day studying the much-debated legislation.

Enacted into law at 1:45 p.m. Friday, Bill 25 orders teachers back into their classrooms Monday morning and extends their expired collective agreements until June, 1968.

In Montreal, news of the bill's passage was quickly followed by the announcement that officials of Quebec's two most powerful labor groups—the 300,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor and 200,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions—had called a joint meeting for Monday.

CALLS IT 'THREAT'

The CNTU issued a statement calling the bill "a threat not only against the teachers but against all society" and promised establishment of 108 "political action committees."

But a spokesman would not say what exactly was planned—

Logger, 20, Dies as Car Slams Tree

COURTENAY — A young logger died and two others were seriously injured when an old model car smashed into a tree east of here Friday night.

Police had to use crowbars to free the trio from the wreckage.

Robert Arthur Neidrauer, 20, of Lake Trail Road, Courtenay, was already dead.

Brian Perrin and Brian Peterson, both 19, of Cumberland were rushed to hospital with multiple fractures.

They are in fair condition.

The accident happened just outside city limits shortly before 9 p.m.

The three youths were heading towards Courtenay when they sideswiped a car driven by William Warnes of Cumberland.

Cong Talk Truce With Ky

TOKYO (AP) — The Viet Cong said today they made contacts with South Vietnamese officers during the Lunar New Year truce and that the contacts proved the Vietnamese can settle their own affairs.

This assertion was made by the spokesman for the Viet Cong's National Front for Liberation and broadcast by Hanoi radio.

It was the first disclosure that there had been such contacts.

"The contacts between a number of officers and men of the puppet army and the people and cadres of the NFL proved that the Vietnamese people are fully able to settle themselves all internal affairs provided the U.S. stop its aggression against South Vietnam and withdraws its troops from there."

LONDON (AP) — The Communist Morning Star says a North Vietnamese foreign ministry spokesman in Hanoi has confirmed that talks can commence if the Americans stop the bombing of North Vietnam.

In an undated dispatch, Freda Cook, its correspondent in Hanoi, quotes the spokesman as saying:

"This is not a new line but a new approach to the question of talks. The United States has protested often enough that it wants to talk as soon as there is the slightest indication that Hanoi is willing.

"Very well, let the bombing of the North stop definitely and talks could commence."

AUSSIES AVOID TRAP IN S. VIET BATTLE

SAIGON (AP) — Australian troops bypassed an enemy ambush and killed 70 Viet Cong guerrillas in a six-hour battle Friday, a spokesman for the 1st Australian Task Force announced today.

It was the fourth straight day allied units—South Vietnamese, Koreans, Americans and Australians—have clashed with guerrillas or North Vietnamese regulars. They have claimed an over-all enemy death toll exceeding 1,000.

Arthur Mayse

In an up-Island hotel a couple of years ago, I listened while a public relations man for the pulp mill that had provided a press group with drinks and dinner told me proudly how much his outfit had spent on its air pollution control program.

I forget what the figure was, but do remember that when we stepped outside, the mill stacks a few miles distant were stinking up the town with what struck me as unabated abandon.

The moral of this account is that in the matter of pollution, half, or quarter, or eighth measures don't signify when a total job needs doing.

I expect, though, that we will have to settle for a partial effort until we acquire leaders who will insist to industry that its operations needn't necessarily be accompanied by pollution in its various ugly forms.

Those who wish to can also comfort themselves with the knowledge that we are only the third worst-polluted province of Canada. Findings arrived at by the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers indicate that at the last check, Ontario and Quebec were far ahead of us.

We, in fact, are polluted only to the estimated cost of $91,800,000 a year.

★

However, I don't think we can settle for bald statistics, since both Eastern leaders in the pollution race are many times more heavily industrialized and populated than B.C.

Proportionately, I suggest that we are acquiring pollution sources at a brisk rate, and am glad to see that increased public awareness of the threat has goosed Mr. Bennett's government into a promise of action.

The Pollution Control Board—an arm of government to which a judicial sprain has been administered in the Buttle Lake affair—is to be strengthened. That's welcome news. Despite the sneers and jeers directed at it, the board has done as well as its limited resources and commission permit.

I hope it will now be allowed to wade in with a mop instead of a feather duster, and will be convinced that government pollution control intentions are solid when the black disgrace of the Alberni Valley has been cleaned up.

If its interest is sincere, government should also tear into the self-puffing brief submitted to the cabinet committee on pollution by the Council of Forest Industries.

In this most curious document, pollution control seems to have become synonymous with utiliaztion of wood by-products. This last is comendable; but to claim an essentially profit-making device as an altruistic attempt at pollution control is an insult to the intelligence.

★

I dislike criticizing our forest industry, because in terms of payrolls and tax yield, it remains much more than any other the hand that feeds us.

But this situation, which in effect requires B.C. to be a plantation from which raw or semi-raw materials are harvested for manufacture elsewhere, also places our provincial ceiling too close to its floor. Hence shrewd Mr. Bennett's scramble for the secondary industries we so badly need.

Meanwhile, the dark horse among our lesser revenue producers is worth keeping an eye on.

This is tourism, which in 1966, gained by about $66 million over 1965 to reach a whacking total of $267.2 million spent in British Columbia.

Part of that sum was blown by we inhabitants; but even without our holiday contributions, the figure is arresting. It also indicates the need for some careful re-appraisals by government.

For pollution ill-curbed or ignored will not merely prove a threat to British Columbians' health and enjoyment of life. It could do grave harm to a goose that lays a larger golden egg each year.

All other considerations apart, pure air and water are money in the bank—a fact which I trust we will realize and act upon much more vigorously than we have to date.

OUTDOORS CALLING SUNDAY

Gardeners, golfers, fishermen and Sunday drivers can look forward to an enjoyable Sunday.

After the big winds of Friday the weatherman predicts a mild Sunday, sunny with only a few cloudy intervals.

Low tonight and high Sunday are 35 and 45.

If you're planning an early start sunrise is scheduled for 7:15 a.m. and you'll have until 5:41 to operate without headlights. Get out and see the crocuses.

Three Die When Wind Flips Troller

Three persons drowned and an 11-year-old boy was cited for heroism in a boat accident at Tofino on Friday.

Dead are John Jack, 65; Gloria McCarthy, 32, and Bruce Hill, 3 — all from the nearby Ahousat Indian reserve.

Five persons survived including the boy, John Keitlah, who managed to paddle to his mother's side and keep her afloat also until rescued.

His mother, Mrs. Margaret Keitlah, couldn't swim.

Other survivors, who were tended in Tofino hospital, included boat owner John McCarthy, his son James and youngsters Sheila and Frederick Hill.

●

The tragedy was blamed on a 50-mile-per-hour gale which swept across Vancouver Island, reaching gusts of 70 at times and wreaking havoc in the Victoria area as well.

The troller had weathered the trip across the strait from Ahousat and was preparing to dock at Tofino when it was hit by a sudden gust only 100 yards from shore.

It keeled over and sank while an incoming speedboat raced toward it piloted by Joseph Frank, chief of the Opitsates. The bodies of the three victims were recovered. The mission boat Ave Maria arrived minutes later to aid in the rescue.

Conditions of all the survivors was classed as fair today but they will remain in hospital for treatment for exposure.

The gale which pounded the Island cut telephone and power lines and blanked out a Victoria radio station and a Vancouver TV broadcast.

Several store windows were broken by the force of the wind in Victoria and Saanich. The storm was blamed also for delaying the departure of the CPR's Canadian from Vancouver, although flights out of Patricia Bay Airport were on schedule.

Telephone service to Port Renfrew was out until 9 p.m. B.C. Hydro crews were called to Sooke, Metchosin and Sidney and some power lines were down near Duncan at Somenos Lake.

The 17,000-ton oil derrick SEDCO 135-F berthed at Victoria Machinery Depot caused concern at the height of the wind storm.

●

Its 165-foot-high structure took the full force of the blasts, stretching against its nine anchoring chains to nudge the dock several times. No serious damage was reported.

The tug Island Monarch attached lines to the huge floating structure and held it clear until early today. Workers were attempting to tighten the chain today.

Several road accidents were blamed on gusting winds and pelting rain.

Temperatures were above normal, the lowest locally being 42. The strongest gust locally reached 70 miles per hour at 4:20 p.m.

Fishermen Hit Overcrowding At City Wharf

Troller Group Fears Inferno

Victoria's commercial fishermen today protested the serious fire hazard created by the overcrowding of boats at Fishermen's Wharf.

They said an outbreak of fire among the more than 200 craft would create a raging inferno, with gas tanks exploding and flames whipping through the fleet.

The fishermen are petitioning the federal transport department in Ottawa to provide extra wharfage facilities to relieve "dangerous overcrowding" at Fishermen's Wharf.

They point out that the six floats built there in 1948 to accommodate "a mere handful" of boats are now jammed by fleet of more than 200.

"They are packed in so closely that, whenever a big craft goes by, the wash causes our boats to bang into each other causing damage," said fisherman Willy Dunan.

"There is also a serious fire hazard. If one of our boats caught fire, the flames would spread through the fleet and the exploding gas tanks would create a regular inferno."

Mr. Dunan and a number of other fishermen today began collecting signatures for three petitions to be sent to Transport Minister J. W. Pickersgill; George Chatterton, Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and David Groos, MP for Victoria.

"We expect the petitions will be signed by all of the 200 boat-owners at Fishermen's Wharf," said Bob Foster, secretary of the Victoria branch, Pacific Trollers' Association, which is supporting the appeal to Ottawa.

Mr. Foster pointed out that the federal transport department is responsible for providing wharf facilities, while the city of Victoria looks after maintenance.

"I would say the fishing fleet here has more than doubled over the past five years and it is growing all the time," said Ray Prince, whose 62-foot trawler, Violet Prince, has been berthed at Fishermen's Wharf since 1948.

"Only 10 years ago fishermen could take out their boats and bring them back to the exact spot they left. Now they have to squeeze in wherever they can."

Mr. Foster said this part of the Inner Harbor is too crowded to permit any further expansion of facilities at Fishermen's Wharf.

"It looks as if the government will have to build another wharf elsewhere, perhaps at Esquimalt or West Bay. But that is a problem for their engineers to decide.

"As it is, many commercial fishermen have to take their boats to Sidney and Sooke because there is no room for them in Victoria."

Mr. Foster said a committee of fishermen will call on Victoria city council next week to ask for repairs to the existing facilities.

Fishermen's Wharf is occupied solely by commercial fishing vessels from May 1 to Sept. 1. It is used by pleasure boats during the summer when the fishing fleet is away.

"Owners of pleasure boats are welcome to sign our three petitions if they wish," Mr. Foster said.

The petitions call on the government to look into "the inadequate wharf facilities for Victoria's commercial fishing fleet," and points out that boats are now tied up four-deep.

Ask The Times

Q. How much do legislative assembly members in B.C. make? F.L.

A. The Canadian Almanac 1966 says members are paid $5,000 per session, plus $1,500 for expenses, plus $25 a day expenses up to 40 days during the session. Other payments are $500 for telephone and telegraph expenses and 25 cents a mile for travel to and from Victoria.

Q. What does an asterisk beside a serial number on Canadian currency signify? F.K.

A. An asterisk in front of the serial number on a bill means that note is a replacement for a defective one destroyed in the printing process.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Crash, Bang, Tinkle

A car with a jammed accelerator careened about the parking lot at the Red Lion Motor Inn Friday night, smashing into six cars and causing an estimated $2,700 damage.

John Coleman of 3948 Shorncliffe told police he had just backed his auto from a parking spot and shifted it into drive when it took off.

He suffered a cut over his eye and a bump on his nose in the wild ride.

SKILLINGS BLASTS LSD EXPONENTS

Professors Ticked Off by MLA

British Columbia university professors were ticked off in the legislature Friday by Victoria Socred MLA Waldo Skillings.

His blast was touched off by three main items:

- A University of Victoria hearing given LSD exponent Dr. Richard Alpert last year;
- An offer by University of British Columbia faculty members to assist "American draft-dodgers";
- The action of UBC president Dr. John B. Macdonald in publicizing his estimates of the financial needs of three B.C. universities this year.

Speaking in the budget debate, Mr. Skillings labelled Dr. Macdonald a "lame duck president" while claiming he was not "attacking" anyone. He praised University of Victoria and its president Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor.

The government "whip", Mr. Skillings is himself a former student of Victoria College and Victoria Normal School, the predecessors of Uvic.

DISCONTENT

He said he had heard stories of faculty discontent at Uvic but that students and everyone else are sometimes discouraged.

"I am sure everyone here commends the action taken by (Uvic president) Dr. Taylor, Dean Wood and Dean Jeffels."

In an interview today Mr. Skillings said he was referring to their administration and "firm hands on the reins". He made no reference to the current controversy surrounding the release of three instructors by the university.

He went on to say in his speech, "I don't think the faculty should aid and abet American draft-dodgers."

USE OF LSD

And he said in his speech, faculty members should not advocate "the use of LSD or marijuana."

Asked to amplify these statements today, Mr. Skillings said he was referring to a petition and advertisements in Vancouver.

They were directed to U.S. youths coming into Canada to avoid military service and offered them assistance in relocating in university studies here. Various Vancouver university faculty members were involved in the project.

Mr. Skillings said his remarks on LSD and marijuana had some reference to University of Victoria. He recalled that in January, 1966, Uvic "brought out" Dr. Richard Alpert, a dismissed Harvard professor of psychology, who defended the use of the hallucinatory drug before a student audience.

WALDO SKILLINGS
. . . 'making no charges'

And professors generally, but not necessarily here, "have said students should have the full experience" including experiments with drugs such as LSD and marijuana.

He said this morning he was making no charges "these things have been reported to be going on" and he was anxious to mention them so safeguards could be erected in the interests of moral, ethical and academic excellence.

Mr. Skillings said in the interview that in respect to use of LSD at Uvic there have been rumors "and I think it's something we as legislators should take a firm stand on." He said he knows of no wrong-doing at Uvic and he recalled that when the police investigated such matters there "they found nothing."

FIREWORKS

Another part of his speech caused some fireworks when he criticized UBC president Macdonald for stating before the budget came down that Uvic,

PICKERSGILL
. . . also lower incomes

British Columbia has prospered under Confederation and it would be poorer if it seceded, Transport Minister Pickersgill said Friday.

"I'm convinced that if B.C. went it alone it would be poorer — there would be lower incomes," he told a University of Victoria audience.

"There are those who ask: Why not let the better-off provinces go off on their own?

"If B.C. had become a part of the U.S. in 1846, I suggest that Seattle today would be twice as big as Vancouver."

If the U.S. had taken possession of the West Coast, the Lower Mainland "would just be the margin of the Columbia Valley," the minister said.

Spring Festival Cancelled; 'Hasn't Achieved Purpose'

This year's Spring Flower Festival is off.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Courtney Haddock said directors agreed Friday not to ask the city for $5,000 to subsidize the festival.

He said chamber directors feel the festival has not achieved its main purpose — attracting people to the city before the main tourist season begins.

But it was possible that a modified festival not involving a "costly outlay" could be held in place of the Spring Flower Festival.

Boys Paddle Into Arms of Police

A 14-year-old boy kept his promise Friday.

In doing so he tied up police officers from two forces and had radios humming the length of the waterfront.

The problem arose when he told his 13-year-old friend he'd meet him with a boat in the Gorge waterway.

He didn't own a boat.

So he took a 14-foot outboard from Oak Bay Marina and set off for the rendezvous point after first picking up 80 cents worth of gas at Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Police got on his trail after a fishboat skipper radioed he'd spotted the boy off Oak Bay golf course.

Relying on other radio reports, Oak Bay officers kept tabs on him as far as Victoria Harbor where they passed to city police.

At 10 a.m. as promised, the boy picked up his friend and headed up the Gorge.

His progress was by this time being observed by constables standing on the CNR trestle near Point Ellice Bridge.

The trip ended when the boat's 18-horsepower engine ran out of gas and the boys were forced to paddle into shore to the arms of waiting policemen.

An Oak Bay officer said one of the boys will probably appear in juvenile court.

LOVERS, PARROTS, FAME

THE BERNHARDT BIOGRAPHY

Sarah Believed She Was the World's Best Actress

Cornelia Otis Skinner, MADAME SARAH. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin Co., 1967. $6.95. Reviewed by Ann Saddlemyer.

Even the circumstances of her conception challenged the conventions: she was the illegitimate daughter of a middle-class milliner-turned courtesan and a young law student from Le Havre.

Of Dutch ancestry and proudly Jewish, she became the greatest ambassador France ever boasted. Too thin to be beautiful, with an unruly tangle of reddish-blonde hair, and a frightening tendency to bleed at the mouth, she captivated every man she met—except the one who briefly became her husband.

Addicted to so many lovers no one has been able to keep track or tally, she had only one son (Maurice), by a Belgian aristocrat, and her marriage at 38 to a Greek diplomat-turned-actor was disastrous.

On less private occasions she preferred animals to people, and over the years (though fortunately not at one time) her guests were startled by a menagerie containing two gold-encrusted turtles, four pumas, a cheetah, parrots, innumerable dogs, seven chameleons, a Louisiana alligator, a monkey (named Darwin), a baby tigress, an American wildcat, a lynx, a sleeping boa constrictor ("to rest my feet on after meals") and a caged lion.

Lavish with her affections, she had an equally undisciplined temper and bursts of violent anger would be followed by extravagant acts of contrition. At the height of her fame she dictated both contract and salary, yet was frequently bankrupt and constantly in debt. Queen of Racine, Sardou, Rostand, and Victor Hugo, she believed herself the greatest actress in the world (and was), but at the beginning of her career was dismissed by the Comedie Francaise and all her life suffered from such miserable stage-fright she would have to be pushed on for her cue. Mistress over death both on and off stage (her coffin was prepared for early occupancy when she was just 16; she slept in it for relaxation), life was a constant passion to be indulged and squandered but never wasted or begrudged. The theatre thrilled to the way she died (her most famous death scene were in La Dame aus Camelias, Phedre, and Hernani); The public was fascinated by the life she lived. "La Divine," "The Bernhardt," or simply, "Sarah," for over 60 years she reigned the Eighth Wonder of the World, providing eloquent matter for both press and pulpit. She is more legendary than real, less human than divine. Even her art, described by Max Beerbohm as "Lurid supernaturalness," escapes definition. "Like the author of Le Misanthrope," declared one playwright, "Sarah is beyond all classification."

•

There have been other books about Sarah Bernhardt, most of them succumbing too easily to partisanship, swayed by mystiques or malice. Bernhardt's own memoirs are characteristically even more unreliable. Cornelia Otis Skinner's full-scale biography is the first in English in 20 years, and surpasses all others in range, research and readability. Daughter of an accomplished actor, herself an actress and monologuist who has delighted Victoria audiences, witty author of many books including the ever-fresh Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, Miss Skinner brings both insight and sympathy to her study of France's tempestuous Sarah.

Hers was an age of exciting showwomen and exquisite actresses. Italy paid homage to Eleanora Duse, England to Ellen Terry and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Ireland thrilled to Maud Gonne's appeals to patriotism.

But the fascination of Sarah Bernhardt outlives them all, even as her throbbing, leonine style for a time engulfed the poetic sumplicity of Duse's acting. Duse rose to stardom through the productions of her playwright lover Gabriel D'Annunzio; the delightful Ellen Terry required the partnership of Henry Irving; Mrs. Pat played her best under Bernard Shaw's stormy direction; Maud Gonne lives now only in Yeats' love poetry. Bernhardt's magic was hers alone—in the panther-like grace of her movements, the sculptured extravagance of her gestures, the superb sense of timing, and, above all, in the magnificent Voice in which, wrote Lytton Strachey, "there was more than gold, there was thunder and lightning, there was heaven and hell."

•

We learn of the young girl's lonely, moody, unhealthy childhood, unloved and often ignored by her mother, shunted from the rough peasant cottage of her Breton nurse to an equally careless demi-monde aunt, finally to boarding school and eventually to a convent, where the young enthusiast gave way to her first passion, for the Holy Ghost.

But shortly after she left school, persuaded by two of her mother's fashionable clientele (the novelist Alexandre Dumas and Duc de Morny, half-brother to Louis-Napoleon), she unwillingly considered the stage.

She studied at the Conservatoire, was admitted to the Comedie Francaise but left under a well-publicized cloud (the first of many) when she physically attacked one of the veteran share-holding performers.

With this blow, Sarah's public life began. From now on she moved from role to lover, gradually gaining momentum until she produced a son and became the Goddess of the Left Bank.

•

She gained influential friends of her own—the aging George Sand, the politician Leon Gambetta, Gustave Flaubert, Emile Zola, Victor Hugo, Francois Coppee, Louis Pasteur, Charles Gounod, Henry Irving, Oscar Wilde, the Prince of Wales; she performed before the Emperor. During the Great Siege of Paris she turned her current theatre into a field hospital and efficiently served as head nurse.

She took up painting and sculpture, but her taste was poor. She returned to the Comedie Francaise and established her Court. During the Paris Exposition she shocked her conservative directors of the House of Moliere by going up in a balloon; the following year she took London by storm, as later, leading her own company, she was to conquer America and eventually the world. She made nine trips to America in all, including four "farewell tours". She did not care for New York, loved Boston, and, unlike Samuel Butler, approved of Montreal.

•

But her greatest thrill in the New World seems to have been touring Texas in a tent. Eventually, after she had gained glory throughout the world, her cautious nation awarded her the Legion d'Honneur.

Careless as her private life had been, tasteless as much of her public exhibitionism became, Bernhardt the artist remained untarnished. (Though not always uncriticized: Max Beerbohm's youthful puritanism was shocked by her performance as Hamlet; Bernard Shaw's older irascibility was roused by her blatant showmanship and "Sardoodledum".) Once she became an actor-manager, she designed her own costumes and supervised their manufacture, attended personally to all details of box office and house management, oversaw all production details.

Even while travelling the "Bernhardt Express" across the United States, she would constantly rehearse new plays, review and revise older productions. Never satisfied with a performance, she worked herself tirelessly. For a while she taught, but, as always, scorned Tradition, insisting on sincerity and self-discipline.

To a young student who objected that she did not "feel" a part as Madame had instructed, she firmly replied, "If you are going to be an actress, my girl, you've got to be able to do it that way or any other way!" Oscar Wilde wrote Salome for her in French, but the censors banned it.

•

Once she herself contemplated learning English so that, like a more recent French tragedienne she might act Shakespeare's own words (though doubtless Sarah would have insisted on the title role in Macbeth). But nothing came of the idea when she announced to her would-be instructor that only 45 minutes a day would be available for the lessons — at 2 a.m.

In old age, when the grand tours were replaced by Music Hall appearances, lectures and recitals, the magic (if only in the audience's memory) remained; so did the energy, for at 66 she was still hiring leading men who could double as lovers. At 65 she played the 19-year-old Joan of Arc and got away with it; during the First World War, in her seventies and minus a leg, she recited to the troops at the front. She continued to act until her death in 1922, true to her own defiant motto, "Quand meme," "In spite of everything."

But Madame Sarah, despite the subject, remains a biography only. The silent films, the early recordings, the portraits and the memoirs cannot evoke the magic of her presence nor recapture the thrilling voice.

After almost 350 pages (including a bibliography and list of productions) one is still greedy for more, and much of the sketchy social background of the era could willingly be sacrific for more complete descriptions of the actress at work.

•

It is a pity that no one preserved Bernhardt in her most famous role as Racine's Phedre, in the way that Gordon Craig lovingly lingers over every detail of Henry Irving's opening scene in The Bells. As she would doubtless prefer it, the actress remains the myth of her own creation.

'Ann Saddlemyer is an Associate professor of English at the University of Victoria.

Novel Of The Heart

THE KNOCK AT MIDNIGHT, Charity Blackstock, Hodder and Stoughton Ltd., $4.90. Reviewed By ANTHONY JENKINS

On the death of her father, Margaret Ramsay — one of those daughters who slide "by imperceptible degrees into taking on the responsibilities that no one else wants" — emerges into life at 35.

Anxious to taste her new freedom, she goes on holiday to Hungary where she finally discards the illusions that still linger about her charming exfiance and experiences at first hand the human suffering behind the facade of Nazi power in the Europe of 1938.

Miss Blackstock writes with a refreshing sense of proportion about the feelings of her first person narrator, "self-pity is always indecent and absurd," and the first half of the book moves forward in a tough plain style enlivened with a witty turn of phrase.

The author frequently insulates her narrative with remarks that reveal her awareness of the dangers of a romantic plot in the tired world of 1966: "Rupert seems now a silly sort of name, the kind of thing one meets in romantic novels."

Yet this is a romantic novel. Except for Margaret herself, the characters are very thinly drawn: of the two men in her life, Rupert Cash is dashing, handsome and evil, Crouner Gunn — an untidy, irreverent middle-class type — is indulgently presented as an attractive yet naughty boy.

The long arm of coincidence stretches everywhere: the exfiance just happens to be on the heroine's train, while Mr. Gunn has the surprisingly convenient habit of carrying his dead daughter's passport with him — and there hangs the tale.

The ensuing adventure is too fragile to sustain either of the book's two themes; the heroine's initiation into life and the political nuances of pre-war Europe become subordinated to the mechanics of the plot.

As Margaret retreats from her continental encounter, the tough wit is sentimentalized into a supreme virtue in itself, British reasonableness, and the book finally turns mawkish: ". . . when we gazed on the darling, beautiful British sailors all around us, when we trooped down to buy ourselves cups of tea — it was a miracle, I could have hugged the whole crew." The Knock at Midnight is a romantic "novel of the heart"; one wonders why Miss Blackstock should pretend so hard that it is not.

Keats Wrote Best Lines Under Influence of Love

By JOAN COLDWELL

Coldwell

On February 23, 1821, John Keats died in Rome. He was 26 years old. All his poems, among them some of the greatest of English odes, were written in the four years before his death.

It is only too easy to sentimentalize Keats' life story. His constant struggle against poverty and ill health and his brief burst of poetic activity under the shadow of death too frequently elicit a kind of gushy sympathy that is an insult to Keats' proud independence and his sharp sense of fun.

Even his contemporaries tended to romanticize their encounters with him: two years before he died Keats shook hands with Coleridge, who claimed to have then whispered to a bystander "There is death in that hand."

And there was Fanny Brawne—never had romantic lady so unfortunate a name. Biographers have not been able to agree on whether Fanny was a heartless flirt or a genuine lover, but there is no question of the depth of Keats' own passion, nor of the releasing influence it had on his poetic powers: "For myself I know not how to express my devotion to so fair a form: I want a brighter word than bright, a fairer word than fair. I almost wish we were butterflies and liv'd but three summer days—three such days with you I could fill with more delight than fifty common years could ever contain."

Speculation about Fanny Brawne occupies a good part of the two biographies of Keats that appeared practically simultaneously in 1963, the first full-length biographies since Amy Lowell's in 1925. Both of them are just out in paperback. From Macmillan comes Aileen Ward's John Keats: The Making of a Poet, which deservedly won the National Book Award and, in England, the Duff Cooper Memorial Prize.

It is a biography built upon extensive researches, exploration of Keats-country and personal intuition. This last gives the book both its peculiarly compelling quality and an occasional sense of strain—one feels sometimes that Miss Ward is obsessed by the psychological (as in her interpretation of Keats' reaction to his mother's death) and that she accepts unproved facts because they complete a satisfying pattern. But the book is never dull and it would be fascinating reading even if (heaven forbid) one had no interest in Keats' poetry.

The worst nightmare of scholars became reality for Aileen Ward when she learned at the last moment that someone else was about to publish a biography of Keats.

But Walter Jackson Bate's John Keats is totally different in outlook and tone, much more academic in relating Keats' thought to the aesthetic theories of his times and in showing more of the technical craftsmanship in the verse. Professor Bate's style is ponderous, but he speaks with authority and is more illuminating than Miss Ward in interpretation of Keats' letters.

At $3.00 in an Oxford paperback, Bate's John Keats is better value both for bulk and depth, but $2.50 for the Aileen Ward book will buy pleasanter reading and a more memorable example of the biographer's art.

Sacred Cows Under Fire

PERATIVE by Robert Ardrey. Atheneum Press, New York, 1966. $8.25.

Reviewed by M. C. Squire

Robert Ardrey, author of the controversial African Genesis in 1961, is again taking pot-shots at sacred cows.

His latest book The Territorial Imperative attacks so many of our entrenched beliefs that it will probably provoke a storm which will dwarf the impassioned outcries against his earlier book.

Drawing heavily on recent findings in the field of ethology — the study of animal behaviour — Ardrey suggests that man is much more deeply influenced by his instincts than psychologists and sociologists would have us believe.

The Territorial Imperative devotes much space to the animals which instinctively defend their territory from invaders. Man also is a territorial animal who will fight to repel those who attack his home ground.

MODERN WORLD, by Lord Robbins; Macmillan Company of Canada Ltd., Toronto; 1966; pps. xiii and 157; $5.00.

The groves of academe were once an enclosed and private forest inhabited largely by semi-ectoplasmic beings whose contact with reality was often relatively slight.

Now however, all is changed; the private forest is a public park and everyone is able to walk about freely criticizing the permanent denizens, semi-yahoos to many, and the arrangement of the habitat.

Education is everybody's business and everyone fancies himself an expert. There is much in the public's mind and view to confirm the old adage "Those who can, do, those who can't, teach."

The modern university is no longer the haven of the ancient languages, the seven liberal arts and the pure sciences. Everything is considered as being a subject for a degree course. Consequently the old attitudes must be changed and the public and the faculties educated.

This set of lectures by the distinguished economist Lord Robbins attempts to essay the wider spheres of modern universities. The lectures cover such diverse topics as fine arts, recruitment of technicians, the role of government and the need for academic modernization.

Essays taken out of their original context often lack the original vitality but these essays by Lord Robbins all read well.

They are not popular in style or expression. They should not necessarily be read one after another but perused carefully and discreetly.

In a province such as British Columbia, where education and its concommitant problems are expanding at an astounding rate, the suggestions of a perceptive and able scholar may give much useful advice.

For the citizen, the scholar and the teacher Lord Robbins has some sage admonitions and these should be heeded if we wish our educational instititions to maintain their high standards of excellence which have existed in the past.

Out In March

The autobiography of Bertrand Russell will be published in Britain in March. Lord Russell, 94, deposited the manuscript with the publishers over 10 years ago on the understanding that it would not be released until after his death. He has now given permission for the publication of his story of three passions—for women, for knowledge and of pity for human suffering.

LINES ON THE MERMAID TAVERN

Souls of Poets dead and gone,
What Elysium have ye known,
Happy field or mossy cavern,
Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?
Have ye tippled drink more fine
Than my host's Canary wine?
Or are fruits of Paradise
Sweeter than those dainty pies
Of venison? O generous food!
Drest as though bold Robin Hood
Would, with his maid Marian,
Sup and bowse from horn to can.

I have heard that on a day
Mine host's signboard flew away,
Nobody knew whither, till
An astrologer's old quill
To a sheepskin gave the story,
Said he saw you in your glory,
Underneath a new old sign
Sipping beverage divine,
And pledging with contented smack
The Mermaid in the Zodiac.

Souls of Poets dead and gone,
What Elysium have ye known,
Happy field or mossy cavern,
Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?

John Keats, 1795-1821.

LINES SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN ADDRESSED TO FANNY BRAWNE

This living hand, now warm and capable
Of earnest grasping, would, if it were cold
And in the icy silence of the tomb,
So haunt thy days and chill thy dreaming nights
That thou wouldst wish thine own heart dry of blood
So in my veins red life might stream again,
And thou be conscience—calm'd—see here it is—
I hold it towards you.

A sensitive and engrossing gallery of characters, against a setting of Canadian prairies in winter.

Superimposed on a background depicting the complex growing pains of Canada, is the story of a young Englishman, David Gilpin, who has come to the land of his dreams only to find himself enmeshed in the coils of reality. The vivid setting is a snow-swept midwestern Canadian city where the romantic young man is initiated into mature life by becoming involved with the two women in his landlord's life, a situation climaxed by the necessity of making a decision between love and loyalty. The author, John Peter, was born in South Africa but has spent most of the past sixteen years on the Canadian prairies, the locale of this second novel. Now at bookstores. $5.95.

CHILDREN TOSSED TO ESCAPE FIRE

NEW YORK (UPI) — A mother perched on a fifth floor fire escape of a blazing apartment building today and despite firemen's pleas tossed two of her children to the street and jumped after them. She was killed and her children seriously injured.

Firemen said they pleaded with Mrs. Shirley Wilson to wait for an aerial ladder, but she dropped Yvonne, 8, and Cynthia, 1, then "either fell or jumped" to the street. Another daughter Deborah, 7, was later rescued from the fifth floor apartment.

Deborah was in critical condition with severe burns; Cynthia suffered a severe head injury and Yvonne fractured a leg.

Ronald Folk Thompson, 28, of Beeville, Tex., died when his navy F-11A Grumman Tiger jet crashed 18 miles northwest of the naval air facility here.

Rangers Stop Black Hawks 4-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Phil Goyette scored the go-ahead goal and set up another tally as New York Rangers snapped Chicago's 15-game unbeaten streak today with a 4-1 victory over the National Hockey League leaders. The victory, first for the Rangers in five starts, ended a string of 11 victories and four ties for Chicago, last beaten Jan. 12 The Black Hawks, gunning for their first NHL championship, lead second-place New York by 14 points.

Missing Skier Found Safe

ALTA LAKE (CP) — A 16-year-old Vancouver skier was found safe today by members of a ski patrol searching for him on nearby Whistler Mountain, in Garibaldi Park, northwest of Vancouver. About 20 men began a search of the area after Robert Campbell was reported missing Friday.

SHOUTS, SHOVE

Force Probe Gets Violent

OTTAWA (CP) — Two unscheduled bouts—one shouting, one shoving—broke out at the end of an uproarious meeting of the Commons defence committee Friday.

RAYNER
. . . red with anger

In one corner, Defence Minister Hellyer and retired Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner, now administrator of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa, raised their voices to one another.

In the opposite corner, Jack McIntosh (PC — Swift Current-Maple Creek) gave Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) a shove which sent Mr. Winch stumbling back against a chair.

Mr. McIntosh had been needling the committee's witness and Mr. Winch had been needling Mr. McIntosh throughout the sitting.

"He hit me," Mr. Winch said later. "And me a cripple."

Mr. Winch has been on crutches or cane recently with a bad knee.

The row was touched off by a brief—flowery in its praise of armed forces unification plans—presented by Kenneth Patrick, Montreal businessman and wartime RCAF group captain.

The brief referred at one point to an April, 1964, order purportedly issued by Admiral Rayner, then chief of naval staff, saying in part: ". . . the end objective of a single service is firm."

ACCOSTS MINISTER

His face crimson with anger, the usually mild-mannered Admiral Rayner approached Mr. Hellyer when the meeting ended and accused him of issuing "innuendo" and "propaganda."

He said Mr. Hellyer and his staff had tried to give the impression that the admiral himself had issued the order.

"I made no such statement," Admiral Rayner snapped — as Mr. McIntosh angrily strode out of the room after his encounter with Mr. Winch.

Mr. Hellyer said: "I know, it was my statement."

William Lee, executive assistant to Mr. Hellyer, told Admiral Rayner that nobody had ever said he had made the statement.

"You sent out the signal," Mr. Lee said.

Admiral Rayner retorted: "I was asked by the minister to send it. I had no option."

Mr. Hellyer suggested that Admiral Rayner appear before the committee.

The admiral said he would be glad to do so.

RUSSIA SAYS:

Mao Loses Inner Mongolia

TOKYO (AP)—Radio Moscow said today that after a series of bloody clashes opponents of Mao Tse - tung have seized "nearly full control" of Inner Mongolia.

The Japanese-language broadcast said leaders loyal to Mao had ordered three divisions of the Peoples Liberation Army from Peking to support Maoist revolutionary rebels.

The broadcast added that Maoist Red Guards had failed in efforts to take control in Shantung and Szechwan provinces and said a tense situation still persists in the Dairen-Port Arthur area on the Liaotung peninsula. In these areas, the broadcast said, peasants have joined anti-Maoist army soldiers.

Other reports told of continued opposition to Mao's "great cultural revolution" in Tibet and Fukien province opposite Formosa.

In Inner Mongolia, the broadcast said, Maoists encountered strong counter - attacks from anti-Maoists and bloody clashes occurred.

5 Victoria Teenagers Killed in Car Plunge

Victims Hurled Into Salmon R.

By TERRY IZZARD

Five Victoria teenagers died Friday night when their car plunged into the swollen Salmon River at Sayward on northern Vancouver Island.

Their deaths brought to 10 the number of city teen-agers killed on the Island highway in the past week.

Three of those killed Friday were members of a city rock 'n' roll group, the two girls in the car were identified as girl friends.

Dead are:

Carole Anne Baker, 19, of 4057 Gordon Head Rd.

Gwyneth Riley Thomas, 18, of 1226 Hampshire.

Elkrid Cinar, 16, of 599 Sedger Road.

Charles Barry De Muelle, 16, of 816 Intervale.

Alexander (Randy) Reid, 19, of 816 Intervale.

Police recovered the bodies when the death car was dragged from the river.

The accident happened at 8:30 p.m.

All apparently drowned.

●

The youngsters were on their way to play at a dance in Sayward, 52 miles north of Campbell River, when the accident occurred.

They were only a mile from their destination when the car apparently went out of control while crossing a bridge.

It smashed into a pole and flipped over the safety barrier.

Police believe the youngsters had no chance to escape.

The water at the point where the car entered was six feet deep—swollen by recent heavy rains.

The five bodies were still inside the water-filled car when it was dragged to the surface shortly afterwards.

One of the first to learn of the accident was Charles' brother, Arthur, 21.

A draftsman at Kelsey Bay, he was waiting for them in Sayward.

Arthur was leader of the band called the EXL's, which was well-known in teenage circles.

He had sung with the other three since they arrived in Victoria from Churchill, Man., eight months ago.

●

One of the dead girls, attractive Gwyneth Thomas, had been on her way to see Arthur. The two had been going steady for some time.

The other girl, Carole, was Randy Reid's girl friend. She worked for the B.C. Medical Plan.

Elkrid Cinar, the group's drummer, had arrived from the prairies just before Christmas. He was attending Colquitz Junior High.

Charles, the bass player, was a pupil at Esquimalt Junior High.

Although Randy was not working, his girl friend was employed by Victoria Real Estate Board.

Said a friend of the group: "They were a real good bunch. They didn't smoke or drink and usually one of the parents accompanied them on their band dates."

Arthur De Muelle broke the news to his mother, Lucille this morning. Randy Reid had been staying with the family until he found work.

It was only a week ago today that three teen-agers were killed when their car plunged off the Malahat. A fourth died on Monday.

On Sunday, a 19-year-old city youth died when the sports car in which he was a passenger crashed on the Trans-Canada Highway at Portage Inlet.

HELLYER WILL CHECK ON U.S. STUDENTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Friday he has no knowledge that American students at Canadian universities do undercover assignments for the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

But he promised Eric Winkler (PC—Grey—Bruce) he would ask his colleagues in the government if they were aware of such activities.

Mr. Winkler said there were Washington reports that the CIA uses students for undercover work at domestic as well as foreign universities.

He asked for an investigation to insure the RCMP does not use students at universities in this country to gather police intelligence.

FOREIGN ACTIVITIES

CIA Cash Linked To News Union

NEW YORK (AP)—Officials of the American Newspaper Guild said today they have no knowledge that any funds received from foundations for guild international activities came from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency or any other government source.

The guild also said it will immediately terminate its association with any foundation found to be linked to the CIA, and, if necessary, will seek alternative financing sources to carry on its work of helping newspaper workers in other countries.

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says the American Newspaper Guild has received nearly $1,000,000 in foundation grants since 1960 to help finance its South American and other overseas activities.

"All of the money in the last two years has come from three foundations that refuse to disclose their sources of income or their contributions to other organizations," The Times says in a dispatch from Washington.

Charles A. Perlik Jr., national secretary-treasurer of the guild, when asked whether any of the money came originally from the Central Intelligence Agency, said that as far as he knew the money was obtained from "private sources," The Times reported.

The newspaper identifies the three foundations as the Warden Trust of Cleveland, the Chesapeake Foundation of Baltimore and the Broad-High Foundation of Columbus, Ohio.

DOESN'T KNOW ORIGIN

The Philadelphia Inquirer quotes William J. Farson, executive vice-president of the guild, as saying that he was aware of contributions made by the foundations, but that he knew nothing of their backgrounds.

Asked if the money might have been intended to influence foreign journalists to pro-American points of view, Farson told The Inquirer that was a possibility.

"I can tell you this, if any foundation ever tried to influence our work, we would not accept contributions from them," he added. "In any case, these reports make it practically impossible for us to continue our international work. Anything we proposed now would be suspect. The only thing left for us to do is to pull out."

The Times says "the guild did receive a large contribution in 1964, between $85,000 and $100,000, according to Perlik, from the Andrew Hamilton Fund."

FINANCED SEMINARS

"Mr. Perlik," The Times account continues, "said that the newspaper guild had obtained a total of roughly $650,000 from the Warden Trust, the Chesapeake Foundation and the Broad-High Foundation since sometime in 1965 to finance such activities as conferences on newspaper union organization work and journalism seminars overseas.

"Mr. Perlik said the guild also received between $100,000 and $150,000 during the years 1960 through 1963 from the Granary Fund of Boston."

Logger, 20, Dies as Car Slams Tree

COURTENAY — A young logger died and two others were seriously injured when an old model car smashed into a tree east of here Friday night.

Police had to use crowbars to free the trio from the wreckage.

Robert Arthur Neidrauer, 20, of Lake Trail Road, Courtenay, was already dead.

Brian Perrin and Brian Peterson, both 19, of Cumberland were rushed to hospital with multiple fractures.

They are in fair condition.

The accident happened just outside city limits shortly before 9 p.m.

The three youths were heading towards Courtenay when they sideswiped a car driven by William Warnes of Cumberland.

Neidrauer was killed instantly.

Mr. Warnes and his wife escaped uninjured.

Quebec Labor Crisis Hits Peak Monday

(See also page 38.)

QUEBEC (CP)—The biggest labor crisis in years faced Quebec today as a new law forcing 12,000 striking teachers back to work neared the enforcement stage.

The key man in the situation—Raymond Laliberte, president of the 50,000-member Corporation des Instituteurs Catholiques—turned a deaf ear to questions about whether he intended to order a second mass study session by provincial teachers.

With the help of 6,200 members of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, the CIC closed nearly every public classroom in Quebec Friday and teachers spent the day studying the much-debated legislation.

Enacted into law at 1:45 p.m. Friday, Bill 25 orders teachers back into their classrooms Monday morning and extends their expired collective agreements until June, 1968.

In Montreal, news of the bill's passage was quickly followed by the announcement that officials of Quebec's two most powerful labor groups—the 300,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor and 200,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions—had called a joint meeting for Monday.

CALLS IT 'THREAT'

The CNTU issued a statement calling the bill "a threat not only against the teachers but against all society" and promised establishment of 108 "political action committees."

But a spokesman would not say what exactly was planned—

Cong Talk Truce With Ky

TOKYO (AP) — The Viet Cong said today they made contacts with South Vietnamese officers during the Lunar New Year truce and that the contacts proved the Vietnamese can settle their own affairs.

This assertion was made by the spokesman for the Viet Cong's National Front for Liberation and broadcast by Hanoi radio.

It was the first disclosure that there had been such contacts.

"The contacts between a number of officers and men of the puppet army and the people and cadres of the NFL proved that the Vietnamese people are fully able to settle themselves all internal affairs provided the U.S. stop its aggression against South Vietnam and withdraws its troops from there."

LONDON (AP) — The Communist Morning Star says a North Vietnamese foreign ministry spokesman in Hanoi has confirmed that talks can commence if the Americans stop the bombing of North Vietnam.

In an undated dispatch, Freda Cook, its correspondent in Hanoi, quotes the spokesman as saying:

"This is not a new line but a new approach to the question of talks. The United States has protested often enough that it wants to talk as soon as there is the slightest indication that Hanoi is willing.

"Very well, let the bombing of the North stop definitely and talks could commence."

AUSSIES AVOID TRAP IN S. VIET BATTLE

SAIGON (AP) — Australian troops bypassed an enemy ambush and killed 70 Viet Cong guerrillas in a six-hour battle Friday, a spokesman for the 1st Australian Task Force announced today.

It was the fourth straight day allied units—South Vietnamese, Koreans, Americans and Australians—have clashed with guerrillas or North Vietnamese regulars. They have claimed an over-all enemy death toll exceeding 1,000.

'Deny Strike Right To Civil Servants'

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs Friday cited recent strikes in public service industries as they urged the government in the Commons to abandon its plan to extend the right to strike to most federal employees.

The Public Service Staff Relations Act, a 116-clause bill, gives some 200,000 civil servants the right to opt for strikes or compulsory arbitration as the final method of dispute settlement.

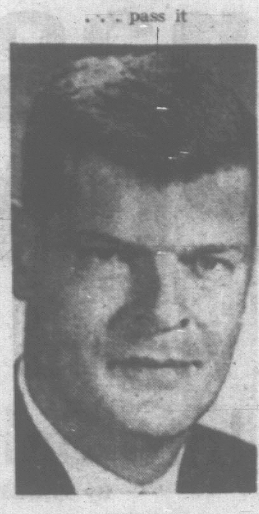
The Commons began clause-by-clause study of the bill providing a system of collective bargaining for the public service. It is already approved in principle, and the Commons was to return to the measure Monday.

The government was served early warning that MPs planned to seek amendments. Richard A. Bell (PC — Carleton) tried two and had them go down by votes of 41 to 23 and 34 to 17.

But the heat came when the House reached the strike option clause.

Opposition MPs cited recent strikes in the postal service, airlines, railways and the current Quebec teachers' strike as reasons to beware granting civil servants the strike option.

BENSON
. . . pass it



NOWLAN
. . . unfortunate

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings):

"Frankly I am against giving the right through legislation to public servants to strike. Compulsory arbitration is one matter but the right to strike is an unfortunate blazing of a new trail which with I cannot agree."

GROAN AT PROSPECT

Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke):

"I am sure the people of Canada listening to the debate this afternoon must groan at the thought of extending the rights to strike at this time to the civil service, in the light of the unhappy experience we have had this past year."

Jack Horner (PC—Acadia):

"It is all very well for the minister (Revenue Minister Benson) to say that most of the bargaining agents will decide on arbitration, but if he really believes that why do we need this clause at all?

"Why should there be an alternative? One need only consider the Province of Quebec to understood how the government can get into serious difficulty when essential services are tied up."

Mr. Benson said the government has been trying to get the bargaining legislation into operation for 3½ years. "I believe it is time we presented the legislation to Parliament and had it passed."

The government assumed the great majority of employees would opt for arbitration. Employees in essential services would not be allowed to strike under the legislation and if others chose to, Parliament could take action in the public interest to prevent such strikes.

The armed forces and RCMP are not covered in the bill.

Mr. Horner said it was time Canadians "realized that strikes are outdated, particularly when innocent parties are affected and our whole economy is tied up."

NEED NO UNIONS

Jack Biggs (PC—Athabasca) said he could not understand "why people in the public service require unionizing of any kind."

Gerard Pelletier (L—Hochelaga) was in "total disagreement" with Mr. Nowlan. The Commons should not be influenced by labor disputes in Quebec or elsewhere. He felt it was "absolutely normal" that civil servants have the strike option and Parliament the power to stop any strike in an essential service.

Mr. Bell's first proposed amendment would have allowed conscientious objectors to be exempted from ever having to pay dues to a civil service union. He had received representations from persons who, because of religious beliefs, objected to being compelled to join unions or to pay dues.

The bill does not provide a so-called closed-shop clause whereby all employees must join unions and pay dues. But the topic is left open to negotiations and could be won in future bargaining. The House defeated the amendment.

Mr. Bell's other lost motion concerned the powers proposed for the public service staff relations board, which will administer the system of collective bargaining.

He felt it should not have the power to rescind or change any order or decision without first giving notice to the parties affected. Mr. Benson said this would cause undue delays.

. . . FORCE PROBE

Mr. Patrick's testimony on the point said:

"Admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of the naval staff, on April 3, 1964, published a four-page statement from which I quote:

"'The third and final step will be the unification of the three services. It is reasonable to expect that it will be three or four years before it will be possible to take this action. However, the end objective of a single service is firm.'"

Robert Andras (L — Port Arthur) put the same quotation on the record earlier in the week to make the argument that the military knew about unification plans from 1964.

Admiral Rayner, who, like Mr. Hellyer, has attended nearly all the committee meetings in the last two weeks, indicated his anger when Mr. Andras used the quotation.

But he said the second time in a week was too much. He repeated to reporters he had been directed by Mr. Hellyer to send the order.

Mr. McIntosh and Gordon Churchill, a former Conservative defence minister, had given Mr. Patrick a rough time.

Mr. Churchill said Mr. Patrick had insulted the committee and that he regretted he had been called as a witness.

Mr. McIntosh asked Mr. Patrick whether he pays Canadian income tax and whether any of his firms do business with the government.

Mr. Patrick said he certainly does pay Canadian income tax and that none of his present firms do business with the government.

He added that his former firm—Canadian Aviation Electronics of Montreal, which he founded in 1950—had sold products to both the Conservative and Liberal governments.

Mr. Patrick had barely launched into his brief when Mr. McIntosh interjected: "You sound like a salesman looking for a contract."

As Mr. Patrick left the room to catch a train, Mr. Winch called out after him: "Don't be disturbed by the insulting comment."

"If you refer to me, you'd better stow it,' Mr. McIntosh barked.

A few seconds later, the committee adjourned until Monday when Lt.-Gen. Robert Moncel, 49, vice-chief of defence staff retired last summer six years before normal retirement age, is scheduled to testify.

Mr. McIntosh went out of his way to approach Mr. Winch and pushed against him. Mr. Winch stumbled backward momentarily but did not fall.

The charged atmosphere built up a full head of steam during Mr. Patrick's reading of his brief.

Mr. Patrick said the 1964 armed forces integration bill was passed without a dissenting vote.

Mr. Churchill said this was not so. There had been no formal vote but Conservatives had registered their opposition with the traditional call of "on division."

"Have you repeated this across Canada?" Mr. Churchill demanded. "Is this part of your propaganda effort?"

Mr. Patrick, who kept his temper in rein throughout, made no audible reply.

When Mr. McIntosh was asking about sales of products to the government by Mr. Patrick's firm in 1950-59, Mr. Winch interjected:

"Be honest in your questions."

Mr. McIntosh said this was insulting.

Mr. Winch said later Mr. McIntosh repeated this when he accosted him after the meeting.

Mr. McIntosh said he had nothing to add.

Mr. Patrick said in his brief that integration of the services' trade structure was "nothing less than a masterpiece of personnel management."

His other claims were in the same vein.

Licence Lost For Gas Theft

A youth caught stealing gas from a truck was ordered to surrender his driver's licence for six months when he appeared Friday for sentence.

Magistrate Ostler told Norman Williams, 18, of 1065 McTavish Road, Sidney, it was obvious he could not afford to drive. The youth was also ordered to sign a $250 good behavior bond covering the same period.

Williams was caught siphoning gas from a truck at Ocean Cement Ltd., 2324 Government, on Feb. 7.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A ridge of high pressure building across the B.C. coast gave sunny skies with cloudy intervals to most regions today. Showers were confined to the outer coast with a few snowflurries in the eastern and central interior. A weak Pacific weather system will bring showers to the north coast on Sunday. Most other areas will continue sunny with a few cloudy intervals as the ridge of high pressure remains over southern sections of the province.

Celibacy Change Touchy Issue

By BENNETT M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pressure was said today to be increasing inside the Vatican for a major review of the Roman Catholic Church's clerical celibacy rule, as more priests abandon their vows for marriage.

"It can hardly be avoided," said one expert here who foresaw such a study in commenting on the latest case from England—the decision Friday by Rev. Arnold McMahon, 27, to marry.

Some sources cautioned, however, that any Vatican-ordered review is likely to change only the way young seminarians are introduced to the prospect of lifetime celibacy and not bring about a relaxation off the church's celibate tradition.

They said celibacy is rapidly matching birth control as the touchiest problem throughout the church in need of an answer.

Far more is involved in the Vatican's increasing concern over "defecting priests," it was explained, than the recent English cases.

PLANS MARRIAGE

Father McMahon, a member of the Divine Word Religious Order who was disciplined three years ago for publicly favoring contraception for married Catholics, said in London that he is marrying an American Catholic girl.

In Los Angeles a Malaysian woman, Elizabeth John, who came to the U.S. seven years ago, said she received Father McMahon's proposal last month by airmail.

After he advocated the use of birth contraceptives for Catholics two years ago, he was called to Rome and ordered to Ghana, West Africa, as a missionary.

Rev. Charles Davis, 46-year-old British diocesan priest, left the church last December and married soon after. He said he rejected the church as an institution but remained a Christian.

Another English priest, Rev. Wilfrid Stibbs, director of a British Roman Catholic association, gave up Roman Catholicism for Anglicanism without expressing any intention to marry.

The Vatican weekly l'Osservatore Della Domenica, commenting on surveys showing that many priests favor doing away with celibacy, expressed worry two weeks ago over "signs of disquiet" among the clergy on the issue.

About 1,000 priests a year are reported to request the Vatican to release them from their vows. Various reasons are cited in the petitions but celibacy problems are most frequently mentioned, those in the Vatican who handle such files report.

that the subsidies to the American Newapaper Guild "were made by four private foundations that do not file public tax records."

"At least one of them, the Andrew Hamilton Fund of Philadelphia," The Post says, "was identified Friday by government officials as a CIA front."

Perlik was quoted by The Post as saying he was unaware that CIA funds were involved.

The newspaper guild has locals in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico. The guild is affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

The Post says the guild's international activities are channelled through the International Federation of Journalists, with headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, and the Inter-American Federation of Working Newspapermen's Organizations in Panama.

In Victoria, the president of the Guild's Local 223 said a membership meeting will be called to discuss the development.

Duncan Macphail said he is sending a telegram to ANG today for its side of the story so it can be presented at a meeting here.

"Until more information is available, I couldn't really make a statement," he said.

The issue will be "thrashed out" at the meeting, he added.

The Guild represents 120 editorial, commercial and maintenance employees at Victoria Press Limited.

MUSICIANS WANTED BY POLICE

Wanted by the police: young musicians.

City police said today there is room for more boys and girls in their youth band.

Especially wanted are young musicians who play the trumpet, trombone, clarinet, tuba, French horn, flute or percussion instruments.

The band, organized two years ago, played several concerts for various organizations last year and hopes to attend the Portland Rose Festival Parade in June.

Boys and girls between 14 and 21 interested in joining the band are asked to turn out any Tuesday evening at 7 at the Jubilee Hall, 527 Fraser St. in Esquimalt, or phone 384-3495 for more information.

. . . QUEBEC LABOR CRISIS

only that "You will find out when it happens."

A QFL affiliate, the Montreal Labor Council, invited unions representing its 150,000 members to organize special conferences and study sessions—a form of protest action for workers who do not have the legal right to go on strike or do not wish to strike.

By late Friday, only one large group among the striking Roman Catholic teachers had made it clear it intended to defy the back-to-work law by calling a meeting for 9 a.m. Monday.

"As far as we are concerned we are still on strike," said Robert Dobe, general chairman of the 1,500-member Federation of English-speaking Catholic Teachers of Montreal.

The rest of Montreal's 9,000 striking teachers, members of l'Alliance des professeurs catholiques, have called a meeting for Sunday to decide what they will do.

The Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers issued a statement saying all teachers must "stand united be they French or English, Catholic or Protestant." But association officials were uncertain what action would be taken until it could be determined if Protestant teachers are affected by the bill.

Premier Johnson said Friday that the 6,200 Protestant teachers, who have individual agreements with their school boards, do not come within the scope of the new law unless they try to sign collective agreements.

Late Friday, association President Ann MacLeish set out for Quebec City from Montreal, intending to find out if 3,000 members in Montreal who are certified as a bargaining group will be affected.

Meanwhile the premier expressed confidence that the teachers are professionals who will "show respect for the law."

And Opposition Leader Jean Lesage said he hoped all teachers would return to work Monday since "even this unjust law must be obeyed."

Under the labor code, individual strikers who commit a breach of contract are liable to fines varying between $10 and $100 a day while unions are liable to amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000 a day.

Early Friday the Federation of Quebec School Boards had warned that all teachers taking part in the study session would be docked a day's pay.

Just how many would be losing was unclear. The CIC issued figures announcing 90 per cent of its 50,000 members had joined the walkout Friday while the federation estimated absenteeism at 80 per cent.

Most of the remaining 3,000 teachers actually on strike will vote on whether to obey the bill Sunday night. They include 300 teachers from the Montreal suburbs of Pointe Claire and Beaconsfield and teachers in the areas of Trois-Rivieres, Shawinigan, Chambly and Granby.
